U.S. DESTROYER FIRED BY FOUR SUICIDE PILOTS

2 Warships Hit in Jap's Death Crash

Washington, D. C., July 5 (AP)—The navy told today how the destroyer Newcomb survived hits by four Japanese suicide planes that "literally disemboweled" the ship and caused 91 casualties. Heroic fire fighting was credited with saving the vessel.

Lt. D. W. Greene [top] and Lt. C. H. Gober, heroes of sea battle.

The navy's report paid high tribute to Newcomb gunners, who shot down three other suicide planes.

The seventh suicider made a double strike, skidding across the Newcomb into the stern of the destroyer Leutze, which had come to the stricken ship's aid. The Leutze counted 84 casualties, a total of 175 for the two warships.

Battle Rages Two Hours

The 2,100 ton Newcomb, veteran of Pacific campaigning, fought the kamikaze [suicide] pilots for two hours on April 6 near Ie Island, west of Okinawa. She "is afloat today because her heroic crew, many with hair aflame and clothes burned off, refused to give her up even when all power and communication was lost and more than half of the ship was enveloped in flames," the navy said.

The Newcomb, which had outfought suicide pilots at Mindoro, Lingayen gulf, and Okinawa, was supporting heavy units of the fleet when a large formation of Japanese planes was reported at 4 p. m. American fighters intercepted the flight, but some Japanese slipped thru.

The gunnery officer, Lt. [j. g.] H. B. M. Harris-Warren, Coronado, Cal., counted 40 enemy planes at one time, 21 in the water.

At 4:25 p. m., the first plane dived at the Newcomb, whose gunners sent it crashing 30 feet away without damage to the ship.

Turn Evades Second Plane

Almost immediately the second suicidist started his run. As the ship's guns scored hits, the commanding officer, Comdr. Ira E. McMillian, Fort Worth, Tex., gave orders for a sharp turn. The plane crashed in the Newcomb's wake.

The third Japanese tried a low level attack, flew thru a curtain of steel, and caromed off a gun mount into the afterstack. Gasoline, steam from a boiler, metal from the superstructure, and the plane mingled with the resulting fire to make the amidships section an inferno.

Suicidist No. 4 came in for an easy kill, but the Newcomb was ready and a salvo sent him splashing.

Suicidists No. 5 and No. 6 started in simultaneously. With a partial loss of power, McMillian tried to change course fast. No. 5 struck a body blow amidships. A terrifying

3 U. S. Lines Win Atlantic Flight Routes

BY JOSEPH HEARST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., July 5—The civil aeronautics board today announced it has authorized three American air line companies to fly North Atlantic routes to Europe, Asia, and Africa.

Rep. Shafer

A demand was made immediately in congress for an investigation to determine whether the decision was influenced by pressure brought by Brig. Gen. Elliott Roosevelt.

The three lines licensed are Pan American Airways, Inc., American Export Airlines, Inc. [which is being taken over by American Airlines, Inc.], and Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc. The authorization is for seven years.

Truman Approves Order

President Truman approved the order, as required by law. The routes will operate from Chicago and five other American terminals —New York, Washington, Boston, Philadelphia, and Detroit.

In congress Rep. Shafer [R., Mich.] demanded an explanation of all the facts surrounding the issuance of a certificate of authorization to TWA. In a speech inserted in the congressional record he said that Gen. Roosevelt had "consorted with officials of TWA while the company's application for ocean routes was pending."

"I am making no direct accusation, but I am forced to admit that I am suspicious that some undue influence was brought to bear," he said, referring to the board's decision to grant a certificate to TWA.

Loans Under Inquiry

Shafer asserted that when young Roosevelt—whose large loans of money from individuals, as well as his income tax returns, are under investigation by the house ways and means committee—returned to the United States from England last fall he was met by John Meyer, personal representative of Howard Hughes, Texas and California millionaire who owns control of TWA.

Shafer said that Meyer quickly became a spokesman not only for Hughes but also for Gen. Roosevelt, and made the announcement that Roosevelt would go to California to marry Faye Emerson, a motion picture actress. Later, Shafer said, Meyer went to Hyde Park, N. Y., where he conferred with the late President Roosevelt.

Shafer said that when Gen. Roosevelt and Miss Emerson were married the entire wedding party was flown from California to the Grand Canyon in Arizona by Jack Frye, president of TWA. He said several planes were used to transport the party, and after the wedding Frye flew the newly married couple to Washington "to meet the folks."

TWA Application Pending

At this time, Shafer asserted, TWA had pending before the CAB an application for an overseas route.

SWEDISH AIR LINE GETS 5 FLYING FORTRESSES FOR OPERATION TO U.S.

New York, July 5 [Special]—Swedish Inter-Continental air lines, a commercial company, has obtained five Flying Fortresses from the United States for use in its projected operation of an air line between Sweden and the United States, it was learned today.

The air line has concluded the first of a series of survey and charter flights from Stockholm to New York by way of Iceland and Canada. The Fortress which made the first flight to New York air field last week was due back in Stockholm yesterday, having left here Monday. The pilot was Capt. Aake Duvander, famed for night flights between Stockholm and London during the European war. The plane left Stockholm at 8 a. m., June 28, on the flight to this country. Stops were made at Meeks field just outside Reykjavik, Iceland, and Mindan field in the province of Quebec.

The company expects to be operating by early fall.

Black Market Thriving in Berlin Chaos

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

BERLIN, July 5—The black market which thrived under the Nazis is even more profitable in the present confusion attendant upon the redistribution of the allied zones of occupation.

However, in all this chaos and uncertainty, it was left to the Russians to introduce black market trucks.

My most daring black market dealer in the Hitler days trundled a baby carriage to transport her wares, but today I saw a huge truck around which people clustered to buy a pound of butter and sausage meat at fabulous prices. The transaction took place in a busy thoroughfare and everybody within sight knew about it. This was strictly a cash business. The current price for a pound of butter is 500 marks and a pound of sausage—the real old fashioned, meaty kind 's 600 marks, which is worse than in the days of inflation.

$60 a Pound at Official Rate

Computed at the official rate of occupation marks, this would be $60 for a pound of butter and $70 for a pound of sausage, but German speculators themselves placed the value of the mark much lower. Even before the collapse they paid 50 marks for a dollar. No one could tell me the present rate.

Berliners asserted that truck loads of food thus sold were part of foodstuffs requisitioned by the Russians from villages near Berlin. The villagers complained they are deprived of stores which are supposed to last until harvest, which has been delayed by cold, rainy weather. The people in the province of Brandenburg also are frantic about the loss of their cattle, seized by the Russians.

Reds Order Sausages

A butcher said that several weeks ago the Russians turned over cattle and pigs to his processors and ordered him to manufacture Russian type sausages and big amounts of the German variety. Most of the latter were sold on black market trucks at fantastic prices.

Meanwhile profiteers, speculators, and wealthy Nazis who managed to escape discovery of their activities, are living in plenty, thanks to the black market, and are carousing in the night clubs, some of which open at 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

BERLIN A GRAVEYARD OF MANY UNKNOWN GERMAN SOLDIERS

[By Wireless to the New York News and The Chicago Tribune]

BERLIN, July 5 — There are graves all over Berlin. There are crude crosses in vacant lots and in the parks everywhere. Some have names and dates on them, others just have the legend "unknown German soldier."

In the Hohenzollern platz there is a smashed and rusting tank lying across the flower beds. On one side of the ornamental pool and fountain are the graves of Russians. On the other side lie about 60 German dead.

Some of them are soldiers. Their steel helmets perch atop the crosses. Many are civilians who died either of wounds, hunger, or disease in the hospital around the corner. When they died the area was hemmed in by the Russians, and it wasn't possible to carry the bodies to a cemetery or a crematorium. So shallow holes were scraped in the park and the bodies placed in them.

47 NATIONS GOT GOODS AT PEAK OF LEND-LEASE

Philadelphia, Pa., July 5 (AP)—Forty-seven foreign governments were drawing supplies—horseshoes to butcher scales—at the peak of the United States lend-lease program, the Philadelphia quartermaster depot said today.

A depot report listed 100,000,000 yards of wool cloth sent to Russia, 75,000,000 yards of cotton to Great Britain in addition to these items shipped to 50 world ports:

Blacksmith supplies, carbon paper, nails, 2,000,000 overcoats, 7,000,000 shirts, 5,900,000 pairs of trousers, 8,000,000 pairs of hose, 5,000,000 suits of underwear, and 3,000,000 sweaters.

HOPKINS NAMED ARBITER OF N. Y. NEEDLE TRADES

New York, July 5 (AP)—David Dubinsky, president of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union, said today that Harry Hopkins, former special Presidential adviser, had accepted the post of impartial chairman of the New York women's coat and suit industry. Dubinsky said Hopkins was expected to assume the post after a rest of several weeks.

Hopkins succeeds former New York Mayor James J. Walker, who was named to the post in 1940 and occupied it until June 30, 1945. It was reported at union offices that Hopkins' salary would be "in the neighborhood" of $25,000 a year.

A Little Guy's Big Appetite Amazes Army

Atlanta, Ga., July 5 (AP)—Doctors don't know what's the matter with Pvt. Chester J. Safvatori.

Salvatori has a big appetite, a gargantuan appetite, an appetite that would appall even an elephant.

A breakfast of 40 eggs, 20 pieces of toast, several quarts of milk, eight pieces of bacon, a quart of coffee, and a box—a big box—of cereal is nothing unusual for the soldier from Southbridge, Mass.

A Big Guy? O, No!

And Salvatori isn't a big guy. He's just 140 pounds and slightly less than average in height.

He tells friends that he once ate an 18 pound turkey at one meal—without help. His favorite meat is pork chops, and he says he's eaten as many as 36 at a meal.

Physicians who have the little guy with the big appetite under observation at Fort McPherson station hospital say his stomach is a little larger than average, but not much.

It's Psychological, Maybe

They say also it may be that his craving for food is psychological, but they are not definite or unanimous in the matter.

Salvatori has been in the army four years and four months. In civilian life he likes to work in a grocery store or a bakery. Once, he said, he worked for an optical company and nearly starved to death.

Free Election Pledge Filled, Says Truman

Washington, D. C., July 5 (AP) — The United States and Britain tonight jointly recognized the reconstituted Warsaw government of Poland, cutting adrift the London exile regime with which they have dealt thruout the war.

Arthur Bliss Lane

In both London and Washington, however, it was emphasized in the announcements that the setting up of the expanded Warsaw administration constituted only a "step" in fulfilment of the Yalta Big Three agreements.

Yalta Accord "Recognized"

President Truman, announcing American acceptance of the Warsaw government, said it had recognized the Yalta agreement in full and thereby confirmed the Crimean plan for free elections.

The President said Arthur Bliss Lane has been named ambassador and "will proceed to Warsaw as soon as possible." The British announcement laid stress on "full agreement with the United States government" in recognizing the "Polish provisional government of national unity." It said an ambassador will be sent from London shortly.

Lane was appointed last September to the London Polish government but never went to London, apparently in expectation of such a shift as came today. He is in Washington. Previously he was ambassador to Colombia.

Broader Base Stipulated

The Crimea agreement by President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill, and Premier Stalin called for broadening the base of the Moscow-sponsored Warsaw group, to take in other democratic Polish elements and for free elections to be held later.

Diplomatic comment both here and in the British capital has laid emphasis on the elections and the circumstances under which they are held as the final important step in letting the Poles work out their own democratic course.

Stanislaus Mikolajczyk, one-time leader of the London Polish government, has been included in the new Warsaw setup as vice premier. The new government was worked out after long negotiations which all but stalled over soviet objections to taking in representatives of the London group.

Complicated by Arrests

The Russian arrest of 16 Polish underground leaders, whom Moscow accused of subversive activities behind the Red army lines, further complicated negotiations.

Diplomats here did not expect formal withdrawal of recognition from the London Poles. Rather, the organization was expected here to be treated as if it simply had ceased to exist diplomatically. Whatever happens in that direction, there probably will be arguments over disposition of Polish assets claimed by both regimes.

Polish troops, who have fought under British command in Europe, and whose loyalty the London Poles still claim, constituted another problem.

Recognized by China

CHUNGKING, July 6 [Friday]—(AP)—The foreign office announced today China's recognition of the Warsaw Polish government and said Dr. Fu Ping-Sheung, Chinese ambassador to Moscow, had notified the Polish ambassador there of China's action.

JAPS SPYING ON M'ARTHUR ARE KILLED, REPORT

New York, July 5—NBC correspondent Merrill Mueller reported from Manila tonight that seven Japanese snipers and spies recently have been executed in Manila, "among them men who have shown a singular interest in the office, home, and activities of Gen. MacArthur." Indicating that possibly an assassination plot was involved, Mueller said "MacArthur personifies the Japanese hate for America, and Tokyo is blaming him for Japan's troubles."

TREASURY HEAD FORCED ISSUE, INSIDERS SAY

BY WALTER TROHAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., July 5—The inside story of the abrupt departure of Treasury Secrstary Morgenthau from the government is that President Truman peremptorily released him when he asked for a showdown on reports that he was slated for replacement.

This became unmistakably clear tonight as treasury and White House sources provided background for the two surprise press conferences which the President and Morgenthau held in quick succession this afternoon.

The President, at his conference, read a letter regretting Morgenthau's resignation as "a distinct loss" to the government. He praised the secretary for carrying out the heaviest tax program the country has known and acclaimed his direction of war bond drives as "a great achievement" deserving the thanks of the nation.

Morgenthau Displeased

When Morgenthau faced newspaper men at his conference, however, he made it unmistakably clear that he was leaving only with the greatest reluctance. However, he refused to discuss his resignation for publication other than to say he had absolutely no plans for the future other than to take a rest.

It was obvious to newspaper men attending the Morgenthau conference that the secretary was not only displeased but even indignant over his own resignation.

An unimpeachable treasury source said Morgenthau found it nerve-wracking to do his work without an atmosphere of confidence, so he determined to lay the matter before Mr. Truman. Because the President had been out of town recently, Morgenthau did not get an appointment until this morning.

Asked Where He Stood

At the conference Morgenthau asked flatly where he stood. The directness of Morgenthau's approach surprised the chief executive. White House sources said Mr. Truman had not expected that the first move would come from Morgenthau because the secretary had never submitted a written resignation on the death of the late President Roosevelt, as is customary. He did, however, make two verbal offers to leave the cabinet.

Morgenthau told Mr. Truman there had been numerous reports that there was to be a shakeup in the treasury department. He reminded the chief executive that he had held the treasury post for 11 years and for four years before that had been associated with Roosevelt when the late President was governor of New York.

Offered Ambassadorship

The high treasury source revealed that Morgenthau told his chief that he did not want to be on trial and that in view of his years of service and his record he did not have to be on trial.

Morgenthau soon found out where he stood. The President acknowledged that he had plans to make a change in the department but was not yet prepared to do so. He offered Morgenthau an ambassadorship and held out the prospect of other posts, but Morgenthau spurned these.

Morgenthau then returned to the treasury department and wrote out his letter of resignation. After the letter reached the White House, Mr. Truman composed an answer—one of the lengthiest resignation acceptances in White House history, and called the surprise press conference.

It was learned at the White House that Mr. Truman had intended to string along with Morgenthau until he got ready to name a successor.

President Names 6 to High Posts in Government

(Pictures on page 8)

Washington, D. C., July 5 [Special]—A major cabinet change, retirement of two judges and several new appointments to high posts in the administration today set an accelerated pace for the governmental face lifting under way since the White House advent of President Truman 12 weeks ago.

The developments added up to four going out, five coming in, and were:

1. Treasury Secretary Morgenthau, second in the line of Presidential succession, submitted his resignation to President Truman, who promptly accepted it and said he has a successor in mind but will not name him until after the impending Big Three conference.

Justice Roberts Retires

2. President Truman announced the retirement from the Supreme court of Associate Justice Roberts, 70, last but one of the high court members who did not get their appointments from President Roosevelt.

3. Thurman Arnold, former "trust buster" of the department of justice, resigned as a justice of the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, stating he would reenter private practice.

4. Eugene Casey, an executive assistant to the President, and one of the "secret six" aids chosen by President Roosevelt because of their "passion for anonymity," resigned.

Cohen Back in Service

5. Back to a position of power in the government came Benjamin V. Cohen of New York, one of the original New Deal brain trusters, thru appointment as special assistant to the secretary of state by State Secretary Byrnes.

6. Two special assistants on temporary assignments were appointed by State Secretary Byrnes. They were Donald S. Russell, formerly assistant director in the office of war mobilization, and Walter Brown, press relations director for the war mobilization office.

7. President Truman appointed Jesse M. Donaldson, career postal employe, to be first assistant postmaster general.

F. D. R. Aids Remain

8. The President named Edward C. Moran Jr., former Maine congressman, to be second assistant secretary of labor.

The resignation of Morgenthau leaves in the cabinet only four of the persons who were members of the President's official family when President Roosevelt died. Only one of these, Interior Secretary Ickes, has been a cabinet member since the beginning of the Roosevelt administration. The other survivors

HALF OF PULLMANS IN CIVILIAN SERVICE WILL GO FOR TROOPS

Washington, D. C., July 5 (AP) — Half the Pullman cars in civilian service will be shifted to the transportation of troops in the immediate future, the office of defense transportation disclosed tonight.

Some additional day coaches also will be shifted to the military pool, but the percentage will be relatively small. There are more than 6,000 Pullman cars, and 50 per cent of these already are in the military pool.

The new shift will place an additional 1,500 Pullmans in the pool, leaving about that many for civilian trains. Actually, however, the shift will reduce space available to civilians by more than 50 per cent. This is because military authorities already have space reservations on practically all civilian trains, and presumably there will be no substantial reduction in these demands.

[Undersecretary of War Patterson denies that German prisoners of war were transported in Pullmans, but asserts returning American veterans have been compelled to ride long distances in day coaches without conveniences. Story on page 2.]

Patent Granted for Bottle to Eliminate Baby Burping

Richmond, Va., July 5 (AP)—The United States patent office here has granted a patent on a nursing bottle designated to eliminate the necessity of "burping" the baby after feeding. Joseph Harry Boxley of Richmond, Va., is the inventor of the bottle, which has a vent hole thru a knob on the side to prevent the baby from swallowing too much air with the milk.

IT'S HOME AGAIN FOR OLD 132D AT FORT SHERIDAN

Most of 105 Pacific Vets to Be Released

One hundred five veterans of the old 132d all-Chicago regiment, who participated in some of the earliest and fiercest fighting in the Pacific, were at Fort Sheridan yesterday for a grand rush homeward, and—for most of them—civilian life.

"This is God's country!" shouted one happy warrior, who seemed to sum up the appreciative sentiments of his GI pals. The contingent arrived Wednesday.

Forty-eight of the group are from Chicago and suburbs, the remainder from other parts of Illinois. But it wasn't that way on March 5, 1941, when the 132d left its armory at Madison and Rockwell sts. for Camp Forrest, Tenn., to train with others of the Illinois 33d national guard division. On that date the 132d was all-Chicago. Battle casualties later brought replacements with men from elsewhere, but largely Illinoisans.

Participate in Island Fighting

After months of training, the 132d was made part of a task force that sailed from the United States Jan. 23, 1942, for Australia. It later was incorporated into the Americal division. Subsequently the 132d fought on Guadalcanal, Bougainville, Leyte, and Cebu. Some of the men at Fort Sheridan yesterday were fighting on Cebu only 30 days ago.

The entire group averaged individual point scores of 100 and was ordered home for separation. Most of the enlisted men will be separated from the service and home by tonight. Status of the officers is not so certain. Following is the list of Chicagoans:

Maj. Fred A. Kaps, 5420 Belden av.; Capt. Timothy R. Mulcahy, 9425 Lafin st.; Capt. Robert A. Manning, 7548 Hermitage av.; Capt. Leonard B. Yuknis, 3301 Cermak rd.; Lt. George H. Harriel, 5944 Rees av.; Lt. Robert W. Haynes, 3239 Franklin blvd.

ALLIES RETURN 3,260,000 NAZI 'SLAVES' HOME

Washington, D. C., July 5 (AP)—Of nearly 5,800,000 displaced persons found by the allies in Germany, 3,260,000 have been returned to their home countries. They include 1,243,600 Frenchmen, of whom 142,693 were returned by air, and 1,393,902 Russians.

Announcing these figures today, the war department added that Russians constitute the largest group of those not yet repatriated. The reason for this, it said, is that there was no feasible method for returning soviet citizens until Germany fell and allied and Russian fronts were linked.

SOONG TALKS WITH RUSSIANS AND HARRIMAN

MOSCOW, July 5 (AP)—Chinese Premier T. V. Soong's talks with Russian leaders have made progress, a well informed source said today as diplomatic observers expressed belief the Chinese-soviet talks were of the highest importance to allied unity.

Soong conferred at length today with W. Averell Harriman — his third discussion with the United States ambassador. Soong has twice talked with Premier Stalin.

The Chinese premier has been in Moscow six days.

PATTERSON DENIES STORY OF PULLMAN RIDE FOR GERMANS

Washington, D. C., July 5 [Special]—Undersecretary of War Patterson today told a news conference that 500 war veterans had been given poor accommodations for a trip from Boston to San Francisco but asserted their complaint that they saw German prisoners of war in Pullmans "is not true." The veterans arrived Tuesday at Camp Beale, Cal., in eight day coaches, one of the cars bearing a sign saying they had to ride in chair cars while prisoners rode Pullmans.

"The part of the story about German prisoners of war being carried in Pullmans is not true," said Patterson. "The part about our troops being carried without sleepers but in day coaches of the commuter type is true." Patterson said the war department had asked railroads and the office of defense transportation to provide suitable accommodations for veterans but that relief had not been forthcoming.

J. Monroe Johnson, ODT director, said that the cars mentioned by Patterson were standard day coaches. Johnson said it was impossible to supply all needed Pullman cars and day coaches "without any warning whatever." He said information provided the ODT had indicated that 154,000 troops would arrive in this country by ship during June and that 50,000 would arrive by air. Actually, however, 200,000 arrived by ship and 50,000 by air, he said.

4 SHIPS RETURN THREE GENERALS AND 7,000 YANKS

New York, July 5—Four ships steamed into this port of embarkation today from Europe with a combined passenger list of more than 7,000 overseas veterans, the bulk of them reassignment troops.

Among the arrivals were three brigadier generals and 2,541 wounded men.

The Marine Dragon carried 3,088 reassigned men and the transport George Washington carried 2,541 wounded and 1,027 reassigned troops. The latter ship brought home advanced detachments of the 86th and 94th chemical mortar battalions, and the 661st and 820th tank destroyer battalions.

The one star generals on the Marine Dragon and their commands were: Aln D. Warnock of Atchison, Kas., 5th division; John L. McKee of Washington, D. C., 87th division, and Robert L. Dulaney of San Antonio, Tex., 44th division.

Two other ships, the Robert Harrison and the Charles Goodyear, landed an additional 737 army personnel, including a number of former war prisoners. The Harrison's passengers included members of the 1st and 3,444th ordnance companies, the 7th general dispensary company of the medical corps, the 311th army postal unit and the 68th finance disbursing section.

HEADQUARTERS OF 5 ARMY CORPS MOVED TO U. S.

Divisions on Way

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS]

The following United States army divisions left Europe recently for the United States:

Fifth [infantry], bound for Pacific after home leave; 8th [infantry], future status not determined; additional elements of 104th [infantry], bound for Pacific after home leave; and advance units of 13th [armored].

The following arrived in the United States yesterday:

At New York—Advanced detachments of 44th, 5th, and 87th infantry divisions, and elements of 95th division reconnaissance troops mechanized.

At Newport News, Va.—43d cavalry reconnaissance squadron and 772d tank battalion debarked as a whole among 3,473 troops selected from a number of other units.

PARIS, July 5 (AP)—Five United States army corps headquarters, including leadership which weighed heavily in defeating Germany, have left for the United States in the quickening redeployment, supreme headquarters announced today.

Some 55 units of 32,000 men left the Reims assembly area in the first four days of July en route to Le Havre and home, or to Marseille and the Pacific.

Corps headquarters which have sailed for home are Maj. Gen. James A. Van Fleet's 3d corps, which seized the Remagen bridgehead across the Rhine; Lt. Gen. Joseph L. Collins' 7th corps, which stopped an early Nazi counterattack at Mortain; Lt. Gen. A. C. Gillem Jr.'s 13th corps, which crossed the Rhine at Wesel; Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway's 18th air borne corps, which held Bastogne last December, and Maj. Gen. Clarence R. Huebner's 5th corps, which landed in Normandy on D-day.

Divisions Shift

A corps includes two or more divisions. Corps headquarters is the only permanent component of the corps, since divisions in actual battle may shift from one corps to another.

Headquarters announced that the 2d corps has been assigned to occupation and that six other corps are to be demobilized. These are the 12th, 15th, 16th, 19th, 20th, and 21st.

Five of the nine American divisions definitely earmarked for transfer from the European theater of operations to the Pacific via the United States either are partially on the high seas or have reached home, ports showed.

Troops already in America or on their way are from the 13th armored and the 86th, 95th, 97th, and 104th infantry divisions. Those ready or about ready to sail are from the 2d, 5th, 44th, and 87th infantry divisions.

The 4th division is reaching America now and the 8th is on the high seas, but neither is slated definitely for the Pacific.

Divisions Reassigned

Divisions to be redeployed or placed on inactive status are assigned to the charge of ETOUSA. Those not yet withdrawn from Germany and awaiting decision as to their future are assigned to supreme headquarters, pending transfer to ETOUSA if not put on permanent occupation detail.

NEGRO TROOPS' VALUE LAUDED BY PATTERSON

Washington, D. C., July 5 (AP)—Undersecretary of War Patterson said today the army is proud of its Negro soldiers and that he knows of no high ranking general who has condemned their performance.

Patterson thus took issue with Sen. Eastland [D., Miss.], who declared last week during senate debate on the fair employment practices committee that high ranking generals had told him on a recent overseas trip that Negro troops "would neither work nor fight."

Asked at a news conference whether Eastland's views represented those of the army, Patterson replied that he had no knowledge of any high ranking general making such a statement and that the expressed opinions of Generals Eisenhower, MacArthur, and others "do not support any such conclusion."

Motzko, divorced last October, told police he shot his wife when he learned that she had married a sailor, Bruno Wrona, stationed at Navy pier. He said he had gone to the apartment to see their two children and was hopeful that he might effect a reconciliation.

Motzko was turned over to North av. police to be booked.

DISSOLVE 15TH ARMY GROUP OF CLARK COMMAND

ROME, July 5 (AP)—The 15th army group, an over-all command of the American 5th and the British 8th armies, will be dissolved at midnight tonight, Gen. Clark announced today.

The American personnel will be transferred to Clark's new headquarters of United States forces in Austria.

No definite date has been announced when American and British occupational forces will move into Vienna. It was unofficially reported the movement would take place in mid-July.

Lt. Gen. Geoffrey Keyes, commander of the 2d corps of the 5th army, already has established headquarters at Salzburg.

Air Groups to Remain

ROME, July 5 (AP)—Three heavy bombardment groups, one fighter group and two night fighter squadrons from the United States army air forces in Italy—all veterans of more than two years' overseas service—have been designated to remain in Europe as part of the occupational air command.

Maj. Gen. J. M. Bevans, commander of the American air forces in the Mediterranean, announced that the units chosen are the 2d, 97th, and 99th heavy bombardment groups, the 79th fighter group, and the 416th and 417th night fighter squadrons.

2d Is Oldest Group

The 2d is the oldest United States heavy bombardment group, having originally been organized in France in 1918. It inaugurated shuttle bombing to Russia on June 2, 1944.

The 97th participated in the first high level daylight attack from England and was the first heavy group to reach North Africa. The 99th entered combat March 31, 1943, and holds two distinguished unit citations.

The 79th fighter group arrived in the middle east in October, 1942, fought as part of the British desert air force and later with the United States 9th and 13th air forces.

SOLDIERS FROM CANADA AGAIN RIOT IN ENGLAND

ALDERSHOT, England, July 5 [Reuters]—Canadian soldiers from the barracks here rioted in Aldershot town again tonight, causing even more damage than they did yesterday.

They surged thru the town for two hours and after a Canadian officer appealed to them in vain to return to barracks, two fire engines with bells clanging were driven thru the town in the hope of clearing the streets.

The officer said in his appeal "you are only giving us a bad name. Canadians are getting their fair share of boats but the shipping position is very difficult." He was alluding to the Canadians' grievance that they were not being repatriated speedily enough.

HUGE CHEMICAL TRUST OF NAZIS SEIZED BY YANKS

I. G. Farben Industrie Is Taken Over

HOESCHT, Germany, July 5 (AP)—In a sudden move today the American army seized complete control of the management, assets, and plants of the vast I. G. Farbenindustrie [German chemical trust] in the United States zone of occupied Germany and set in motion machinery intended to wipe out for all time the German ability to wage war.

Acting under genefal order No. 2, issued by Lt. Gen. Lucius Clay as deputy military governor, armed American troops marched simultaneously into 24 Farben plants at 6 p. m. and assumed control of properties which had played a great part in building up and maintaining the German war machine.

The action was taken to smash I. G. Farbenindustrie's world-wide cartel system and practices and break up the industry's war making power, which the United States group control council considers a "major threat to the peace and security of the post-war world so long as such industries remain within the control of Germany."

Allies to Control Plants

Control of the industry's management, assets and plants, which produced more than 50 per cent of Germany's supply of chemicals and allied products, is to be held for ultimate disposition by a four power government to be established for Germany.

[Another dispatch stated that all seized property except that needed by the allied nations will be destroyed and the control of plants and equipment not transferred to countries once occupied by the Germans will be dispersed and broken up.]

The great Farben plants produced about 80 per cent of Germany's entire nitrogen output, 100 per cent of the country's magnesium metal, 100 per cent of the tetra ethyl lead production, 100 per cent of the cellophane, approximately 80 per cent of the plastics, more than 50 per cent of the explosives and 100 per cent of the effective poison gas.

Colonel Seizes Plant

Clay delegated seizure authority to Col. Edwin S. Pillsbury of Berkeley, Cal., who directed the taking over of the giant Hoescht plant here, the largest of those seized.

Jeeps mounting machine guns rolled thru the streets to the plant and behind them marched troops under the command of Maj. William A. McKee, of Iowa City, Ia.

Officers immediately took action to see that the plant's operating efficiency was not impaired during a period of temporary idleness. The research laboratory was sealed and all record books, patents and processes were impounded.

The plant, which normally employed 12,000 persons, was virtually empty at the time. Its 3,500 employes had finished the day's work an hour earlier.

U. S. Controls Tempelhof

BERLIN, July 5 (AP)—Famed Tempelhof airdrome came under American control last midnight with Col. William J. Booth, Birmingham, Mich., in charge. The Americans had in operation within 30 minutes their first control tower.

The first planes arriving were part of the 301st troop carrier squadron, veterans of seven major campaigns. They were commanded by Capt. Robert G. Dean, New Milford, Pa.

Corp. A. T. Jentry, Baldwyn, Miss., a radio operator, said "setting this tower up in 30 minutes in heavy rain was nothing compared with the problem when the first soviet planes approached asking landing instructions in Russian."

Policy of Occupation

RED ARMY SECTOR BERLIN, July 5 [Reuters].—The first 48 hours of joint occupation of the German capital by forces of all four major allies indicates that decisions affecting the paramount issues of fraternization, political administration, propaganda, newspapers, films, and radio, food supplies, and transport, cannot long be delayed.

Here on the eastern side of the "frontier," which runs right across the center of the city and which is crossed at will by military personnel and civilians alike, troops of the major western allies are seeing for themselves how vast are the differences between the German administration of the Red army and that of the British and American authorities.

Red army soldiers, obviously on friendly terms with German civilians, frequent cinemas, variety shows, and concert halls with the Germans. Night clubs and even cabarets carry on a vigorous night life in several of the capital's best known thorofares.

German newspapers—the Berliner Zeitung and Taegliche Rundschau both controlled by the Red army—circulate freely in the zones of the western allies. The newspapers are giving publicity to the rebirth of the central committees of the German Communist party and the German Social Democratic party.

There is still no indication that the British and American policy towards the Germans will be other than strict enforcement of the nonfraternization principle.

Reds Still in U. S. Billets

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune]

BERLIN, July 5.—Altho the Russians formally turned over six boroughs in the southwestern part of Berlin to American military authorities yesterday, they were still occupying billets earmarked for United States troops and they continued to take an active part in the administration of the zone.

Incredible as it may seem, there had been no detailed planning in advance of American entry into the conquered capital for transfer of authority to the British and American forces or for coördination of the tripartite government which, it now appears, may be four sided, since the French were reported today to be preparing to occupy Reinickendorf, an island zone between the Russo-British zone in the northern suburb of the city.

There does not seem to be any ill will behind Russian reluctance to make their withdrawal from the American zone complete. It is rather that nobody on higher levels on either side seems to have taken the lower echelons into their confidence.

Reds Set Pace

The fact is that by barring American officials from Berlin for more than nine weeks after the Nazi capital fell the Russians have in one sense set the pace. They have chosen burgomeisters of the city's 20 boroughs and an oberburgomeister for the whole city.

An American military government official doubted that any Russian concessions would be counter-manded by the American or British occupying forces. However the problem of the mechanics of administering the city under four power control, he said, would probably have to be settled by Marshal Stalin, Prime Minister Churchill, and President Truman when they meet in the near future.

THE QUESTION

If you had a "double," what boring or distasteful task would you pass on to him or her?

WHERE ASKED

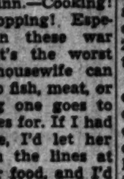
The Michigan av. bridge.

THE ANSWERS

Mrs. Sarah Grossman, 434 Roscoe st.—Housework! I'd stay in bed late in the morning and listen to my radio all day long. I'd enjoy doing nothing while "she" did the housework, scrubbing floors, washing clothes, and cleaning windows. I certainly dislike household chores, and it would be a pleasure to pass them off on somebody.

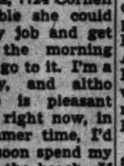
Midshipman John E. Houtman, Abbott hall—I'd tell the fellow he could have the job of getting up in the morning and shaving. If there's anything I dislike, in or out of the navy, it's waking out of a sound sleep early in the morning and having to get up, shower, and shave when I'd rather continue slumbering.

Mrs. Rhoda Hirsch, Oak Grove hotel, Minneapolis, Minn.—Cooking! And shopping! Especially in these war times, it's the worst job a housewife can have. No fish, meat, or anything one goes to the stores for. If I had a double, I'd let her stand in the lines at the shops, waiting for food, and I'd take it easy.



Midshipman John B. Kolcum, Abbott hall—I'd let my double press my trousers, do my laundry, especially the whites, and I'd take it easy. I think if there's any single thing a man hates to do, it's wash and press clothes. It's tedious and unrewarding. In the navy you have to keep your clothes shipshape. I'd just as soon pass the job on.

Miss Germaine Harris, 7724 Cornell av.—I'd tell my double she could have my job and get up in the morning early to go to it. I'm a secretary, and altho the job is pleasant enough, right now, in the summer time, I'd just as soon spend my time on the beach. If I had a double, SHE could go to work every day!



Radio Tech. S/c Earl Andrewson, 2426 N. Kildare av.—I tell you what I'd pass on to my double to do—work! I'd rather spend my time traveling, listening to good music by the hour, and playing golf. Doing a job, in or out of uniform, cuts in on one's pleasures. We never seem to have enough time to do the many things we'd like to do.

REVEAL HEROINE OF RESISTANCE IS AN AMERICAN

PARIS, July 5 (AP)—"Pauline" of the French resistance has emerged from the underground and is disclosed to be a product of Philadelphia's Main Line and New York's Park avenue. She is Mme. Jacques Allez, born Mary Astor Paul in Philadelphia. She is the former wife of Charles Munn, and the mother of Mrs. George F. Baker Jr., New York socialites.

"We still cannot tell the whole story of how things were done," the energetic gray haired woman said. "The trouble in Europe is not finished. Part of my work was to transmit messages to the American legation in Berne, to Robert Murphy [United States consul] in Africa, and to England.

"I had agents gathering information everywhere and I was known to them only as Pauline. They included waiters in restaurants patronized by Germans, shopkeepers, and servants. I carried messages in my shoe in summer and rolled in a garter in the winter."

HITLER'S TEETH 'IDENTIFIED' BY DENTIST'S AID

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

BERLIN, Germany, July 5—A woman to whom Adolf Hitler gave a capsule of cyanide of potassium to use in case she saw "no other way out" is one of the strongest witnesses to support the claim that Hitler is dead.

She is Kaete Haeusermann [nee Reiss], who was assistant to Hitler's dentist. The Russians took her to their headquarters in Buch, and asked her to identify bridgework on jawbones with teeth attached to them.

She asserted emphatically that the bridges and teeth of Hitler and Eva Braun were among them, because, as she later told friends, "they were unmistakable. I helped too often when Hitler and Eva were being treated not to be able to recognize their dentures and natural teeth."

Stationed Under Chancellery

Since 1937, Mrs. Haeusermann had been assistant to Dr. Hugo Blaschke, a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania who was a member of the Nazi party for years before the Nazis came into power. Blaschke treated most of the leading Nazis.

After the war began Hitler had special dental offices installed and equipped both in the underground shelters at the chancellery in Berlin and in shelters dug deep in the rock under his Berghof. Kaete Haeusermann spent months at the Berghof and in the chancellery.

During the last days of the battle of Berlin, Mrs. Haeusermann sought safety in the underground shelters of the chancellery. She said that while she was in the chancellery shelter, Nazis there told her that Hitler married Eva Braun legally April 28, and that both committed suicide by shooting themselves on April 30.

"But to make sure of his death Hitler also put a capsule of cyanide in his mouth and crushed it between his teeth at the same time as he shot himself," she said she was told.

She showed friends a capsule of poison she said Hitler had given her.

Wore Old Fashioned Crown

On May 9, Russian intelligence officers called Mrs. Haeusermann and showed her teeth, among which she identified those of Hitler and Eva Braun.

Hitler had a "window crown," which is old fashioned and only a few people have, and both a big lower bridge and an upper bridge with distinctive traits which she said she recognized. Eva Braun's bridgework was made by Fritz Echtmann, a technician in Blaschke's office, Mrs. Haeusermann said.

Mrs. Haeusermann returned home May 11, but a few days later she and Echtmann were summoned by the Russians. Neither has returned home.

[The Russians seem most anxious to keep secret anything they know concerning Hitler's death, Louis P. Lochner said yesterday in an Associated Press dispatch. One reason probably is the fact they are preparing a dramatic picture depicting the reichchancellery as they say they found it, the Berlin correspondent added.]

JEWELRY AND $80 STOLEN

Mrs. Etta May Frey of the Edgewater Beach hotel told police yesterday that her purse, containing a watch and a ring, both valued at $3,615, and $80, was stolen from a desk in the hotel writing room while she was addressing post cards.

Wins Decree

MRS. DOROTHY M'MANUS

Mrs. Dorothy McManus, 23, a former circus aerialist, yesterday was granted a divorce by Circuit Judge Julius H. Miner from her husband, George, 26, a music arranger, whom she charged with adultery thru bigamy.

Responding to questioning by William J. Terrell, her attorney, Mrs. McManus said her husband confessed to her in New York that he had wed, without benefit of divorce, a Mary Beecher in Charleston, S. C. Terrell introduced a letter from McManus which said that he and his new wife had taken up residence in Jacksonville Fla., "to save her face as well as my own."

Mrs. McManus, who at an earlier hearing had attempted to leap from a ninth floor window in the county building, was granted custody of the couple's son, Michael, 2, and $100 a month for support of herself and the boy. She resides at 641 Aldine av.

REDS SET UP 5 RATION GROUPS FOR BERLINERS

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

BERLIN, July 5—The Russians have issued new ration schedules, dividing the population into five groups. Hard workers get the biggest rations; ordinary workers, the second biggest; office employes rank third, children fourth, and a group of nonworkers listed as "sundry" get the smallest rations.

A hard worker is promised a daily ration of 20 ounces of bread, two and one-half ounces of noodles or a similar food, somewhat more than three ounces of meat, an ounce of fat, less than an ounce of sugar, and 13 ounces of potatoes. He is entitled to three ounces of real coffee and three ounces of ersatz coffee a month. Rations of the other groups are scaled downward until they reach a minimum of 10 ounces of bread and less than an ounce of meat daily for nonworkers.

Some Berliners said they hoped to get the rations promised but are skeptical about "the allies' ability or intentions of keeping their promises." Anti-Nazis say it is planned to put known Nazis in the food class lower than the one to which they ordinarily would be entitled.

Britain-Yugoslavia Wire Service in Effect Again

TWO CHICAGO BABIES DROWN IN CEDAR LAKE

Edwina Peterson and George Robert Lawrence, each 2 years old, drowned yesterday in Cedar Lake, Ind., where they had been wading in water two feet deep about eight feet from the shore.

The children had been playing in the back yard of a cottage occupied by their mothers, Mrs. Walter Peterson, 9215 Pleasant av., and Mrs. George Lawrence, 9220 Pleasant av.

When the women missed the children residents of the summer colony started a search. After searchers had failed to find the children among the cottages some one suggested they might have gone into the lake.

Kenneth Bean of 5659 Honore st. began swimming along the lake front. His attention was caught by a flash of red on the sandy bottom. It was a sweater worn by Edwina. A few feet away lay the body of George.

An inhalator squad from the Crown Point fire department attempted unsuccessfully to revive the youngsters.

Fathers of Both in Service

Mrs. Peterson, whose husband is in the navy, and Mrs. Lawrence, whose husband, a soldier, is recovering from wounds in a hospital, both were prostrated with grief. They had occupied the cottage a month. Neither has other children.

Both Edwina and George wore street clothes. They had been cautioned by their mothers not to go near the lake, Crown Point police said.

THAT FISHY ZIP TO YOUR WATER IS NOT HARMFUL

The slightly fishy taste and odor discernible in Chicago's drinking water is due to an increase in marine microorganisms which are not of a dangerous species, Public Works Commissioner Hewitt said yesterday. City Engineer W. W. DeBerard said that the daily check of coloform bacteria, the only kind that presents a health hazard, shows that there is nothing to fear in drinking city water. The only way to eliminate the fishy quality is thru complete filtration, which De Berard said is not possible with present facilities. Operation of the south side filtration plant, expected within a month, will obviate the annoyance in areas which it serves, he said.

HUMOR SUSTAINS YANKS HELD BY JAPS IN BURMA

Milwaukeean Tells Story of Rangoon Horrors

BY CARL WIEGMAN

An American sense of humor, plus supreme confidence in ultimate victory, saved the lives and sanity of many American soldiers imprisoned by the Japanese for months and years in filthy, disease choked cells in Rangoon, Burma. The story of the horrors and of how they were faced was told yesterday by Lt. Grant W. Erwin Jr. of Milwaukee, Wis., a bomber navigator, who was shot down Dec. 1, 1943, and liberated last May 3 when the British recaptured Rangoon.

Lt. G. W. Erwin Jr.

Erwin, a native Chicagoan, is spending part of his 60 day leave with friends, Mr. and Mrs. Myron T. Harshaw, 1173 Asbury av., Winnetka. During his 17 months' imprisonment he lost 60 pounds, but has regained them and now is in good health.

"In the Jap prison it was against the rules to talk to our cellmates, but of course this ban could not be enforced," he said. "To pass the time and to keep ourselves from going crazy, we had long arguments, mostly about things related to home.

Jam vs. Preserves for 3 Weeks

"Once we had an argument about the difference between preserves and jam. This lasted for three weeks, and at one time we got so mad we took pokes at each other. Of course we were so weak that nobody was hurt. There was one fellow who said his father was in the jam business, and he was very dogmatic in his opinions."

Another discussion, which kept them from facing reality for weeks, was an analysis of what they would do if they were locked up for 24 hours in Chicago's Palmer House. The talk was friendly until one of the prisoners said he intended to have cocktails in the hotel's Petite cafe.

"Another boy asserted that the hotel didn't have a Petite cafe," Erwin related. "We argued about that for a long time, without settling it. The fact is, the hotel does have a Petite cafe on the lobby floor.

Grand Piano in 5 Room House

"Another time we had a long discussion of what we would buy to furnish a five room house. We listed every item, even all the kitchen equipment. When we got to the living room, one of the boys said he would have a grand piano. Most of us thought a grand piano would be silly in a five room house, and we quarreled about it.

"We told each other in detail everything we could remember about our home towns. There was a fellow from San Antonio who told me so much about that place that I could get around there blindfolded. I told him all about Milwaukee and Chicago. Later we were separated, and reunited in a hospital in Calcutta. We said 'hello' to each other, but we couldn't think of anything else to say. We had said everything."

Erwin said the Japs' treatment of airmen was much worse than that given to captured members of the ground forces. The guards told them this discrimination was to punish the flyers for "indiscriminate" bombings, he said.

25 of 57 Die in 8 Months

After his bomber was shot down by Jap fighters 100 miles west of Rangoon, Burmese natives turned Erwin over to the Japanese. He said the Burmese were friendly and sympathetic, but mortally afraid of the Japs. Erwin was taken to Rangoon and locked up with 56 other captured allied airmen in a frame shack in the courtyard of the New Law Courts building, a modern structure erected by the British.

During the next eight months, 25 of the 57 prisoners died of beri-beri and dysentery, he said. Their diet consisted almost entirely of polished rice, which lacks vitamins. Occasionally they got a few vegetables. Imprisoned with them were thieves, murderers, sex criminals, spies, and other Burmese natives, many of them afflicted with skin diseases.

Once a week the prisoners were shackled in pairs and taken into the courtyard for a 15 minute sunbath timed by an alarm clock. Once a week they were permitted to wash in a trough. Erwin had no opportunity to shave for nine months, during which he grew a long beard. Jailers frequently grabbed the beard and held it while they beat him with a club.

Picking Up Butt Costs Life

One of the prisoners, an air forces captain from Texas, was beaten so severely that he died a day later. His offense was that a guard had seen him pick up a discarded cigaret butt. Erwin and his cellmates got their worst beating when guards caught them playing cards with a deck given to them by a political prisoner, an officer in the Jap sponsored Indian national army. For five weeks the cards had been a godsend, as they whiled away the time playing gin rummy, hearts and other games.

"We never could figure out the Jap mind, altho we developed and discarded many theories," Erwin said. "Most of the Japs seem to suffer from an inferiority complex. Realizing this, when the guards hit us, we pretended to fall heavily to the floor just to satisfy their ego.

Insist It's Nippon, Not Japan

"Not all the guards were brutal. Some of them slipped us cigarets and talked to us at length about their homes and families in Japan. But the discipline in the Jap army is so severe that they had to obey orders to mistreat us. Incidentally, they beat us whenever we used the word Japan. We were told to say Nippon."

Last July Erwin and the other airmen were moved to a regular prisoner of war compound, where conditions were somewhat better, altho the flyers were still segregated and kept on what the Japs called "half rations." In January, 1945, the Japs started getting a bit humane, apparently because they saw that the allied forces soon would retake Burma, Erwin said.

"Rations were improved, and medical attention was given to us," he continued. "The Jap doctors started a case book, recording every treatment in great detail. Plainly they wanted to set up some evidence to save their skins when their turn came."

Guards Flee and Leave Note

In April the Japs took 400 of the prisoners who were able to walk and started marching them away from Rangoon. With other weakened prisoners, Erwin was left behind because he had an abscess on his leg. Soon afterward, the few remaining Jap guards fled and left the following note to the prisoners:

"To all prisoners of Rangoon jail:

"To Gentlemen:

"Bravely you have come here to prison. We have gone keeping you prisoners safely with Nipponese knightship. Afterward we may meet again at the front somewhere. There let us fight bravely each other."

The note was signed: "Nipponese Army."

British troops reached Rangoon May 3, and Erwin and his fellow prisoners soon were in a Calcutta hospital. Blood transfusions and special diets helped them to get over the effects of Japanese "knightship."

BACK BROKEN, FIGHTER GREETS DAD ON HIS FEET

Pvt. Richard J. Dunn Jr., 21, of 1111 Sheridan rd., Wilmette, who suffered a broken back May 25 in the fighting on Okinawa, was on his feet and smiling when he was visited at Vaughan General hospital yesterday by his father and an uncle.

Pvt. Richard Dunn

"I suspected they thought they'd find me completely paralyzed," Dunn said later, "so I wanted to greet them standing."

Dunn Sr., an official of the Lumbermen's Mutual Casualty company, saw his son for the first time since he arrived here by plane July 2. They walked together around the hospital's grounds.

Buried in a Cave

Dunn was injured in the collapse of a cave, which he referred to as "the horseshoe tombstone," when a Jap artillery shell struck near it. Only his hand projected above the rubble but it was enough to guide a buddy, Joseph Mazak, who lives on the northwest side of Chicago, to his rescue.

"Everything blacked out when the shell hit," Dunn said. "I didn't come to until I was back in battalion headquarters."

Dunn is in a cast which permits him to stand or lie, but not to sit. He will be in it for another three or four months.

A veteran of the fighting on Leyte, he said the Okinawa campaign was 10 times "tougher."

"We chased the Japs on Leyte," he said, "but they were waiting for us on Okinawa. If the whole island had been fortified like the southern end, it would have taken us a year to clean out the Japs. There were only 20 men left of the 200 in my group."

Dunn, a graduate of the Boston Latin school, was in his second year at Yale university when he enlisted in the army in 1943. He has two sisters and five brothers, one of whom is a medical student in the navy.

OFFICER SAVED TWICE BY FATE IN SUB LOSSES

The navy department's announcement yesterday of the probable loss of the submarine Trigger brought to light a quirk of fate that doubtless saved the life of one of her former officers. On an earlier occasion fate also intervened to save him.

Lt. Ronald H. Smith.

The officer is Lt. [j.g.] Ronald H. Smith, 25, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert M. Smith of 2141 Evans rd., Flossmoor, where his wife, Carlisle, and infant daughter are staying. He is now on duty in this country.

Lt. Smith, a graduate of the Illinois Institute of Technology, while serving aboard the Trigger some months ago, suffered an attack of appendicitis in port. He was operated upon and the Trigger later left without him.

In June, 1943, he was assigned to the submarine R-12 off the east coast. At the last minute he was called back for classwork. The R-12 went down, apparently because of an accident, the navy announced.

PACIFIC BATTLE SHIFTS HEAVY, SAYS PATTERSON

Washington, D. C., July 5 [Special]—Undersecretary of War Patterson announced today that a large number of troops has been deployed from the United States to the Pacific. He said he could not make public exact figures, but "you may accept my assurance that the figure is large and that the Japanese soon will feel the force of our increased air and ground strength."

CONGRESS ASKED TO SPEED PEACE DRAFT PROGRAM

Plan Is Called Key Step in U. S. Security

BY LAURENCE BURD
(Chicago Tribune Press Service)

Washington, D. C., July 5—Prompt congressional adoption of a compulsory post-war universal military training program was urged today by a special house committee as a key step in the nation's future security and in world peace.

Rep. Woodrum

The committee, headed by Rep. Woodrum [D., Va.] and assigned to study post-war military problems, declared that an "indispensable" element in the nation's defense is an alert and trained citizens' reserve army built up by universal training.

Termed World Assurance

The report said such a program will further assure the world that the United States means to retain the necessary strength to support the security charter drafted in San Francisco.

The report, made after extensive public hearings, was signed by 16 of the 22 committee members. The other six withheld judgment.

The future security of the United States as a sovereign nation depends on a willingness to protect peace ideals by force, if necessary, the report said.

Warning that the peace might be lost by a "retrogression" to the pre-war state of unpreparedness, the report said it is unlikely that a possible future aggressor would give this nation time to build defense forces from untrained men.

Large Army Plan Rejected

The committee rejected the idea of a "large standing army" as repugnant to Americans and too costly, and concluded that the answer in the "critical years ahead" lies in a citizens' reserve.

While the report did not detail a specific training plan, it proposed that such a program should:

1. Place primary emphasis on training men for military service under conditions of modern warfare.

2. Conform with requirements which experience demonstrates are necessary to prepare men "effectively" for military service.

3. Be universal and democratic, applicable to rich and poor alike, with minimum exemptions or exceptions.

4. Fit into the existing structure of army and navy establishments.

Would Preserve Corps

5. Allow for preservation of existing reserve corps, such as the National Guard, reserve officers' training corps, the naval reserve, and the naval militia.

6. Cause the least possible interference with trainees' education and careers, consistent with effective military training.

7. Provide for training only and not require military service, which would be invoked only in a national emergency declared by congress.

The six congressmen who did not sign the report were Bulwinkle [D., N. C.], Sheppard [D., Cal.], Bradley [D., Pa.], Arends [R., Ill.], Allen [R., Ill.] and Short [R., Mo.].

Rep. Arends, minority house whip, said in a statement that he has "an open mind" on the compulsory training issue and that the matter may be approached more intelligently after the war ends and action on the San Francisco charter is completed.

265,000 NATIVE OKINAWANS NOW WARDS OF army

GUAM, July 6 [Friday] (AP)—United States military government authorities are caring for about 265,000 civilians on Okinawa and 5,000 to 7,000 on the little island of Kume to the west, Adm. Nimitz announced today. Okinawans from the north and south are continuing to come in and report to the military government, a bulletin disclosed.

Crops and live stock on Kume are estimated to be sufficient to support the population there, Nimitz said. He did not mention the food situation on Okinawa, which even in peace time was not self-supporting.

Three U. S. Air Fleets Hit Japan and Korea

MANILA, July 6 [Friday]—(AP)—Gen. MacArthur has flung his air forces against the Japanese homeland for the first time, operating from Okinawa, he disclosed today.

Thirty-six hours after they landed on Okinawa, fighters and bombers roared off on an unchallenged sweep over the southern Japanese Island of Kyushu.

The type of bombers which attacked Kyushu were not identified, but they would have to be long range to operate the 1,045 miles from northern Luzon.

"This is just the start," said Gen. Kenney, commander of the far east air forces. "We will continue to hammer Japan until she accepts unconditional surrender."

The raids were staged July 3. The first blows landed on the cities of Tojimbara, Byu, Izumi, Chiran, and Omura.

Mustangs strafed against moderate to heavy anti-aircraft fire as the raiders swept the skies for two hours.

GUAM, July 6 [Friday]—(AP)—Navy Privateers attacked Korea for the first time in the war July 4, striking rail communications, power houses, and other installations, Adm. Nimitz announced today.

The Privateers sank a submarine chaser and one other small vessel going in and left two trawlers sinking off the China coast.

Two railroad bridges were destroyed and several railroad tunnels blocked in the Korean attacks. Two locomotives were blown up and a number of others damaged. Powerhouses and other installations were bombed. The following day seaplanes of the same wing sank a small coastal cargo ship in the China sea.

Army Thunderbolts struck Kyushu, southernmost Japanese home island, the same day. Corsair fighters and Avenger torpedo planes struck Okimoyerabu and Kikai islands in the southern Ryukyu Islands, damaging small craft and starting a number of fires.

GUAM, July 6 [Friday]—(AP)—Nearly 100 Iwo based Mustangs of the United States 7th army air force raided air fields in the Tokyo area yesterday for the second day and ripped dock and warehouse targets in Tokyo bay.

The Japanese air force defending Tokyo again failed to show up against the Mustangs which the day before had broadcast a challenge to the foe. Sustaining a daily attack on Japan and empire waters the Mustangs strafed Shimodate and Yatabe air fields northeast of the capital city.

Five enemy planes were destroyed and 10 damaged in yesterday's strike, making a total of 48 shot down, destroyed or damaged in two days. The raiders fired rockets into hangars and maintenance shops, sank a small boat and damaged 12 others.

Six Japanese vessels were sunk by Privateers and mariners in attacks off southern Korea and in the East China sea July 4 and 5.

Air Field Falls to Australians

AUSTRALIANS TAKE 2D BORNEO AIR FIELD; WIN ALL BALIKPAPAN

BALIKPAPAN, Borneo, July 6 [Friday]—(AP)—A swift five mile advance gave Australian troops possession of the Manggar air field 10 miles northeast of here Wednesday. The thrust came after American planes eliminated Japanese positions with some of the most spectacular bombing of this campaign. It is the second air field taken since the invasion began July 1.

Other Aussie units captured the remainder of the town of Balikpapan as a five mile wide front on the left flank was advanced thru one strong enemy line and overran delaying positions in the direction of Batochampar, four miles northeast.

One squadron of 13th air force Liberators piloted by Americans blew sky high an entire dominating ridge packed with Japanese guns and troops. "We could see Jap arms, legs, torsos, and light artillery flying into the sky," said one returning bombardier.

JAPS KILL TWO AUSSIE WRITERS IN BALIKPAPAN

NEAR BALIKPAPAN, July 4 [Delayed] (AP)—Two Australian war correspondents were killed yesterday by Japanese machine gun fire at a building in the ruins of northern Balikpapan.

They were William Smith, Australian department of information reporter sometimes called the Australian Ernie Pyle, and John Elliott, news commentator for the Australian broadcasting commission. Officers said they had wandered ahead of the Australian lines to within 300 yards of the enemy. When the bodies were recovered, Smith's notebook was open and his pen was in his hand.

The press corps attended burial services today. Eighteen Australian correspondents and photographers have been killed in all theaters of war.

SHOE FIRM SUSPENDED

Gamble-Skogmo, Inc., 3750 W. 35th st., shoe wholesaler and retailer, has been suspended for 20 days from dealing in rationed shoes, effective July 15, the Chicago area office of price administration said yesterday. OPA Hearing Commissioner Thomas E. Fairchild found a discrepancy in the firm's shoe inventory.

NEW SPAATZ JOB TO LEVEL JAPAN WITH HIS B-29s

Washington, D. C., July 5 (AP)—The man who directed the smashing of Germany from the air today was assigned to do the same thing to Japan. The war department placed Gen. Spaatz in charge of the B-29s now leveling Nippon's cities.

Gen. Spaatz

Spaatz, now in Washington for conferences, will be commander of the United States army strategic air force in the Pacific, the same type of job he had in the Mediterranean, in Great Britain, and in Europe.

Spaatz's headquarters for the stepped-up bombing of Japan was not designated. He will be in charge of the 20th and the 8th air forces, equipped with B-29s, with their own fighter cover. Under Spaatz as deputy will be Lt. Gen. Barney Giles. The 20th will be under Maj. Gen. Lemay. The 8th will be under Lt. Gen. Doolittle.

Arnold Still Big Chief

Over the whole show will be Gen. Arnold, as commander in chief of the entire United States army air corps.

The 20th is the original Super Fortress air force. Headquarters now in Washington, will be moved to the Pacific theater, Gen. Lemay has been chief of the 21st bomber command of the 20th air force.

Six Cities Eliminated

Undersecretary of War Patterson, announcing the new setup, commented:

"The step has been found necessary because of the greatly increased size and activity of the B-29 effort made possible by redeployment from Europe."

Patterson said the bombers already have eliminated six major Japanese cities as current targets and now are going to work on 40 or more secondary cities.

There still will be tactical air forces operating from various bases, Patterson indicated. The 13th, 5th, and 7th air forces probably will draw this assignment. The 7th is already redeployed onto Okinawa and its fighters raked the enemy homeland yesterday.

Japs See 1,000 Plane Raids

San Francisco, Cal., July 5 (AP)—Japan forecast a possibility today of being bombed by 1,000 American B-29s and took steps to cushion the impending blows with propaganda measures.

Domei news agency acknowledged concern over 1,000 Super Fortress raids but at the same time contended there was "nothing to fear," Domei said no matter how great the American air power became, it could not carry out effective raids against the mainland because of lack of sufficient bases.

BUILD 25 MILES OF RUNWAY ON OKINAWA STRIPS

Smallest Is Twice the Size of La Guardia

GUAM, July 6 [Friday]—(AP)—Col. George Mayo, air engineer for the army air forces, said today that air field construction plans for Okinawa call for more than 25 miles of paved runways for the final all-out air assault on Japan.

The paved aircraft parking areas, taxiways and service aprons of these air fields will have an area equal to 400 miles of two lane highway, and the smallest of these air fields will handle twice as much traffic as New York's La Guardia field.

"Soon we shall see twice as many aviation engineers in the Pacific as ever served in the European and Mediterranean theaters combined," he said.

Cut Down 50 Foot Hills

To level some of the air strips, aviation engineers, ground engineers, and Seabees have cut down coral hills 50 feet high and have filled ravines 40 feet deep.

The engineers must move—with dynamite, shovels, bulldozers, and trucks—approximately 21,500,000 cubic yards of coral earth, or a cone shaped mountain a mile high and 2,000 feet around the bottom. Plans call for enough heavy duty roads paved with coral to equal a highway from Boston to Richmond, Va.

Greatest Ever Seen

Completing an inspection tour of aviation engineer troops and projects in the Pacific, Mayo called air field construction on Okinawa "the greatest concentration of military engineering effort ever seen in the world."

He did not disclose how many construction engineers are at work or the number of air strips being built.

Mayo declined to give the date when construction would be completed but expressed confidence that schedules calling for "the greatest island air base ever seen" would be met if favorable weather holds out.

Gen. Rockey Gets Geiger's Former Marine Command

OKINAWA, July 5 (AP)—Maj. Gen. Keller E. Rockey, who commanded the 5th marine division in the Iwo Island campaign, has succeeded Lt. Gen. Roy S. Geiger as commanding general of the marine 3d amphibious force. Geiger has gone to Pearl Harbor to become commanding general of all fleet marine forces in the Pacific ocean areas.

DESTROYER HIT BY 4 SUICIDISTS; FIGHTS ON, LIVES

Plane Rips 2 Ships; 175 Casualties

explosion indicated the plane's bomb load had let go.

The wounded Newcomb lost all electric and steam power, her engine rooms in wreckage, ammunition magazines afire and gun handling rooms blazing. The afterstack, torpedo mounts, amidships structure, and 40 mm. mounts had been blown over the side. The ship came to a stop as smoke and flames shot 1,000 feet high.

Yank Guns Still Roar

Ships in the vicinity watched in amazement as gunners amid the destruction still fired at suicidist No. 6. The gunners hit it, but the plane plowed into the forward stack, spraying more gasoline over the melting mass amidships.

Despite heavy seas and danger of a blast from the Newcomb's magazines, Lt. Leon Grabowsky, 27, Paterson, N. J., the commander, maneuvered the Leutze into rescue position.

"The Newcomb was littered with debris," the navy related. "Burned and wounded men lined her decks. Wounded were carrying wounded. Amidships fire fighters were trying to use portable pumps to extinguish fires billowing from the deep cavity where the firerooms had been. Yet, when the Leutze pulled alongside, she was greeted with cheers and waving hands."

The heat forced about 100 men on the Newcomb's fantail to hit the water.

No. 7 Hits the Jackpot

No. 7 then came in to crash dive both ships. Both destroyers met him with steel, the Leutze firing across the Newcomb, which was "forced to fire and train manually."

The suicidist, hit in the wing, skidded across the Newcomb's deck and rammed the stern of the Leutze. The rescue ship, hit hard, began to drift away as her crew fought her fires and aided wounded.

Within 30 minutes the Newcomb's fires were out and she was soon in tow for a repair base.

The navy told many stories of heroism aboard the Newcomb.

Lt. [j. g.] C. H. Gedge, formerly of River Forest, Ill., directed the firing of the 40 and 20 mm. machine guns until the action was over and then supervised the jettisoning of depth charges.

Fires threatened to engulf two after-handling rooms and magazines. Lt. [j. g.] David W. Owens, Waukesha, Wis., helped a group extinguish magazine fires and remove burning powder cans.

OCEAN FLIGHTS HAILED AS CITY'S AIR HUB CHANCE

Service to Orient Viewed as Next Opportunity

Chicago's designation by the civil aeronautics board as western terminal of three transatlantic air routes was hailed yesterday by Mayor Kelly and aviation leaders as providing a long sought opportunity to develop Chicago into a world aviation center.

In preparation for the planes that are expected to fly between London and the Chicago airport in 14 hours and 46 minutes, Public Works Commissioner Hewitt said the airport's present terminal building will house immigration and customs officials as well as a postoffice for international mail.

'Historic Decision'—Kelly

Mayor Kelly, at his summer home at Eagle River, Wis., termed the CAB action "a decision of far reaching and historic importance." The transatlantic flights will be inaugurated here, at a date as yet unspecified, by Pan American Airways, Inc., American Export Lines, Inc., and Transcontinental & Western Air, Inc. [TWA].

"By this recognition, Chicago has the opportunity to develop into a great world center of air travel and transport," Mayor Kelly said.

"With the establishment of these direct air services from Chicago to Europe and to the middle east, it no longer will be necessary to travel a thousand miles or more to an eastern seaboard to cross the Atlantic."

Ben Regan, chairman of the Illinois Aeronautics commission, pointed out that from a geographical point of view Chicago already is the aviation center of the world.

"We now must make doubly sure that our airport facilities keep pace with the tremendous demand which these new international air routes presage," Regan declared.

Flights to Orient Next

Louis E. Leverone, president of the Illinois Aviation conference and chairman of Gov. Green's commission to make Chicago the aviation center of the world, said the transoceanic flights foreshadow an inevitable development to make Chicago the hub of world air travel into the Orient after the war.

"Economically and geographically, Chicago is destined to be the world's future air capital," Leverone predicted. "First it will develop as the western terminus for European flights. Next it will be the originating point for flights to the Far East."

Philip Harrington, chairman of the Chicago transit commission, observed that the new air routes constitute "another good reason why Chicago's local transportation, superhighways, and rapid transit must be streamlined to make all focal points in the metropolitan area easily accessible" to national and international airways.

THIS APPEARS TO END TALE OF DECATUR SHORTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Decatur, Ill., July 5—Unconditional surrender by Decatur's young women and girls to Police Chief H. J. Schepper's "no shorts" order was apparent in a survey of this city today.

The chief issued an order Monday banning the wearing of shorts not reaching to the knees by women on streets, buses, and in taverns. His officers Tuesday stopped several scores of women on the streets and ordered them to go home for more clothes.

Not a single woman wearing shorts was seen in public here today and talk of rebellion, prevalent Tuesday and yesterday, had died down. Altho Decatur has no ordinance prohibiting the wearing of shorts, Chief Schepper has threatened arrests if necessary. No arrests have been made.

WOMAN PLUNGES TO DEATH FROM HOTEL WINDOW

Mrs. Fannie C. Levinson, 65, plunged to her death late yesterday from her apartment on the 15th floor of the Flamingo hotel, 5520 South Shore dr. Police said she toppled from the window and carried the screen with her. No notes were found in the room, where she had been alone.

Her former husband, Atty. Harry C. Levinson, obtained a divorce in December, 1927, after complaining that she had been too friendly with his best friend. He was found dead in a loop hotel in March, 1928.

When he obtained the divorce, Atty. Levinson established a trust fund for Mrs. Levinson. A few days after the divorce was granted, Mrs. Levinson swallowed poison in the Flamingo hotel in a supposed suicide attempt, but recovered.

Three Companies Given Air Routes to Europe, Asia, and Africa

ATLANTIC LANES APPROVED FOR 3 U. S. AIR LINES

and on Jan. 30 the CAB examiner who had conducted hearings recommended that the North Atlantic overseas routes be given to Pan American and American Export. The examiner recommended that the applications of TWA and eight other companies be denied.

Oral arguments were heard by the board later in which all the companies again presented their requests for routes, Shafer said, with the result that the board tossed aside the examiner's recommendation and granted TWA a share in the international field while otherwise accepting the recommendations.

He asserted the board's action has by-passed the senate commerce subcommittee which is entrusted with formulating America's commercial air policy and which is still undecided whether domestic air lines should be allowed to engage in international business.

The board said that while the necessary permits for the three lines to fly into and thru some foreign countries involved have not been obtained, it believes that operations over parts of the routes can begin without awaiting the conclusion of diplomatic arrangements with all countries concerned.

The board also announced that it has approved the acquisition of American Export Airlines, Inc., by American Airlines, Inc. The latter will pay 3 million dollars for 120,000 unissued shares of capital stock, thus obtaining control. The board said that dissolution of Export Airlines is not contemplated and that the name is to remain unchanged and the company is to operate as a separate entity.

The board had ordered on July 30, 1942, that American Export Lines, Inc., a steamship company, divest itself of control of American Export Airlines. Under the new agreement the steamship company will retain its holdings of approximately 24 per cent of the stock in the air line, the CAB said.

Pan American is the only American company that had permanent authorization to fly the North Atlantic. Export Lines had a temporary permit and operated from New York to Foynes, Eire. TWA has done extensive overseas flying during war time.

Air Routes Authorized

The routes each line is authorized to fly follow:

TWA: From points in the United States thru Newfoundland and then, over a northern leg, to Foynes, Paris, Bern, Rome, Athens, Cairo, Jerusalem, Basra, Tehran, and Bombay, and over a southern route from Newfoundland to Lisbon, Madrid, Algiers, Tunis, Tripoli, Bengasi, and Cairo. It also is permitted to operate over a southern route via Lisbon and Madrid to Rome, where it will connect with services of the northern leg of its route.

American Export: Thru Labrador, Greenland, and Iceland to Stavanger, Stockholm, Helsinki, Leningrad, and Moscow, and via Newfoundland, thru the Azores and to Foynes, Glasgow, London, Amsterdam, Copenhagen, Berlin, Warsaw, and Moscow.

Pan American: Its present certificate to operate thru Bermuda and the Azores to Portugal and thence to London and Marseille, France, and thru Newfoundland and Eire to London is extended thru Europe and the near east to Calcutta, India, via the following intermediate points: Brussels, Prague, Vienna, Budapest, Belgrade, Bucharest, Istanbul, Ankara, Beirut, Baghdad, Tehran, and Karachi.

POLES HERE SHOCKED BY NOD TO WARSAW; HIT RED DOMINATION

Announcement that the United States and Great Britain have recognized the reconstituted Polish government evoked expressions of shocked disbelief among Polish-American leaders in Chicago yesterday.

"It doesn't seem possible," declared John A. Stanek, president of the Polish Alma Mater. "We all hoped that the United States would withhold recognition until the true purposes and aims of the new Warsaw government became clear. It is completely under the influence of Moscow which is an awful thing for the independence of Poland."

Many Chicagoans of Polish extraction asserted that the presence of former members of the London government in the new "unity" cabinet is a meaningless gesture. Karol Piatkiewicz, publisher of the Polish Daily Zgoda, declared they comprise a small minority.

N. Y. NEWSPAPER STRIKERS TOLD TO END DISPUTE

Washington, D. C., July 5 (AP)—The war labor board today notified the newspaper mail deliverers' union which is striking against New York newspapers to take steps to return to work by tomorrow at 10 a. m. or face the loss of retroactive pay adjustments.

The board wired Joseph Simons, president of the union, and Louis Waldman, attorney for the 1,700 strikers, saying that unless the board is notified by 10 a. m. Friday "that the union has taken the necessary steps promptly to terminate the strike, the board in executive session will take under consideration the advisability of amending the June 14, 1945, interim order of the newspaper commission insofar as benefits accrue to the union and to its members under that order."

This would mean that any pay increases or agreements by the newspapers to meet the union demand for a 3 per cent royalty on pay rolls for a union welfare fund, would not be retroactive to July 1 but would be effective only when an agreement is concluded.

OTHER AMERICAS ARE WARMING UP TO U. S.—WATSON

A new spirit of friendliness toward the United States exists in Central and South American republics, Dudley Crafts Watson, membership lecturer of the Chicago Art institute, said yesterday.

Dr. Watson, who recently returned from a 15,000 mile tour of 15 countries to the south, said the South American attitude has changed in the late two and one half years from a feeling that we were trying to use them to a belief that we are trying to help them. He credited this new sentiment to effective American diplomacy.

Dr. Watson, who was accompanied by his wife as assistant, went to South America on a research and study trip to collect material for a new series of lectures.

ORDER HEARING ON SUIT TO BAN RELIGION CLASS

Champaign, Ill., July 5 (AP)—A motion to quash Mrs. Vashti McCollum's religious education suit against the Champaign board of education was overruled today by Circuit Judge Frank B. Leonard who asked that John L. Franklin, school board attorney, file his pleading by July 30.

Judge Leonard set a hearing on the case for Aug. 3.

On June 18, the school board asked dismissal of Mrs. McCollum's suit, which seeks to ban religious education in Champaign's public schools.

NAZI MARCH OF DEATH BARED; 930 BODIES DUG UP BY CZECHS

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, July 5 (AP)—Bodies of 930 persons who died in a gestapo march of death were recovered by Czechoslovak authorities who completed opening eight mass graves near Karlsbad yesterday.

Czech officials said Canadian and New Zealand prisoners of war probably were among the victims, but none had been positively identified as such. Some 587 bodies still are unidentified.

Among the identified victims were 120 Poles, 87 Russians, 38 Frenchmen, eight Italians, 15 Belgians, 12 Slovenes, 6 Czechs, a Greek, and a Lithuanian. Forty-four were women and one was a child.

The 100-mile march of death took place in the last weeks of the war as the Germans emptied their central and eastern prisons and concentration camps and tried to mass thousands of prisoners in the Theresianstadt camp north of Prague. Survivors said hundreds were slain near Karlsbad because they were too weak to hike farther and that others had died of fatigue.

Sends Monkeys to Zoo; Sad, but Escapes Fine

Edward Melind's monkey cages in the yard of his home at 2236 Melrose st. stood empty yesterday, and the monkeys disported themselves at the Lincoln Park zoo, where Melind watched them nostalgically. The monkeys were turned over to the zoo after Municipal Judge Edward P. Luczak fined him $100 and costs for violating the city's sanitary code. After he got rid of the monkeys the court vacated the fine.

AIRLINES PLAN ¾ BILLION FOR NEW EQUIPMENT

Washington, D. C., July 5 (AP)—Nineteen American air lines expect to purchase 750 million dollars' worth of new planes and ground equipment within the next five years, the Air Transport Association of America reported today.

Huge air liners, cruising at speeds up to more than 340 miles an hour, equipped with new flying comforts, and virtually immune to flight cancellations because of weather conditions, are among those on order or tentatively bid for, the association reported after a survey.

409 to Cost 300 Million

The air lines now have an option on 409 new planes to be in service in 1946-'47—at a cost of 300 million dollars—but they said the figures were expected to reach the 750 million dollar mark several years afterward.

Added to 564 planes now being flown by the lines, the additions would bring to 973 the total available for 1946-'47, seating 36,180 passengers, and capable of operating six billion or eight billion passenger miles a year.

The survey said the new models would incorporate many war developed improvements in design, speed, and detail.

Planes on order or tentatively bid for include such models as the DC-Skymaster, the CW-203 Curtiss Commando, and the huge Mars flying boat.

Some Tested by Military

Others are being tested by the military, if not already on schedule, such as the C-69 Constellation and the C-97 Stratocruise, the transport version of the B-29 Super Fortress.

Here is a bird's-eye view of some of the flying prospects as envisioned by the survey:

Transcontinental flights reduced far below the present 12-14 hour schedules; virtual "trolley car" schedules for fairly short trips; double decker trans-oceanic planes, equipped with movies and telephone service; pressurized cabins to maintain low altitude conditions at "over-the-weather" heights, and virtual elimination of canceled schedules resulting from weather because of such scientific advances as radar and other electronic devices.

STARTING YOUR DAY RIGHT is part of our job

A cup of steaming fresh coffee is the breakfast springboard that launches most of us on our day's activities. It's one of those small luxuries that Americans have come to depend upon.

Your supply of breakfast coffee is as near as the shelves of your local stores. But it travels far to reach those shelves, and the Illinois Central brings it a good part of the way.

Coffee's long journey begins at Latin-American ports in the holds of ships that steam northward for many days. At New Orleans, the bags are unloaded at the great Poydras coffee wharf and hauled to the Illinois Central's long coffee shed. There we load 32 freight cars at a time and start them on their way to processors who roast, blend and package coffee. Then we take over again as the coffee travels to your local merchants and to you.

That's why we say—"Starting your day right is part of our job."

Delivering foods at low cost is one of many services the American people rely on railroads to perform. After Victory, the Illinois Central looks forward to providing finer transportation, thanks to new materials, improved methods and knowledge gained serving America at war.

REVEAL ELLIOTT GOT $33,438 ON RADIO COLLAPSE

Received More Than He Paid on Loans

BY CHARLES GOTTHART
(Chicago Tribune Press Service)

Wilmington, Del., July 5—Brig. Gen. Elliott Roosevelt, whose loans of at least $320,000 to promote an unsuccessful radio chain are under congressional investigation, collected $33,438 in the liquidation of the company, court records disclosed today.

The second son of the late President acted thru his attorney in obtaining checks for $25,486 and $7,952 as his pro rata share of the remaining assets of the chain—Transcontinental Broadcasting System, Inc.

This is far in excess of the amount known thus far to have been repaid the three men who advanced the $320,000—John Hartford, president of the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company; David G. Baird, New York insurance official, and Maxwell H. Bilofsky, New York stock broker and radio equipment manufacturer.

Plans No Statement

Congressional committees are investigating claims for income tax deductions entered as the result of losses on the loans, and the political motives behind them. Randolph E. Paul, former assistant to Treasury Secretary Morgenthau, who has been retained by Elliott, said in Washington today that Elliott has no plans to issue a statement at this time and that he [Paul] does not plan to make any statement at this time on Elliott's behalf.

Elliott had entered a claim for $70,000 against the company in which he owned 4,000 shares of stock, reportedly purchased with the loan proceeds. His attorney at that time, Milton Diamond, 598 Madison av., New York City, listed him as owning a 40 per cent interest in the chain. His $33,438 return represented 40 per cent of the $83,579 total dissolution distribution shared by all of the 19 stockholders.

Claims entered by the group in receivership proceedings before Chancellor William W. Harrington of Delaware, chancery court here, were based on a cost price of $17.50 a share and the payments to shareholders in the distribution of assets amounted to $8.35 a share.

Had $165,000 Assets

Elliott appears as president and director of the chain in only one of the many documents on file here and at the office of secretary of state at Dover, Del. This is the one in which gross assets of $165,000 are claimed for Transcontinental as of Nov. 30, 1939, a month after its incorporation.

By Dec. 16, 1940, after the appointment of receivers on petition of the 18 other stockholders, the receivers counted assets of only $94,444 and Elliott was listed only as a stockholder and not an officer or director.

At the time of dissolution, decreed formally on Sept. 3, 1941, the president was George O. Sutton, National Press building, Washington, D. C.

Treasurer Had 15%

The largest individual shareholder after Elliott, was H. J. Brennan, treasurer of the company, of 830 Valley View rd., Mount Lebanon, Pa., listed for a 15 per cent interest in the chain. The holder of a 14 per cent interest, Robert M. Thompson, 58 Granview av., Crafton, Pa., was secretary.

William A. Porter of the Investment building, Washington, D. C., and George J. Podeyn, General Electric building, New York City, were vice presidents, but were not listed as stockholders. The only document listing Elliott as president also showed John T. Adams, General Electric building, New York City, as chairman of the board, a title that does not appear in any of the other papers. Adam's salary claim of $6,528 was turned down entirely by the chancellor. Adams was not a stockholder.

In addition to the payments of $83,579 to Elliott and the other stockholders, the balance of the assets went to lawyers and other creditors, the largest amount, $5,673, going to the New York law firm of Breed, Abbott, and Morgan.

U. S. SUBMARINE AND CREW OF 80 LOST ON PATROL

Washington, D. C., July 5 (AP)—The submarine Trigger, with 80 to 85 officers and men, is overdue from patrol and presumed lost, the navy announced today. It was the 45th United States submarine lost in the war.

The Trigger won the Presidential unit citation on her fifth, sixth, and seventh war patrols.

CHURCHILL CLAIMS MAJORITY IN BIG ELECTION TURNOUT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, July 6 [Friday]—The Conservative party last night confidently claimed Prime Minister Churchill's government had been returned to power in yesterday's national election. The prime minister after examining the reports of the heavy polling said: "We are satisfied we are going to get a good majority." Best informed circles suggested the Conservatives and their supporters would have fewer than 100 more seats than the opposition.

Labor party predictions were more cautious. Its organ, the Daily Herald, estimated the Laborites had won 100 seats previously held by the Conservatives. In the last parliament Laborites totaled 166. To hold a bare majority of one over the opposition, a party must win 321 seats in the new parliament.

Altho 70 to 80 per cent of the voters turned out the polling day passed quietly. Few disturbances were reported except in areas where numerous electors found they were excluded from the voting register. The trouble arose mainly as a result of the transfer of workers from one district to another and the return of evacuees. Ballots will not be counted until July 26 after the service votes are all returned.

CHINESE CLOSING ON THREE MORE EX-U. S. FIELDS

CHUNGKING, China, July 5 (AP)—Chinese troops have closed within 5 to 15 miles of three more former United States air bases which were abandoned to the Japanese in 1944. In the southern tip of China they have recaptured Fahsien, highway hub on the approach to enemy held Hainan Island, the Chinese high command announced today.

The new thrusts threatened the enemy grip on former 14th air force bases at Shaoyang, 235 miles northeast of Liuchow; at Tanchuk, 100 miles southeast of Liuchow, and at Kanhsien, in Kiangsi province 210 miles northeast of Canton.

Liuchow, site of one of Maj. Gen. Chennault's lost bomber bases, already has been retaken.

GREEK BORDER SHIFT ASKED BY SOFIANOPOULOS

John Sofianopoulos, Greek minister of foreign affairs and head of his country's delegation to the San Francisco conference, said last night that Greece demands rectification of her Bulgarian border, title to the Dodecanese Islands, and a section of northern Epirus now under Albanian rule. He spoke in the Grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel, at a Hellenic Order of Ahepa banquet attended by 1,000 persons.

Sofianopoulos, who was accompanied by 20 members of the Greek delegation, called the San Francisco charter "a good practical working plan for securing peace."

"Greece feels that a rectification of her boundaries is essential for her safety," he said. "This is mainly true of the Greek-Bulgarian border. Bulgaria has invaded my country three times during the last generation."

Only 10 Holiday Cases Called in Safety Court

Safety court yesterday lacked its usual flood of Fourth of July traffic law violators. Only 10 defendants were listed on the docket. Several defendants were discharged and the other cases were continued. Asst. State's Atty. Isadore Rosen said the light docket was due to the gasoline shortage.

HOPES TO RIDE NIAGARA RAPIDS AS FATHER DID

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., July 5 [Special]—Barring interference from authorities, William [Red] Hill, 31 year old Niagara riverman, Sunday will ride thru the Niagara whirlpool and lower rapids in the steel barrel in which his late father made the trip three times.

Hill said he is proceeding with his plans altho he had heard rumors there may be efforts to stop him. The only officials with authority to prevent Hill from attempting the nine mile trip from the foot of Horseshoe falls to Queenston are the royal Canadian mounted police or Niagara parks commission police.

The royal Canadian police denied a report that they threatened to arrest Hill if he attempted the feat and said they had received no instructions regarding his planned trip. The parks commission said no permit had been requested or issued. It was understood a permit would be refused.

Rescued Father Twice

Hill is no stranger to the hazards he will meet in the whirlpool and rapids. In May, 1930, when he was 16, Hill rowed out into the stream in a boat with three other men to tow his father's barrel out of the eddies when his craft was halted.

A year later when the elder Hill again had trouble while making another trip, young Bill put a rope around his waist, swam out into the whirlpool and pulled his father to safety.

200,000 to See Trip

Hill Sr. completed his trip thru the rapids the next day. The rapids were negotiated in less than five minutes, but the barrel was not pulled out at Queenston dock for an hour because the currents and cross-currents were so strong.

It is estimated that 200,000 persons—about the same size audience his father had—will watch the younger Hill's hazardous trip. The purpose of the venture, he said, is to attract attention to a memorial fund which he has established to honor his father, who held four life saving medals.

BRITISH AGENT MAILS BALLOT FROM CHICAGO

Being thousands of miles from his homeland did not prevent William Clark, assistant director of British Information services, 360 N. Michigan av., from participating in the first election in the United Kingdom in 10 years. He marked his secret absentee ballot yesterday and sent it by airmail to the town of Haltwhistle, in his home constituentcy.

William Clark

All Britons abroad because of the war who have been at home a month since the conflict started are eligible to vote. Ballots were mailed to those who applied for them. Proxies cast ballots for absentees at the polls, but the proxy ballots will be counted only if the mailed votes fail to arrive.

Votes cast at home and abroad in the British election today will be counted July 26.

BIG 3 TO SEEK WAYS TO GUIDE GERMAN MINDS

Will Review Ban on Fraternizing

LONDON, July 5 (AP)—Establishment of a coördinated plan to govern the social and educational structure of Germany during the period of occupation was described today in diplomatic quarters as one of the major objectives of the approaching Potsdam meeting of the Big Three.

Responsible sources said this effort inevitably would include a review of the nonfraternization policy to determine whether its relaxation would hasten elimination of the nazi ideology.

As part of the coördinated program it was expected that a jointly operated radio station would be set up in Berlin to speak for the allied control commission.

Vacation for Churchill

An Associated Press dispatch from Bordeaux said arrangements were being made to accommodate Prime Minister Churchill and his family for a brief vacation on the French Basque coast before the Big Three meeting.

A British foreign office commentator inferentially denied a published report that Churchill would meet Generalissimo Francisco Franco of Spain before the Potsdam meeting.

Heavy Guard for Truman

POTSDAM, Germany, July 5 (AP)—The temporary White House where President Truman will stay during the meeting of the Big Three was described today as comfortable but by no means palatial.

There is much evidence that the President will be heavily protected. American soldiers make no secret of the fact that they have estalished their camping sites with the view to seeing that no incident mars the President's visit.

The Potsdam area abounds in wooded districts with choice habitations of which the casual traveler has no knowledge. The conference will be held in one of these.

STASSEN WARNS CHARTER CAN'T INSURE PEACE

Washington, D. C., July 5 (AP)—Cmdr. Stassen tonight cautioned against any feelings that mere adoption of the allied nations charter will insure peace or solve world problems.

"When the charter is ratified by the United States senate, by the other four major powers, and by at least a majority of the other members, it is of terrific importance that the people of this country and of the world do not feel that they have thereby automatically insured future peace, or that they have ipso-facto solved the problems of tomorrow," said Stassen, who participated in the drafting of the charter as an American delegate.

About to return to naval service in the Pacific, the one-time Minnesota governor addressed a meeting sponsored by 33 national organizations held in the department of commerce auditorium.

"We in the United States are now thoroly and almost unanimously agreed that the walls of isolation are gone forever," he said, "and that we should join in a united nations organization dedicated to peace and progress."

MORGENTHAU IS OUT OF CABINET; ROBERTS QUITS

New Head of Treasury Not Yet Named

are War Secretary Stimson, Navy Secretary Forrestal, and Commerce Secretary Wallace.

Altho Morgenthau will remain a member of the cabinet until his successor takes over, White House sources said acceptance of his resignation has had the effect of removing him from the line of Presidential succession, which now passes to 77 year old War Secretary Stimson.

Byrnes First in Line

State Secretary Byrnes is first in the line of succession, and should a fatal accident meet the President and secretary of state on their forthcoming European journeying, Stimson would succeed to the Presidency even tho Morgenthau might still be functioning as treasury secretary, it was asserted.

Morgenthau, a New York neighbor of the late President Roosevelt, came to the government in 1933 as governor of the farm credit board and then as undersecretary of the treasury. When William Woodin, Roosevelt's first treasury secretary, resigned because of ill health in December, 1933, Morgenthau succeeded to the post Jan. 1, 1934.

Morgenthau is 54, married, and has four children. He is the son of the former ambassador to Turkey in the Wilson administration. His first political post was the chairmanship of a New York state agricultural commission to which Mr. Roosevelt appointed him when governor of New York.

Vinson May Get Post

War Mobilization Director Vinson was generally believed to be President Truman's first choice for the treasury secretaryship. Others considered possibilities are John Snyder, a director of the Reconstruction Finance corporation; Sen. George [D., Ga.], chairman of the senate finance committee, and Walter Cummings, head of the Continental-Illinois National Bank and Trust company, Chicago.

[Another Chicago banker, Edward E. Brown, has been mentioned as possible successor to Secretary Morgenthau. Story on page 21.]

The retirement of Justice Roberts leaves Chief Justice Stone as the only member of the court not appointed by Roosevelt, and Stone was elevated by Roosevelt from an associate judgeship to be chief justice.

President Truman said Roberts sent his letter of retirement from his Chester county, Pa., home, stating that after 15 years of service and on reaching 70 he wanted to retire. The President said Roberts promised the nation the continued benefit of his advice and counsel.

No Thought of Successor

The President said he has not thought about a successor to Roberts. The Supreme court is in recess and will not reconvene until October. It is thought likely Mr. Truman will submit the name of a successor on his return from Europe before the senate adjourns.

Thurman Arnold is a former Yale university law professor who as head of the justice department's anti-trust division instituted a record breaking number of 230 cases under the Sherman anti-trust act. He was appointed to the bench in 1943.

In his letter of resignation to President Truman, Arnold said he intends in his private law practice to work "for a truly competitive economy in the post-war world. The President accepted the resignation "regretfully" and said it represents a great loss to the bench.

Frankfurter Protege

Cohen, now 50, recently retired as general counsel to the office of war mobilization, where he had been closely associated with Byrnes since 1942. Between 1933 and 1941 he served as special assistant to four attorneys general, and in 1941 went to London as legal adviser to Ambassdor Winant.

Teamed up with "Tommy the Cork" Corcoran in the early days of the New Deal, Cohen took a leading part in drafting legislation regulating utilities, stocks, and bonds. Like Corcoran, Cohen studied law under Felix Frankfurter at Harvard law school.

TRUMAN ACCEPTS RESIGNATION OF JUDGE IN PROBE

Washington, D. C., July 5 (AP)—President Truman today formally accepted the resignation of Federal Judge Albert W. Johnson of the Pennsylvania middle district. Atty. Gen. Clark had told reporters Tuesday that Johnson had resigned, giving his age as the reason, and that President Truman had accepted the resignation. Johnson is 72.

The house meanwhile voted $7,500 more to defray cost of further investigation by its judiciary committee of Judge Johnson and Judge Albert L. Watson, also of the Pennsylvania middle District court. The action came after Rep. Cochran [D., Mo.], chairman of the accounts committee, told the house that altho Johnson has resigned "it won't prevent his impeachment by the house if there are grounds for such action."

The house investigation was started to determine whether Judge Johnson or Judge Watson had been guilty of any "high crime or misdemeanor" which would require impeachment proceedings. A federal grand jury in Scranton, Pa., recently indicted Johnson's son, Donald M. Johnson, Snyder county district attorney, on conspiracy charges in connection with receivership suit before his father's court.

A Centralized Traffic Control operator ... who may be 200 miles away ... by flipping a few tiny levers, "throws the switches" and puts a fast train on the lefthand track to pass a slower train. Both trains keep moving ... all traffic is speeded.

Control centers of this type are located on the ROCK ISLAND at several points, on lines where traffic is heaviest. Indicator lights on the operator's switchboard tell him at all times the exact position of each train in his "section." He plans and arranges "crossovers" and "passings" that will move the trains with greatest speed. Wayside signals and signal lights within the engine cab keep the engineer informed.

Centralized Traffic Control ... which makes two tracks do the work of three ... enables us to handle an ever greater volume of freight.

Better railroading is the creed on the ROCK ISLAND LINES. Through continual improvements we move forward on our never-ending Program of Planned Progress. As yesterday—and today—so tomorrow, ROCK ISLAND'S sole purpose is to provide the finest in transportation.

ROCK ISLAND'S "TRAFFIC CONTROL"..... 1852 STYLE

The first Rock Islanders had to do it the hard way. The candle lantern shown here is typical of the equipment of 93 years ago. Feeble candle light, showing through tiny slots in the metal lantern, provided the only means of signaling at night. Today's Centralized Traffic Control, and ROCK ISLAND'S experiments in electronic communication, offer sharp contrast to the meager methods of yesterday's railroading.

10 WAR AGENCIES LOSE FUNDS IN FEPC ROW ECHO

House Strips Them, but Senate Must Concur

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., July 5—The house climaxed a bizarre parliamentary tussle today by voting to cut off all funds for 10 major war agencies whose appropriations for the 1946 fiscal year had previously received house approval.

The action was taken as an outgrowth of an unsuccessful fight by a house minority for inclusion of funds in the bill for the President's fair employment practices committee, which has been denounced in congress as a communistic influence.

The FEPC proponents, miffed by their defeat, countered by raising technical objections to granting funds to the 10 other agencies on the ground their existence is not authorized by previous legislation. Under house rules, the objections were automatically sustained. The agencies were created by executive orders.

Millions Lopped Off

The house thereupon passed and sent to the senate the emasculated bill, carrying only 134 million dollars of the original 752 millions.

The 10 agencies, whose funds the bill would cut off, retroactive to July 1, are: War labor board, office of defense transportation, office of economic stabilization, office of scientific research and development, office of inter-American affairs, office of war information, war production board, war shipping administration, petroleum administration for war, and office of strategic services.

Rep. Marcantonio [A. L., N. Y.], a leader in the fight to keep FEPC alive, headed the move today to eliminate the other war agencies.

Blames FEPC Foes

During a brief fiery debate, Marcantonio, who was elected with communist support, sought to shift the blame for his own action in blocking the agencies' funds on foes of FEPC, whom he charged with fomenting today's action by opposing FEPC.

Asserting the "real foes" of the war agencies were southern Democrats and other FEPC critics, the New Yorker named four southern congressmen, Colmer [D., Miss.], Smith [D., Va], Cox [D., Ga.], and Rankin [D., Miss.] as voting against the war agencies fund bill a year ago.

Colmer retorted that Marcantonio voted gainst "every dollar" of appropriations for American defense until soviet Russia entered the war. He told the house he was "not surprised" to find Marcantonio again opposing funds for war needs, now that Russia is not at war on the allied side.

Payless Paydays Possible

Congressional leaders tonight expressed doubt that any of the 10 agencies will actually be eliminated when the funds bill finally clears both the house and senate. They expressed equal doubt, however, that the house will yield to the left-wing demand for including FEPC in the measure.

Barring some unforeseen compromise, leaders said, the present tussle over FEPC, already a month old, may go on for weeks, thus tying up funds for all 18 agencies originally in the bill.

Altho the bureaus have operated since June 30, close of the 1945 fiscal year, under a "saving" clause congress wrote into another bill, treasury officials said today the clause makes no provision for paying employes. They thus face a possible "payless" pay day on July 21.

Carnival Game Man Shot in Fight Behind Tavern

Ross Pitarro, 35, of 1450 N. Western av., a carnival game operator, was shot in his left thigh last night in a quarrel with another man at the rear of a tavern at 2340 Clark st. Police removed him to Bridewell hospital when he refused to identify his assailant or explain their quarrel. Detectives said Pitarro had a police record.

DAY by DAY on the FARM by GAIL COMPTON

July 5, 1945

FOR the third year in a row, the benefit of making silage out of the first cutting of hay has been thoroly demonstrated. A long established practice at the Wheaton farm, ensiling of alfalfa and clover has proved to be a commonsense operation that more farmers should follow.

The last three haying seasons have been wet. A wet spring also has served each year to produce an unusually strong and rank growth of forage. Farmers who attempted to cut their hay and cure it in the field for barn storage have lost large quantities thru successive wettings. After a mown field of hay has been rained on a few times it loses most of its feeding value. When the hay is put directly into the silo after cutting, none is lost.

Coarseness Lessens Value

Rank hay has large woody stems and their coarseness detracts from the feeding value and palatability of the forage. In the silo, these stems are softened and flavored with molasses and made more appealing to the animals.

While the men were putting hay into the silos, one field was mown for bailing purposes. After most of the hay was down, rains interrupted operations and the hay lay in the field for days while intermittent showers lowered its value. When this hay was being ruined, men were putting up hay as silage in a neighboring field. The contrast offered by the two fields illustrated perfectly the value of using the silo.

Silage Method Favored

If the silos were not used, the farm would lose hundreds of dollars in hay feeding value each year.

The first cutting comes when the heavy spring rains are beginning to taper off. A farmer counts himself lucky if he can cut and store an entire field of alfalfa without having some of it rained on. Agricultural colleges have advocated the silage method of handling the first hay crop, and feeding tests have proved that hay silage makes good feed for cattle and sheep.

The second cutting of hay usually has much finer stems and more leaves; it is ideal for storing. Thus, at the Wheaton farm, the second cutting is reserved for the barn. The alfalfa that was cut for baling, only to be drenched with rain, could have been put into the barn equipped for drying hay. This way it could have been saved.

The GARDEN by Ben Markland

STRAW mulching, desribed yesterday, is practical for almost all vegetable crops, but is doubly valuable for tomato plantings. Tomatoes, whether staked or unstaked, are subject to blossom end rot, a physiological plant disease caused by irregular absorption of water during the summer months. The disease has been common in the Chicago area in the last two seasons. It causes a rotting of the bottom of the fruits.

Blossom end rot may appear in plants that are heavily watered and also in plants given too little water. The disease is not so prevalent in seasons of regular rainfall or when plantings are mulched to permit steady absorption of moisture.

Two to four inches of straw over the entire tomato patch helps the ground retain moisture and allows the plants to absorb moisture thru a long period.

END DONNELLEY STRIKE, UNIONS URGED BY WLB

Washington, D. C., July 5 (AP)—The war labor board tonight renewed its request to striking unions at the R. R. Donnelley Printing company in Chicago to end their month-long walkout.

The board telegraphed heads of the unions involved at the strike of Chicago's big open-shop printing company that "more than two weeks have passed without compliance with the board's directive order." That order, dated June 19, directed the unions to terminate their strikes immediately.

Refers to Strike Spread

"The strikes and stoppages are delaying publication of periodicals for the armed forces overseas," WLB Chairman George W. Taylor told strikers. "At certain of the plants the stoppages are in flagrant violation of union contracts."

Taylor referred to the spread of the Donnelley strike to union shops in Chicago having contracts with concerns which dealt with Donnelley. These included the Cuneo press and the Cuneo eastern press in Philadelphia, which, along with Donnelley, print editions of magazines.

The Donnelley strike began June 5, and spread to other Chicago printing firms.

Unions AFL Affiliates

Striking unions involved are the printing pressmen, photoengravers, International Typographical, bookbinders and paper cutters, bindery helpers and specialty workers, lithographers, and Chicago paper handlers' unions.

All of the unions involved are AFL affiliates. The principal issue is a request by the unions for a union shop, which stalemated contract negotiations.

The plant has had an open shop since its founding.

1 STRIKE ENDED AND 202D BEGUN IN STEEL PLANT

After a strike of 30 motor maintenance men was ended in the South Chicago plant of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation last night, 50 narrow gauge plant railroad employes quit work. It was the 202d work stoppage in Carnegie-Illinois plants in the Chicago area.

Company spokesmen said the entire plant, employing 13,000 and making steel for the war, would face a complete shutdown today unless the railroad men returned to their engines before 7 a. m. About 3,000 were made idle immediately because of the new strike.

The motor maintenance men of the No. 3 open hearth and Bessemer department quit Saturday because the company revised a work schedule of two inspector helpers. As a result of this stoppage the company was compelled to lay off railroad workers. The railroad workers charged that seniority rights had been ignored in the lay-offs.

The strike of the motor maintenance men caused a production loss of 15,000 tons of steel. A complete shutdown would cause a loss of 10,000 daily.

Bogus Ration Stamps Show Increase Here

The office of price administration said yesterday that in June red ration stamps good for 3,299,364 points were found to be counterfeit in the Chicago area. In May, 1,578,000 points were counterfeit, and in April 566,000 points were bogus.

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

John Paul Jones, American Naval Hero

One hundred ninety-eight years ago today there was born in the parish of Kirkbean, Scotland, an extraordinary man child who was destined to grow up to be a great naval hero and to play an important role in the history of America.

Named John Paul, after his father, a landscape gardener, he was apprenticed at the age of 12 to a ship captain who took him on a voyage to Virginia. As he grew older he gained considerable experience as a sailor, and for a brief period he served as an acting midshipman in the British navy. He spent about two years aboard ships in the slave trade, in the beginning as a third mate and in the end as a first mate. However, slavery soon disgusted him and he gave up his job and started home.

As a passenger on a ship bound for England he took command of the vessel on the deaths of its captain and first mate and brought it safely to port. For this he was rewarded with permanent service by the ship's owners. Later, and while still a youth, he purchased a small ship upon which he was compelled to put down a mutiny by killing the ringleader. After this he vanished for a while.

In 1775 he appeared in Philadelphia calling himself John Paul Jones [the name by which he ever since has been known] and with a commission of senior lieutenant in the new continental navy, which he had obtained thru friends in Virginia.

He commanded the ship Alfred in an expedition against the Bahama Islands, in the spring of 1776 was made commander of the Providence, and was elevated to captain the following August. With the Providence he captured several prizes, and late in the autumn of that year he conducted a raid along the Nova Scotian coast with the ship Alfred.

A year of inactivity followed, until in November, 1777, he was given command of the Ranger. It was with this vessel that he surprised the forts that commanded the harbor of Whitehaven, England, and spiked their guns and later fought and captured the British sloop of war Drake off Belfast, Ireland.

Now a hero in the eyes of Americans and French as well, he obtained an old merchantman, rearmed it and renamed it the Bon Homme Richard in tribute to Benjamin Franklin, author of "Poor Richard's Almanac." In August, 1779, Jones sailed from France with the Richard, accompanied by a new American frigate, the Alliance, and several small French vessels. An attempt to attack the port of Leith failed, but on the way back to France, off the east coast of England, Jones encountered the heavily armed British vessel Serapis.

The Alliance, under a French commander, deserted him in this critical situation and the French ships fled, but he fought and subdued the Serapis in one of the most famous sea battles of history. The Richard sank, but Jones sailed to France in the Serapis. Honored by both America and France, he saw no more fighting in that war.

In 1781 he accepted a commission as admiral in the Russian navy. Altho he conducted a successful campaign against the Turks on the Black Sea, he was not given credit for his victories. Jealous officers intrigued to keep him idle until Catherine, the Russian czarina, lost faith in him. Returning to Paris, he lived in retirement until his death in 1792. In 1913 his bones were brought to America and placed in a crypt at the Naval academy at Annapolis.

OPA INSPECTION OF MARTIN CAFE BOOKS ORDERED

In what was said to be unprecedented action in the Chicago area, Judge William J. Campbell in federal District court yesterday ordered Martin's restaurant, 33 N. La Salle st., to retain all luncheon and dinner checks for 90 days and to make available for OPA inspection all books and records from 1942 to date.

The order was given as Judge Campbell entered an injunction restraining the restaurant from selling or offering for sale foods or beverages at above ceiling prices. It was the fourth injunction to be entered against a restaurant operated by Martin's within two weeks. A hearing on treble damages, undetermined until the records have been examined, was set for Sept. 28.

Judge Campbell previously had entered an injunction against Martin's South Shore Catering company, 2015 E. 71st st. Injunctions against Martin's restaurant at 130 S. La Salle st. and against the Shamrock Restaurant company, 28 N. La Salle st., under the same ownership, were entered last month. All were charged with overceiling sales and failure to post food prices.

STRIKE DELAYED ON NORTH SHORE, AURORA LINES

A threatened strike of members of two railroad unions employed on the Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee and the Chicago, Aurora and Elgin railroads was postponed indefinitely yesterday when union and railroad officials agreed to send a joint telegram to Washington, D. C., requesting special action on the dispute.

The wire, representatives of the railroads said, will ask that the national mediation board set up a presidential emergency board to hear the case and make recommendations on the dispute.

At the same time, union officials said, it was agreed to postpone the strike, set for today, until the mediation board had given an answer to the wire. The unions are requesting a wage increase of 12 cents an hour for collectors and brakemen and a 16 cent an hour increase for conductors. The unions involved are the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen.

SOAP SHORTAGE HERE REACHES CRITICAL POINT

Shortage of soap so acute that rationing may be necessary is developing because of lack of fats, oils, and other ingredients, Chicago soap manufacturers said yesterday.

The small quota that manufacturers are able to supply to retailers is reflected in grocery shelves often bare of any soap at all, or having only a few bars.

A spokesman for a large Chicago manufacturer said, "We could get by without rationing with improved imports, and if manufactured soap were not taken away from America and given elsewhere."

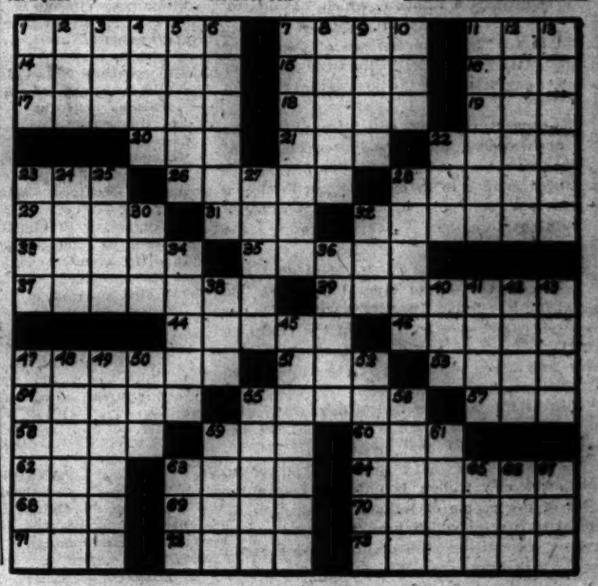
Puzzle of Thursday, July 5, Solved



Chicago Daily Tribune
THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

FOUNDED JUNE 10, 1847

10 ★★ FRIDAY, JULY 6, 1945

ENTERED AS SECOND CLASS MATTER MAY 14, 1903, AT THE POSTOFFICE AT CHICAGO, ILL., UNDER ACT OF MARCH 3, 1879.

All unsolicited articles, manuscripts, letters, and pictures sent to The Tribune are sent at the owner's risk, and The Tribune company expressly repudiates any liability or responsibility for their safe custody or return.

JAPAN'S WORST DEFEAT

When, in March, 1942, upon leaving the Philippines to assume command of all forces in the southwest Pacific, Gen. MacArthur promised, "I shall return," the pledge may have seemed to have a forlorn sound. The surrenders on Bataan and Corregidor still lay ahead, and with them the misfortunes of America in the Pacific were by no means ended. Japan was riding the tide of success.

Gen. MacArthur has now reported the redemption of his pledge. "The entire Philippine Islands," he asserts, "are now liberated and the Philippine campaigns can be regarded as virtually closed." Of 23 Japanese divisions, aggregating 450,000 men, there are no more than 30,000 still alive, scattered and widely separated. The great bulk of the force has been annihilated in what MacArthur correctly terms "the greatest disaster ever sustained by Japanese arms."

This utter defeat was inflicted upon the Japanese in the relatively short period of nine and one-half months, in which our forces were compelled to make separate landings to engage the enemy on more than 35 islands of the archipelago. The accomplishment is the more remarkable in that the Japanese required a full six months to reduce our pitifully weak defenses on Luzon, manned by 40,000 Americans and Filipinos, against an overwhelming enemy force.

Once in possession, Japan garrisoned the Philippines with 10 times the forces which we were able to muster in the first months of the war. Where the majority of the defenders of Bataan early in 1942 were Filipinos whose valor had to compensate for lack of training, the Japanese garrison was composed of veteran troops, many of whom had fought in the campaigns in the Philippines and Malaya.

Against them MacArthur employed only 17 divisions, six fewer than were at the disposal of Gen. Yamashita, the Japanese commander. But, at the completion of the campaign, 420,000 Japanese had been killed or captured, against total American casualties of 54,000 soldiers. The ratio of eight casualties inflicted upon the enemy for every one suffered is testimony to MacArthur's ability to get results at relatively small cost.

It has been a long road on the return to the Philippines. When Bataan and Corregidor fell, the only foothold north of Australia left to MacArthur was Port Moresby, New Guinea, and even that was in desperate peril. By clever resort to bypassing tactics, MacArthur was able to advance step by step up the New Guinea coast and along the north shore of the island until at last he could strike out to establish his beachhead on Leyte. The Japs had not expected the landing there, and they were equally unprepared when MacArthur, avoiding more inviting, beaches, boldly took his invasion fleet past Manila to land on Lingayen gulf in Luzon.

The Japanese, confused by his intentions, made the fatal error of trying to be on guard everywhere at once, with the result that their greater aggregate forces were so dispersed as to be no match for MacArthur's at any point. The American general methodically proceeded to exterminate them in detail.

Gen. MacArthur has paid a deserved tribute to the invaluable aid of the navy and air force in the successful campaign. It is clear by now that command of the sea is command of the islands, and that the air commands the sea. The Japanese had a clear appreciation of this fact in extending their conquests in the early months of the war. Adm. Ernest J. King, commander in chief of the United States fleet, had commented on their strategy:

"The method adopted by the Japanese in making their advances thru the Philippine Islands and the Netherlands East Indies was built around their air power. After building up their strength at a given base they would overcome the consistently inferior allied air opposition at the next point of attack and then send along heavily screened amphibious forces to make landings. As soon as the enemy were in control of a new area they would repair the air fields and gather forces for the next attack."

This might serve as an exact description of the tactics we have pursued in driving the Japanese back to their home islands and their strongholds on the continent of Asia. Insular objectives are singularly vulnerable to the air and naval forces which are preponderant, and American shipyards and plane factories have put us far out in front in both categories. Japan is already bleeding internally from our air attacks. The next step will be to cut at a main artery.

THE NEW JOLLY ROGER

Just about the time that the country was observing Flag day, Boris Artzybasheff, a New York artist born in Kharkov, Russia, informed a palpitating world that he had designed a flag for the united nations. The design, appropriately enough, is a rainbow, which "brings together," Mr. Artzybasheff explains, "colors found in the flag of every one of the united nations. Its rainbow symbolizes the advent of a better day, free from the devastation of world war."

The concept, no doubt, will prove pleasing to the one-worlders, and already expressions of regret have been heard that the flag wasn't produced in time to fly over the San Francisco conclave, where the global architects have taken something more than six days to reshape the world.

Rainbow usually suggests a pot of gold, and it might not be out of order to suggest this addition to the design. The avidity with which our Wall streeters have been urging the establishment of the new world order suggests that somebody hopes to pocket a guinea or two when the deal is consummated, and the subtle symbolism of this addition to the flag would give them encouragement while they wait for the senate to scan the final product.

We are not sure what response will be evoked when the new banner is unfurled before the eyes of the people of India and the other colonial territories which have been told not to expect any sudden rush of liberty as a result of the San Francisco deliberations. They may be unable to note any particular difference between the newfangled standard and the Jolly Roger under which the European imperialisms have been doing business for a couple of centuries.

THE WAR MAKING POWER

Sen. Bushfield believes that the San Francisco charter as it stands contains provisions which are in conflict with the Constitution. The Constitution says congress shall have power to declare war. The charter gives the security council of the new league what looks like full authority to send American boys into war.

As Sen. Bushfield put it: "I do not believe that America is willing to delegate the constitutional power of congress to one individual out of 130,000,000 people or to the security council [consisting of 10 foreigners and one American] to move American troops, guns, ships, and planes as this individual's will or the security council's will dictates to any part of the world."

Sen. Bushfield has indicated that with this exception and perhaps a few others closely related to it, all of which can readily be covered in reservations, he has no objection to the charter and will vote to ratify it. He hopes, as countless other Americans do, that the charter may serve to make war less probable in the future.

There is little reason to believe that the charter will accomplish this wholesome purpose and the more candid friends of the plan have said as much. The people of this country and of all other countries, however, would like to think that the sacrifices and suffering of this war have not been wasted. Inevitably, politicians in all the allied countries are eager to cater to this sentiment and the San Francisco charter serves their purposes.

When it became apparent in the course of the negotiations that the United States would have the right to hold conquered island outposts and arm them for our self-defense, and when it became clear that the United States could veto the formation of a European combination against us such as has occurred on several occasions in our national history, two of the major objections to the plan were removed. The point Sen. Bushfield has raised remains, however.

In effect, he is defending the simple proposition that a plan which will make it easier than it has been to put the strongest nation in the world at war, possibly against the wishes of the majority in this country, will not promote the peace either of this country or the world. We ought not to forget that the constitutional provision for a congressional declaration of war was calculated precisely to prevent a wilful executive from wasting the lives and wealth of the nation in war. If it wasn't safe to trust the executive of the United States in these matters, it surely isn't safe to trust the executive arm of the league of nations.

Since Mr. Bushfield spoke, another objection of a similar order has been suggested. Mr. Henry Wales, writing from Tangier, reports intimations that the soviets will seek to internationalize not only the Dardanelles, in which they can claim a direct interest, but also Suez, and after Suez, Panama. The charter says something about excluding questions of domestic concern from consideration by the new league. The question remains, however, whether the control of the Panama canal is to be regarded as a matter of domestic concern to the United States.

On that point, too, the senate should make a reservation. Nobody can pretend that American control, protection, and management of the Panama canal has endangered world peace. Certainly the American people intend to keep the canal and will regard any proposals to the contrary as distinctly unfriendly. It would be well, while we are about it, to insist that immigration control is also a matter of domestic concern in which no interference from abroad will be tolerated.

There is no excuse for rushing the ratification of the charter. It should be scrutinized with the greatest care, in committee and on the floor of the senate, to make sure that if contains no jokers destructive of our national welfare. Any reservations that are demanded by our interest should be added. They will be acceptable to the other nations. Their eagerness to draw the strongest and wealthiest nation in the world into the new league is manifest and will lead them to approve our membership on any terms we may specify.

AT CAREFREE CASTLE

We gather that the approaching conference of allied chiefs of state and their galaxies of officials to rearrange the jigsaw puzzle of Germany will be held in Potsdam, a suburb of Berlin which escaped from the general havoc. Well, that town, 17 miles southwest of the city's center, contains palatial halls in abundance, suitable for the high occasion, and also parks and gardens to ease the strain that often develops over the green tables of diplomacy.

* * *

Sans Souci, the most famous architectural ornament of Potsdam, may be too small for the larger sessions, yet we have no doubt that it will come into use for cozy meetings of the inner circle. Frederick the Great built it for his lighter states of mind between campaigns, and it should figure in the closing chapter of the military tradition he founded, for irony's sake. Moreover, a skeptical philosopher named Voltaire used to hang out there as Frederick's guest and pal, and if his witty spirit lingers, it may inspire the ceremonial orators.

* * *

Sans Souci is a low structure in the style called rococo, approached by a garden stairway that leads up six terraces. Its landscaping and interior decoration are more impressive to the casual visitor than the building itself. The whole scheme is regarded as the masterpiece of its architect, Knobelsdorf [said to have been inspired by King Frederick's own sketches], who gave Berlin and Potsdam other outstanding examples of this decorative style.

* * *

The name of this palace did not come up in the war news or the journalism of the nazi regime. [It has survived as a museum, containing fine examples of Watteau, Lancret, and other French painters of the rococo period.] Sans Souci seems to have been shy of late, but its name has been adopted by thousands of American summer shacks, and also by a Chicago amusement park which stood on the site later embellished by Midway Gardens. [Translation of the name: "Carefree."]

APPLE LOVER'S LAMENT

I like a good apple, a red, rosy apple,
As ripe and as tart as old wine,
A hard, juicy apple, a firm, tasty apple,
An apple with flavor divine;
But when I find an apple, a poor, wretched apple,
It's stale and insipid as mush;
An old, wrinkled apple, a flat, wormy apple,
As pulpy and tasteless as slush!
Where are all the apples, the wonderful apples,
The apples without worms and grubs?
Do the pigs get the apples, the edible apples,
And city folks get all the scrubs? Quizzicuss

Dialog About Pockets

[A sailor, expecting discharge, talks with his wife.]

"Pockets," I remarked to Muchacha, "are a great institution. Do you realize I haven't had any for nigh on to three years? Just think of the fun I'll have jingling coins in them."

"Didn't you do something else with them when you had them before?"

"O, I suppose so," I admitted. "I must have carried a fountain pen, a couple of pencils, and the usual trifles."

"Yes, and I remember I often would entrust you with my compact, handkerchief, and gloves when we went out," she reminded me. "Don't you remember how you complained because they made your clothes bulge?"

"I suppose when pockets become standard, built-in equipment on my suits again, you'll be wanting to use them as a carry-all," I said.

"I wouldn't be surprised," says Muchacha. "As a matter of fact, I'm getting tired of stuffing my purse with all those things you should be carrying in your pockets." Davy of the Navy

BURIED AT SEA

Buried at sea where the billows roar?
You who loved so well the shore,
Who cherished the meadow, the boundless plain,
The orchards and the patterned grain!

Buried at sea where the loud waves pound?
You who loved the gentle sound
Of birdsong cascading from morning skies,
Of mother's tender lullabies!

Buried at sea 'neath the frothing foam?
Who loved the boundaries of home,
The cosy content of a fireside,
Where friends and family abide.

Well do I know how you planned to sleep
In rich brown loam, sequestered deep;
Well do I know how you longed to be Forever held by root-bound tree.

Now must you slumber unable to rest,
Tossed by ever-changing crest;
Now must I walk where you walk no more,
Forlorn upon the lonely shore. Cherida

Friend of the Yanks

[The Friend of the Yanks will answer questions of service men, veterans, and their dependents by mail if stamped envelope is sent to 435 N. Michigan av. The Tribune's veterans' bureau, 1 S. Dearborn st., Superior 0200, gives personal interviews.]

F. S. A. asks: "If an officer has more than the 85 points required for discharge and is sent home from the European theater of operations will he be released from service immediately upon arrival in the United States?"

Not necessarily. An officer who has sufficient points for discharge and who is declared surplus in a theater of operation may be returned to the United States and then declared essential and retained in service. Officers eligible for discharge under the point system also may elect to remain on active duty.

R. B. asks: "If a man was discharged from the service in 1943 and did not go to work until after January, 1944, can he get unemployment allowance for the time between discharge and the time he went to work? If this man's entire income from a farm was only $534 in 1944, can he collect the difference between the income and $1,200 from the government?"

No unemployment allowance was payable before Sept. 4, 1944. First allowances were payable to self-employed veterans in October, 1944. No allowance is payable until after application has been made to the veterans' administration. To be eligible for the allowance, a self-employed veteran must show, in accordance with rules made by the administrator, that he was fully engaged in self-employment and that his net earnings in the previous calendar month were less than $100. Application may be made within two years after discharge or termination of the war, whichever is later.

CHILDBED FEVER ON THE DECLINE

At one time from 10 to 15 per cent of all mothers succumbed to childbed fever [puerperal sepsis]. Those were the days when we knew very little about the transmission of bacteria. Because it occurred with greater frequency in maternity hospitals, many of these institutions were actually in danger of being put out of business. Today the figure has dropped to less than 1 per cent and the thought of such a catastrophe seldom enters the minds of those "expecting."

In the United States we have Oliver Wendell Holmes, the physician, poet, and essayist, to thank for making these changes possible. In 1843 he wrote an essay suggesting that the disorder was epidemic in nature and could be traced to lack of proper precautions on the part of doctors and nurses.

About the same period, Semmelweis, as assistant professor at the Vienna Lying-In hospital, came to a somewhat similar conclusion. He maintained that the physician carried the microbes from one patient to another. He recommended that obstetricians disinfect their hands with chlorine water and proved that when this was routine, fewer cases were encountered.

Both men were scoffed at and it was not until the work of Lister that the soundness of their advice was fully appreciated. The procedure is common practice today and no obstetrician would neglect asepsis in delivering a child.

The condition is an infection in the uterus which may appear subsequent to the birth of an infant. In the majority of instances, streptococci find their way into the area altho other organisms can be responsible. The disorder must be suspected when the mother's temperature rises to 100.4 degrees F., three or four days after the baby is born. This symptom usually follows a chill and is associated with headache, fatigue, and lower abdominal tenderness.

When the germs confine themselves to the involved region, the patient stands a good chance of making a complete recovery. Should they travel to the blood stream, the infection can then spread to distant organs and the outlook is grave. If they reach the lungs, pneumonia may follow. Now and then the organisms attack veins in the leg and phlebitis results.

Scrupulous cleanliness has played the greatest role in prevention. The same precautions are used in preparing the mother as the surgeon employs before performing any operation. Masks are worn by all the personnel and those with colds or harboring streptococci in the nose and throat are forbidden to attend. Improvements in technic have also helped immeasurably. When the condition does develop, we now have adequate weapons to fight it. The sulfonamides and penicillin are beneficial, even in the presence of blood poisoning.

America can well be proud of its maternity record. Thru close supervision and special care, worries along these lines have almost reached the vanishing point. This does not mean that the process is without danger. But a gain in any field is all to the good.

WEAR AND TEAR

Mrs. L. M. writes: What is a strained heart?

REPLY

When the burden which is placed on this organ is too great, strain may exist. This is usually manifested by enlargement and the electrocardiogram will show changes.

NO DANGER

F. C. writes: Is infantile paralysis hereditary?

REPLY

No. After recovery, the causative virus vanishes. It is no different than other acute infections such as colds, whooping cough, etc.

SYPHILIS ONLY

V. E. L. writes: Is a blood examination a sure test for all venereal diseases?

REPLY

No, as it helps to diagnose syphilis only.

SKIN DISEASE

J. K. writes: Is impetigo serious?

REPLY

Not as serious as cancer or leprosy, but it may prove mighty troublesome if neglected.

EGG DIGESTION

C. B. writes: What egg is easiest to digest: raw, fried, or hard boiled?

REPLY

Contrary to general belief, of those listed, the hard boiled egg is.

It Happened Here

Ever wonder what inflation could do in America? In 1863-65 it swept the Confederate states. Some of the prices current then, noted by Mrs. Jefferson Davis, wife of the president of the Confederacy, in her memoirs, were:

In February, 1863, bacon, $6 a pound; ham, $7 a pound; turkeys, $60 each; lighting gas, $6 per thousand feet; firewood, $35 a cord; board for a horse at the Richmond livery stable, $300 a month, $15 a day, $5 a single feeding. By March flour was $300 a barrel and fish $5 a pound. By April, 1864, beans sold at $75 a bushel, tea at $22 a pound, coffee at $12 a pound, brown sugar, $10 a pound, and milk, $4 a quart. By March of 1865 a hair cut and shave cost $10; an ordinary suit of clothes, $2,700; a pair of cavalry boots, $450; 6 yards of linen, $1,200; an ounce of quinine, $1,700; a penknife, $125, and a cake of brown Windsor soap, $50.

George Cary Eggleston, a southerner, wrote in his "Rebel's Recollections" that he paid $10 a pound for some wretched candles, $1 for a copy of any morning newspaper, $5 for a little salt, and $2 for a half pint of cider. The highest relative price he saw paid was for a pair of boots by a cavalry officer in a little country store. He found only one pair there which fitted him. These were $200, and he offered the merchant a $500 bill in payment. The merchant had no smaller bills and could not change it. "Never mind," the officer said. "I'll take the boots, anyway. Keep the change. I never let a little matter of $300 stand in the way of a trade." This was on the day before Lee's surender.

Rep. Talle [of Iowa], in citing these figures in congress last week, continued: "How could this fantastic condition come to pass? Here is the answer: As president of the Confederacy, Jefferson Davis had other things to do than to write his name on pieces of paper designed to serve as money. So high school girls were hired to sit in Richmond and write Jefferson Davis, Jefferson Davis, all day long on pieces of paper which served as means of payment. As these means of payment increased in amount, prices rose; as prices rose, the demand grew for more means of payment, an endless chain that sent prices spiraling upward until paper money in the denominations of less than $5 was considered as small change . . ."

Mr. Talle, a gentleman of dour outlook, says that our potential inflation has increased by more than 300 per cent since 1940. His answer: Stop spending and produce.

Modern Epigram

Half your blessings are measured [says Lil Oswald] by your ability to count them.

Soldier's Answer

Several months ago a book, "At His Side," in which the Red Cross told of the Red Cross in this war, was published. In reviewing it, this writer then said the viewpoint which counted was not what the Red Cross thinks about the Red Cross, but what the soldier thinks about the Red Cross. A soldier, a veteran of the European invasion since D-day, now writes in violent exception to the Red Cross account, in its book of the three Red Cross clubmobile girls who were serving coffee and doughnuts "on high ground to which the infantry had retreated."

"I can count on one finger the times I have seen the Red Cross since last June 6," he wrote, "and that was while we were very much in the rear.

"We do not expect the Red Cross to be running from foxhole to foxhole serving coffee and doughnuts, but neither do we expect them to lead people to believe that is what they do when they do not.

"I'd like to have the name of the unit that 'fell back' to this Red Cross installation. I have noticed that in all these Red Cross stories about these 'errands of mercy' there is always that air of mystery about the time, place, and just who took part in the action. Could this be because of the extreme modesty of the participating individuals?"

STIFLED VOICES

Peoria, Ill., July 1—Miss Nellie I. Mills has had her teaching contract terminated by the East Chicago, Ind., school board for having the courage to voice her honest convictions about our late President. Having been a teacher just preceding and following our entry into the war, I know that the anti-war minority of which I was a member stood insult after insult until endurance was at times at the breaking point, rather than risk the displeasure of superiors and possible dismissal by voicing our opinions. We didn't dare lift our voices even in the cloak rooms.

If East Chicago's school is like the one to whose faculty I belonged, Miss Mills has had to hear propaganda speeches made by other teachers, pupils, and administrators in classroom and out, and has seen the idea fostered and nurtured that "the king [President] can do no wrong" until she has been sick at heart. I know I was.

My one great regret and feeling of guilt regarding this terrible war is that I had a voice and didn't use it. We have a great responsibility in trying to prevent one-sided propaganda from creeping into our school systems. It has been there, and decidedly, for the last 12 years, and it has been government sponsored.

DECLINE OF THE PERIODICALS

Geneva, Ill., July 2—Thanks for your editorial today on "The Magazines." Your statement that "the decadence of the magazine press in this country is a phenomenon that has been too little noted" is very timely. Doubtlessly there are many readers of current magazines who have noted the things of which you speak, tho as yet but little is said about it.

Your argument can easily be sustained by any one who will take time to go to a city library and look over the bound magazine files. These bound volumes of the Atlantic Monthly, McClures, Scribners, The Outlook, The Century, The Eclectic, The Review of Reviews, etc., constitute a literature of the best order, dealing with timely subjects of past periods, and also with poetry, religion, geography, travel, history, science, etc., always well written and thought provoking. It is not long since these magazines were considered indispensable to well read people. As you imply, this is not true today. THE REV. FRANK HANCOCK

ALBANIA REDISCOVERED

Lombard, Ill., July 1—Answering your editorial question of June 28, "What has become of Albania? Has Tito followed the precedent of his mentor and absorbed it?" I hasten to inform you that Washington has been deaf to Albania's pleas for assistance in reconstructing war damage. Tito has not absorbed Albania, but, being fed up with British imperialism as exemplified in Greece and unable to get the much desired support from the United States, Albania is leaning for whatever meager support on Tito, not from choice but of necessity.

WHERE THE PAPER MONEY GOES

Chicago, July 2—A citizen recently inquired thru the "Voice of the People" column of your newspaper who gets the money from the tons of waste paper that children bring to school. At each local school the principal sells the paper to a dealer accredited [to avoid black market] by the Chicago Waste Paper Salvage committee; he deposits the proceeds in a local bank; he spends the money on behalf of the school, but he reports to my office the pounds of paper collected, the dollars received from the sales, and the uses for which the money has been spent.

A compilation of the individual school reports has been forwarded to the Chicago Waste Paper committee and the Chicago Newspaper Publishers association.

The school principals have expended waste paper funds for several hundred patriotic, civic and educational purposes, a few samples of which are: American flags, Red Cross donations, Service Men's Center, Hines Veterans' hospital, seeds for pupils' Victory gardens, School Children's Aid society, Infantile Paralysis Fund, Easter Seals, raincoats for patrol boys, palms and flowers for graduation exercises, motion picture sound projectors, F.M. radio sets. Both the sale of the waste paper and the use of the proceeds are decentralized and handled by the principal for the benefit of the local school.

CRITICAL VIEWS NOT WELCOME

JOINT TENANTS

Chicago, July 3—When a piece of property is held in joint tenancy by two brothers and three sisters, [1] what must be done to clear the title for a purchaser when one of the brothers dies without a will? [2] Is it sufficient if each survivor consents to the sale of the property? M.L.

1. Nothing. If the deed expressly provides for "joint tenancy" as distinguished from "tenancy in common," then on death of one of the tenants the real estate will go to the survivors without necessity for probate and to the exclusion of the heirs or devisees of the one who dies first [33 C.J. 908, 918].

TURKEY SEEKING DELAY IN REPLY TO RED DEMANDS

Istanbul Waits Return of Foreign Minister

BY CLAY GOWRAN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

ISTANBUL, Turkey, July 3 [Delayed].—The Turkish government will attempt to stave off a reply to the Russian demands until after the return of Turkish Foreign Minister Hasan Saka, it was learned from reliable sources today. Saka, who has been to the United States and now is in England, obviously is seeking some official indication from leaders of these two nations and the attitude of their governments toward Moscow's demands.

[Russia has demanded discussion of the following points, neutral observers in Istanbul reported: Return of Kars and Ardahan provinces in eastern Turkey to Russia; complete control of the Black Sea straits defenses by Russian troops in time of war; revision of the Montreaux convention which gives Turkey control of the straits; establishment of a bilateral treaty between Russia and Turkey.]

It is known Saka's arrival in London embarrassed the Churchill government, then facing a general election and the imminent Big Three meeting. Turkey's ambassador to Britain, Rusen Esref Unaydin, reportedly notified his government the British foreign office had requested postponement of Saka's visit until after these two events have taken place on the grounds of a foreign minister's visit to London before the Big Three conference would irk Stalin at a time when his utmost coöperation is needed.

Turks Fear Stalin Move

The Turks are convinced their nation is facing the greatest crisis in decades. Istanbul and Ankara are buzzing with rumors and counter-rumors as to what the future holds. The mere appearance of a momentarily unidentified ship off Istanbul or even the biweekly arrival of the regular American air transport command plane is enough to circulate a new crop of whispers. Turkey is gripped with a fear of what Stalin may do.

The Turks view most of the Russian requests as completely unjust but hardest of all for them to even comprehend is an unwritten Kremlin demand that the present strongly rightist Turkish government be replaced by one favorable to Russia. Unless this is done Russia will be unwilling to draft a new treaty of friendship and neutrality to replace the one with Turkey she denounced in March, sources close to the Turkish government say.

Four Freedoms Cited

This attitude dumbfounds the average Turk more than it frightens him.

"How is it possible for one nation to even suggest such a thing to another now that the European war is over?" a prominent Turk asked me last night.

"We've been told repeatedly this war was fought for the four freedoms and we have come to believe it. Now, when the ink with which she signed the San Francisco charter barely dry, Russia turns on us and makes such a demand. Is this the peace for which thousands upon thousands of Americans died—a peace in which the German aggressor has been simply replaced by a Russian one?"

HUSBAND KILLS BRIDE CAUGHT 'STEPPING OUT'

Seattle, Wash., July 5 (AP)—A 26 year old ship yard worker, weeping with remorse, admitted today, said Detective Capt. James Lawrence, that he stabbed his 19 year old bride of four months to death in a fit of jealousy.

Charles R. Ross and Mrs. Ross

Lawrence identified the man as Charles Ray Ross of Knoxville, Tenn., and his slain wife as Wilma Gaddis Ross of Roane county, Tenn. Both came west a few weeks ago to take jobs as civilian employes in the Puget sound navy yard at Bremerton, Wash.

Ross first told officers four navy sailors overpowered him and assaulted and stabbed his wife. Later, Lawrence said, he gave a full statement admitting the slaying and saying he "sort of went out of my head" when he saw his wife walking with a civilian after "I had caught her stepping out on me several times before."

TEA DANCE for T/5 Tingle . . .

T/5 Tingle and his buddy came charging into the USO, and stopped dumbfounded at the sight of the post's first Sunday Tea Dance.

"Do you insist on pretty girls?" asked the hostess, with conventional coyness.

T/5 Tingle snatched off his half-portion cap, gulped, blushed, and stammered.

"Yes, ma'am. No, ma'am. Well, not exactly. Y'see—we didn't come for the dance . . . We heard this place has the Sunday papers, and we came up to see the funnies."

The stunned hostess could only indicate the reading room.

THE predilection of the servicemen for comics has occasioned some raised eyebrows. The critics fail to realize that Sunday comics are not a new service-induced habit—but one of the few old habits the serviceman can keep. In a new and often frightening existence of strange duties, strange environments, strange faces, the Sunday comics is reassuringly familiar, a link with the earlier life, an old attraction that outweighs the few new ones.

The serviceman was a regular reader of Sunday comics before he went into service. Three out of four adult Sunday paper readers are—regardless of age, education, social status.

The Sunday comics section is the most universal attraction and the widest habit in this country . . . a part of most people's experience and a part of most families' Sunday—week after week, year after year. And as an advertising medium, the comics section offers more certainty of observation, attention and reception by more people—than any other medium.

"Give Been Lonesome, Too!"

● "Summertime here in Glacier National Park used to be fun for me.

"I liked it when dudes caught sight of me and pointed. If I stood still their friends would say, 'Huh, that's only a patch of snow!'

"When city folks came climbing up these Montana mountains, I'd play hide-and-seek up high, where the clouds are born.

"I'd drink from the streams and lakes when trout fishermen looked the other way.

"But this year—like in 1943 and 1944—folks won't come to Glacier Park because the hotels and chalets still will be closed.

"Maybe you've been lonesome for the lakes and mountains and good times in Glacier Park. Well, I've been lonesome for you, too!

"What a great day it will be when you can all come back here again after the war! The Park will be more beautiful, more inviting than ever. And Great Northern Railway will have even finer, faster trains to bring you here.

Calcium Vital Factor For Strong Bones, Sound Teeth

Doctors report that many a child with ugly bowed legs or knock-knees might have grown up straight and shapely on a diet adequate in the bone-building minerals and Vitamin D.

Lack of calcium, for instance, in the earliest years may do irreparable damage—but in any case, calcium is so vital a factor that no child brought up on a consistently deficient calcium intake, can have much chance for strong bones and sound teeth.

That's one reason doctors talk so much about milk for growing children.

Milk is our best food source of calcium. Do your children get enough milk...at least a quart every day? Many children just don't like to take that much every day! That's why Cocomalt in milk is so helpful.

Cocomalt* is so rich in calcium, it makes 2 glasses of milk equal to a whole quart in calcium value! (Also this supplies the day's full minimum requirements for iron, phosphorus, Vitamin B, and D.) And Cocomalt's delicious chocolaty flavor makes children love their milk.

Start your children on Cocomalt today. Save this as a reminder.

*2 heaping tsps. in 8-oz. glass of milk.

A common request this year is for point free light refreshments to serve at large gatherings. This isn't as difficult as it sounds, since there are many cake and punch recipes easily made with few red or blue points. The old fashioned church lawn social had nothing on our war time garden parties as far as sweet refreshments are concerned!

To prove this point, here are several recipes that can be used for an ice cream social or garden party. Most neighborhood churches plan at least one summer gathering where the cake is donated, the ice cream is purchased, and the punch, if any, is made in large quantity at their church.

This cake takes it easy on several scarce foods—eggs, shortening, and sugar. The sugarless icing uses any tart jam or jelly that's plentiful.

One Egg Cake

[Two 8-inch layers]

2 cup sifted cake flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ cup shortening
1 cup corn sirup
1 egg, well beaten
1 teaspoon vanilla
¾ cup milk

Sift together flour, baking powder, and salt. Cream shortening until light and fluffy; add ½ cup corn sirup gradually, creaming thoroly after each addition. Add egg; add remainder of corn sirup gradually, beating while adding. Stir in vanilla. Add sifted dry ingredients alternately with milk to creamed mixture, beating until smooth after each addition. Bake in two greased 8 inch layer pans in a moderate oven [375 degrees] for 25 minutes. Cool and frost with jam icing.

Quick Jam Frosting

1 egg white
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup strawberry or other tart jam

Combine ingredients and beat with rotary beater until frosting stands in peaks.

Men usually ask for chocolate cake, so here's one that uses cocoa instead of scarce chocolate and which cuts its sugar by substituting part corn sirup.

Cocoa Sirup Cake

[Two 8-inch layers]

2 cups sifted cake flour
1 teaspoon soda
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup cocoa
¼ cup sugar
⅔ cup scalded milk
½ teaspoon vanilla
½ cup shortening
⅔ cup corn sirup
2 eggs

Sift together sifted flour, soda, and salt. Mix together cocoa and sugar and stir in scalded milk. Add vanilla. Cream shortening; add corn sirup gradually, beating until light and fluffy. Add eggs, one at a time, beating after each addition. Add flour alternately with cocoa mixture, beating until smooth after each addition. Bake in two greased 8-inch layer pans in moderate oven [350 degrees] for 25 to 30 minutes. Frost with marshmallow icing made by cooking 1 egg white, ¼ teaspoon salt, and 1 cup corn sirup over hot water, beating constantly with rotary beater, until stiff. Remove from heat, add 12 marshmallows quartered, and beat until blended. Cool and spread.

The youngsters may prefer a cooling fruit punch, tho their elders usually want coffee or tea. For a popular hot weather drink, turn 1 galion orange ice into large punch bowl and add juice of 12 oranges and 8 quarts ginger ale or sweet soda, chilled. This fills 75 to 80 punch cups.

To make a honey punch, dissolve 2 cups honey in 5 cups boiling water. Add 5 cups water and chill. Then add 8 cups orange juice, 1 cup lemon juice, and 5 cups grapefruit juice and chill thoroly. Serve with ice cubes, garnished with slices of lemon and orange. This will serve 50.

Spicy Cookies for the Children

Children will like these spicy cookies for midafternoon refreshments with a mug of cold milk. They are iced thriftily with frosting of confectioners sugar moistened with milk and flavored with grated lemon rind, then topped with walnut halves. To make them:

[TRIBUNE Studio Photo]

Cream ½ cup shortening and add 1 cup sugar. Add 1 beaten egg and stir in 1 cup molasses. Sift together 4 cups sifted flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons ginger, 1 teaspoon nutmeg, 1 teaspoon cloves, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, and 2 teaspoons soda. Add alternately with 1 cup hot water to egg mixture. Drop by spoonfuls onto greased baking sheet, and bake in hot oven [400 degrees] for 8 minutes. Makes about 6 dozen.

Fears Impact of Forces Freed by Technology

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS

How to meet the impact of technology on the social order was the subject of an address yesterday by Prof. Newton Edwards of the University of Chicago before the 23d annual institute for administrative officers of colleges and universities meeting on the Midway. A similar conference for secondary school administrators opened yesterday at Northwestern university with Dr. John W. Studebaker, of the office of education, Washington, D. C., a featured speaker last night.

Prof. Edwards warned that civilization will be imperiled unless a social technology is evolved that will control and give direction to forces unleashed by science and invention. He declared the present age requires that higher education give its youth full knowledge of those forces as well as "the spirit of social contrivance and invention."

"The most important single obligation of the colleges and universities of the nation is to prepare youth for the exercise of sound judgment on fundamental matters of public and social policy," Prof. Edwards said. "It is not enough that education produce the competent individual. It must also produce an effective citizen."

Dr. Studebaker, in outlining the functions of his office as commissioner of education, declared it to be wholly educational and in no sense coercive. He explained that the primary resource of the office is its help in bringing about educational improvement and "not money to allot or authority to impose."

[Opponents of recent federal aid to education bills before congress charge that such aid would centralize education in a Washington bureau and gradually usurp the state and local administration of public education. Proponents of the present bill before congress say such aid is necessary in order to equalize educational opportunity thruout the country.]

Dr. Studebaker said that since the office was set up by congress in 1867 it has carried on research, surveys, and investigations, has published reports and offered consultative services, and thus has been important in "helping the people of the country to improve their systems of education."

Eastern Girl to Be Bride of Capt. Bell

BY JUDITH CASS

At a cocktail party today in Washington, D. C., Mr. and Mrs. Edwin C. Gableman of that city are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Barbara, to Capt. Gordon F. Bell of the army, son of Mr. and Mrs. Allen C. Bell of Lake Forest. Capt. Bell, who has been in the army for five years, has been stationed in Washington on Gen. George C. Marshall's staff since he returned from overseas duty, having been wounded in Italy. The wedding will take place early in September in Washington.

Miss Gableman, who made her debut in Washington, attended Miss Madeira's school and Bennett Junior college. She has been pursuing a newspaper career in the east. Her fiancé attended the Bell school in Lake Forest, of which his father is headmaster; Los Alamos ranch school in New Mexico, and Princeton university.

Today's party also will celebrate the birthday anniversary of Miss Gableman, who shares the anniversary date with her future sister-in-law, Mrs. Alexander C. Bell. At present the Alexander Bells are vacationing in Desbarats, Ont., where Mr. Bell's parents will join them in two weeks. The senior Bells will go east in September for their other son's wedding.

Dr. and Mrs. Ralph Carpenter of Geneva, Ill., are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Mary Catherine, to Ensign John David McCann of the coast guard, son of Mrs. John McCann of Elmhurst, N. Y. Miss Carpenter was graduated from Sullins academy and is a student at Connecticut college. Her fiancé was graduated from the United States Coast Guard academy and is on duty in the Pacific, where he has served for more than a year.

Opera Guild Benefit

The Illinois Opera guild's benefit, the opening tonight of "Ballet Russe Highlights" in Orchestra hall, will attract a number of balletomanes, among them the Paul Butlers, the Ralph E. Churches, the Nathaniel Leverones, the Hill Blacketts, Dr. and Mrs. Louis Sauer, Mrs. Arthur W. Wakeley, and Mrs. Maxwell Evans. Rep. Church is here from Washington, D. C. Seated in main floor seats will be the Frederick Tellanders and their daughters, Marian and Kiki, who will be especially interested in the program since the latter studied with Fokine.

The Opera guild Juniors, who will assist at the benefit by selling nosegays which they have made, are planning a Dutch treat party on the roof of the Lake Shore club following the performance. Mrs. Millard Kennedy, president of the guild, and Mr. Kennedy will take their guests to supper in the Club International of the Drake hotel after the program.

Here and There

The Albion Scotson Webbes' house in Winnetka will be full this summer. Their daughter, Margot, has taken a leave from her journalistic career in New York to spend the summer with her parents. Mrs. Scotson Webbe and her two sons, Scotson Lindsay and Richard White, also are visiting her husband's parents for the summer. They have been living with her parents in Minneapolis, Minn., while Lt. Webbe is on duty in the Pacific. The senior Webbes just have returned from a six months' stay in Los Angeles.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Lane have returned to Washington, D. C., after a brief visit in Winnetka with Mrs. Lane's brother-in-law and sister, the Stanley G. Harrises. The Lanes came back to this country in March after four years in Calcutta and New Delhi, India, where Mr. Lane was connected with the state department. He and his wife, who is the former Dorothy Bent of Chicago, spent the month of April in California with the Harrises.

The Harrises' daughter, Cynthia, will spend the summer as a counselor at Camp Kechuwa, Michigamme, Mich. She was graduated June 27 from Radcliffe college. Her sister, Mrs. A. Willard Adcock, has been studying for her master's degree in social work at Columbia university while Lt. Comdr. Adcock is

The marriage of Mrs. Fred Klein Jr. [Jean Ellen Eldridge] to the son of Mr. and Mrs. Klein of Chicago is announced by her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Lyman C. Huff of Wilmette. The wedding took place June 30 in Bond chapel at the University of Chicago.

Thru the Looking Glass

Don't any of you women with very thin, chronically dry skin think for a minute that your skin needs less careful oiling in summer than in winter. That little extra oil it has now makes it more comfortable than in winter, but the need for oiling it lavishly still exists, especially if you're out in the wind and the sun every day.

Your heavy, stick creams will drive you slightly mad in torrid weather; we admit the temptation to skip the nightly creaming is hard to resist. But with the right preparation, you can oil your skin without feeling as greased as a channel swimmer.

One of the first preparations that comes to our mind isn't new. It's been on the market for 40 years, and it has deserved to live so long. It's a fine cream, finely made, loaded with the richest oils to help keep skin petal soft. Winter and summer, it's a weapon against skin dryness that would be hard to improve on, but in summer it has a special appeal because, while it isn't a cream that vanishes or dries on the skin, in some miraculous way it doesn't leave that sticky, greasy feeling.

It is an ivory tinted cream in a simple container, with no fancy fragrance or flossy name. It's the consistency of soft butter and it goes on the skin in much the same way. A thin film of it, stroked lightly upward on the face, downward on the neck, oils parched skin instantly but doesn't coat it heavily. In other words, while it's one of the most efficient oilers we've ever found, it's a comfortable cream to leave on the skin overnight or for those hours of privacy during the day when you want to give your complexion the benefit of lubrication.

This is good for hands, too, we found, and here again its semi-greaselessness after it's massaged in is a distinct asset.

We suspect this night cream is what a lot of dry skinned women have been looking for. It's been around a long time, but without fanfare, and it's been missed by many women who are lured by "something new." This is something old—and sound.

Peace to Bring New Items for Household Aid

BY EDITH WEIGLE

Besides post-war improvements in the larger items of household equipment, such as refrigerators, stoves, washing machines, and ironers, progress is promised in the manufacture of a number of small devices to make life easier for the home manager.

There'll be a new cordless electric iron, for example. The cord will be attached not to the iron but to the stand on which it rests. Thus, every time the iron is put down it is heated—just as the flat iron was heated on the stove in grandmother's day.

A spokesman for several manufacturers of automatic toasters said there won't be any visible improvements in these items, but a new little invention will provide a thermostatic control which will adapt the heat to the type of bread being toasted—rye, whole wheat, or white. It seems that in some parts of the country breads have a higher moisture content than in others. This special type of post-war toaster thus will work as efficiently on the west coast as in Illinois, or New York.

The war has seen the appearance of an almost miraculous insecticide, which kills various types of insects, including flies and mosquitoes, without harm to humans, food, or clothing. It is so effective that the pests don't appear in the vicinity for months after its use.

This has been available only to the military services, but after the war it will be put up in capsule form for general use. You'll simply knock off the head of the capsule, and the insecticide will start its work in that area. About six to 10 of these little pellets will sell for approximately $1.50. They'll be a boon to outdoor campers, summer vacationists, and farmers.

Still another new idea will be the use of a harmless but powerful gas to perform small household chores. A capsule containing the gas will be inserted thru the bottom of a container in which will be placed a pint or quart of coffee cream. When released the gas will immediately whip the cream. It also will be used to whip various ice cream mix concoctions.

Electric heating pads will be so protected with a completely waterproof substance that it will no longer be dangerous to use them when giving invalids hot compresses and hot packs. The whole heating pad can be dipped in water, it's said, without injurious effect.

None of the equipment described here is available today. It will appear only when peace comes.

[This is the sixth in a series of articles on post-war accessories for the home.]

Baby Buggies Sought to Aid Needy Cases

[Sally Joy Brown department activities are sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.]

BY SALLY JOY BROWN

An agency which provides foster home care for dependent children writes as follows:

"Dear Miss Brown: I am writing about a baby, who since its birth last September has been gravely ill with a severe throat ailment. Loving care and attention will be required if he is to develop normally after such a poor start. At last it has been possible to release him and place him in a foster home with a capable foster mother, who is anxious to do all she can to improve the baby's health. He is beginning to show encouraging signs of good health, even to gaining a little weight. We would very much like to obtain a baby buggy for this youngster, who should be out in the sunshine as much as possible."

Another request for a buggy comes from a near north side social agency. The agency writes that it recently has become interested in Mrs. D., her three boys, and baby girl. The father is overseas, and the family allowance has been used for current expenses, including unexpected responsibility for an ailing grandmother. One of the boys, 4 years old, has been in an infirmary for many months for tuberculosis and faces an operation soon. For many years Mrs. D. has suffered with a chronic back condition which is aggravated when she has to carry her baby. Because of this the child has been deprived of the sunshine and fresh air necessary for her health and growth. A buggy would help solve this problem, and the agency will make the necessary arrangements to call for an offer.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

After the War

In the survey we've been making of business girls and their post-war wants, nylon stockings are on almost every list and on many lists as the first item.

Just to give you an inkling of what the girls have in mind, here is a summary of a few of the answers: A State st. store employe is looking forward to buying [1] nylons and [2] a two-way stretch girdle; an air line WCG would like [1] nylons and [2] cosmetics without the luxury tax; an investment broker's secretary hopes to buy [1] costume jewelry and [2] shoes; a doctor's secretary [with understandable weariness] says she wants a good soft bed that she won't have to get out of for two weeks!

A publicity gal thinks she would happily spend her money for a vacation and a car—and the two combined; a bank employe says [1] nylons and [2] a nylon girdle; an insurance company WCG girl answers the question, "What do you want to buy after the war?" with "nylons, household equipment—and a steak." A girl working for a steel company has her heart set on a steam iron and a dress form [her hobby is sewing].

One of the business girls with whom we talked works for a large hotel. Her ideas were forthcoming without hesitation. She wants, she said [1] a radio-phonograph [FM] set, [2] a portable typewriter, [3] a mixer for cocktails, [4] a pop-up toaster, and [5] her GI friend returned from overseas. "This last wish really comes first," she admitted. "Just like talking to Santa Claus," she added.

So you're going on your vacation and belated honeymoon! Altho its hard to share a honeymoon with others, maybe you'll find it in your heart to take two lonely war wives with you, spiritually, into your Eden of happiness.

Our husbands have been away almost three years fighting in the South Pacific. We soon will celebrate our third wedding anniversaries, and out of those three empty years we have had less than two weeks in which to gather loving memories to sustain us for the days to follow. And, since we are in an essential industry, we'll have to forfeit the pleasure, even, of a vacation and continue to don our white collars thruout the sultry days of summer.

Just knowing you will be kind enough to think of us in your happiness will help us to go forward with our chins up and the hope that next summer will bring peace, with our loved ones home to share our vacations. DEE AND DEE.

Rodzinski and Chicago Symphony Play Another Brilliant Concert at Ravinia

Just the sight of Artur Rodzinski's second Ravinia program must have had several of his conducting rivals gnashing their teeth, for it was a happy choice, largely made up of music that remains high in public favor without danger of becoming hackneyed, and it was touched off with a couple of near novelties, at least as far as our summer concerts are concerned. As to how it sounded—well, a good conductor would have approved, an intelligent one would have learned something, and a bad one would have gone home with a headache.

Altho the program as a whole was on the virtuoso side, it had the sound core of Beethoven's A Major Symphony, which sounded like another version of the mighty Seventh. I found this particularly interesting not only because our orchestra played with such solidity and skill, but also because Mr. Rodzinski's conception of the work has grown so since the last time I heard him play it. He made it not the dance symphony of Wagnerian legend, but a brilliant pastoral. First he grounded its roots to sustain the full structure, then he gave it such clean and shining treatment it glistened like the country after rain. It became, as it developed, a heady, tempestuous performance, yet it never slipped a fraction from complete control. It was an extraordinarily good job, particularly considering the summer shortage of strings.

But don't think Mr. Rodzinski had used up all his ammunition. He prefaced the Beethoven with the first Ravinia performance of Rossini's witty overture to "L'Italiana in Algeri," and of Villa-Lobos' engagingly obstreperous adventure with festive passengers and a bumpy locomotive he remarked, "We will play 'The Little Train to Caipara' in tribute to the big trains of Ravinia." Sure enough, a big train went by right in its wake, and was probably more useful, tho by no means as amusing.

But these were gay as the Beethoven had been magnificent. Probably a lot of the people who thronged Ravinia last night are remembering today the other music on the program, the French music. For it was worth remembering. First came a performance of Debussy's "Faun" that curled lazily in the sun of good playing. And to go home on there was Ravel's "Daphnis and Chloe" that turned music to liquid fire, let it boil high in the cauldron of brilliance, then overflow and spill like a molten tide that flooded the ear with splendor. If our orchestra has played better Ravel, I was not there to hear it.

Concert by the Chicago Symphony orchestra, Artur Rodzinski, conductor. Presented at Ravinia Thursday evening, July 5, 1945. The program:
Overture to "L'Italiana in Algeri" .....Rossini
Symphony No. 7, A major.....Beethoven
Prelude to "The Afternoon of a Faun" .....Debussy
Toccata, "Little Train to Caipira."
Bachianas Brasileiras No. 2 ..Villa-Lobos
Orchestral Fragments, Second Series, from "Daphnis and Chloe".....Ravel

Casual Clothes of Cotton Win New Popularity

BY REA SEEGER

Designers of casual or play clothes have established brilliant new records for smart silhouette and distinctive detail in the summer collections. Never before have such simple, almost functional clothes been so fresh and charming to wear. Since they have extremely modest price tags, it's no wonder they're the most popular dresses of the year.

Most of the casual clothes are of washable cottons or trick versions of cotton materials, so they click with the career girls and members of the high school crowd, who demand swank with super comfort and simplicity in keeping spic and span all summer.

One of the most exciting new cottons is that of chambray striped denim. It's a sturdy denim, with a cool white stripe pattern of silky and softer chambray. All the former harsh stiffness of denim has been abolished, without impairing long wearing qualities. And this chambray striped denim tailors as smoothly as rough linen and stays crisp and new looking after weeks of wear and tubbing. It is the most successful cotton material of the season.

Two very smart models are available in the striped denim, a sleek dress and a two-piecer that looks like a suit yet is worn as a dress costume. Bias bands effectively trim the bodice or jacket top. The skirts are rakishly slim and sleek in fit, the sleeves very short and cool looking. Three nice all-purpose shades are featured—a rosy pink, a wash tub blue, and a green. The suit is especially smart, with a clever back bustle peplum and bias band trim on the front sections.

For summer swank, combined with amazingly low price mark, these chambray striped denims can't be equaled.

'The Wicked Mrs. Steel'

By Roy Vickers

(Copyright: 1945: By Roy Vickers)

INSTALMENT XVII.

RALPH ADAMANT

Mrs. Steel clutched at Ralph's pity. "Andrew wasn't so monstrously rich when I married him and, anyhow, I married him for love. Within a year I hated him—hated him. . . ."

"I guessed as much. And oddly I never thought of you as a rich woman, but as a woman putting up a gallant fight to keep your personality intact. After years of social isolation you were a fish out of water anywhere. And so you were still, even after his death, chained up in this horrible vault of a house, hemmed in by your employes and toadies, with Ruth about the only person not anxious to lick your boots. I spotted that you were desperately lonely, Margaret."

"I love you for that, Ralph. You're the only one who has ever given me any sympathy."

"I should think that is probably true," he agreed impartially. "So little were your fantastic millions in my imagination that I was on the verge of asking you to marry me."

"I knew it!" she gasped. "And I was fool enough to bring that girl here."

He shook his head.

"Before I ever met Gillian I knew that I had misread your character and deceived myself with a romantic tale," he asserted. "I watched your behavior to Steel's family—watched you in a number of ways. I was still sorry for you—I still am—but the iron of those years with your husband has entered into your soul and you like the power of evil that his money gives you. Your charities are enormous, but all who receive it have to grovel for it. You will give the workers of Tenstable anything—except a just increase in their wages."

"How unfair you are!" she cried indignantly. "I gave a big increase only last winter."

"Because your hand was forced by a few of us who could afford to be sacked."

"It's all nonsense and you're only saying it because of your infatuation with Gillian. As if that sort of thing ever lasts! You care for her so little that you are deliberately robbing her of her inheritance. O well, the more you see of her, the sooner it will pass." She went to the door and called: "You can come down now, Gillian."

Ralph met her at the stairs.

"It's a stifling night. Care for a stroll in the garden? I've told Mrs. Steel we shan't be long."

"We had a bit of a dustup," he explained when they were out of earshot of the house. "She flung the 'last will and testament' in my teeth again. Said I was robbing you. Do you feel that way about it?"

"You know I don't. I only meant the other night that I thought it seemed a sort of duty to—to Tenstable and all the people dependent on the money."

"That never weighed with her. She's as tough as old Andrew himself. If she were to die tonight the town would be secretly rejoicing tomorrow."

"If she were to die tonight we should step into the money."

"That's the curse of that trick of actually making a will," he said. "It does bring a tiny element of reality into her cat-and-mouse game. It's true that if she were to die suddenly the will, from being so much nonsense, would become something tremendous—which means that one simply can't help thinking about it a little. After all, any sane person would like to be rich . . ." he chuckled—". . . provided it didn't cost too much. "Ask her to destroy it tonight."

Gillian thought it over.

"She wouldn't agree. There would simply be a scene."

"Then creep down when she's asleep and destroy it yourself. As long as that thing is in existence there is a grain of truth in her sneer that I am robbing you."

"I wouldn't care if you did rob me."

"Darling! Look here—it'll be pretty awful for you staying on here even for a short time after this clash. Cut it all out and come to my cousin's tomorrow and we'll be married in a few days. Will you?"

"Yes, dear—if you're sure you want me to."

"Am—I—sure!"

For Ruth the routine of a lifetime had been broken when some one knocked at the front door after 10 o'clock. On the upper staircase she saw Mrs. Steel standing by the window peering into the garden.

It was too dark now to see anything but the outline of the distant ridge.

Again her heart gave her a moment of faintness. Ruth was about to come to her assistance, but Mrs. Steel steadied herself and turned back along the corridor. Passing Gillian's door she stopped.

"A young girl doesn't need a key in her door in this house." She removed the key and went to her room.

"I shall have a bad night if I'm not careful. I mustn't let myself get excited again." When she heard Gillian reënter the house, heard Ralph drive off, she was still calm enough to reflect that, owing to Valerie's amazing behavior, she had not taken her proper dose of sleeping draught.

"Gillian dear, be an angel and get me a glass of hot milk. I let mine get cold. And put one tablet in for me. Here is the key."

Gillian unlocked the cabinet, picked up the phial and shook out a tablet. In doing so she was struck by the fact that phial was nearly empty.

"That's funny! Last night I thought it was nearly full!" O, well, Aunt Margaret always kept the key so it couldn't matter.

She took the tablet into the kitchen and started to prepare the milk. When the milk boiled she dropped the tablet in. As she was emptying the saucepan into a tumbler, Ruth came into the kitchen, in her hand the jade vase from the drawing room.

"This is where she put the milk I got ready for her—I saw the vase had been moved as soon as I went into the drawing room just now."

Ruth tipped the milk into the sink. The fatal dose went gurgling down the waste. She rinsed the vase and turned it upside down to drain.

"Better let me take that up, Miss. She's a bit upsetlike tonight."

Gillian was glad enough to accept the offer. She had an uneasy feeling that Mrs. Steel wanted to talk about Ralph.

"I meant to tell you before, Miss. I had a bit of an accident when I was sweeping your floor. Bent the key all up. I've taken it out, to have it done tomorrow, so you won't be able to lock your door tonight. But you needn't worry—no harm'll come to ye."

"I shan't worry," smiled Gillian. "I generally forget to lock the door.

"Good night, miss."

"Good night, Miss."

Try to Travel Comfortably with the Baby

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

(Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.)

This is the third of a series of articles on traveling with your baby, if travel you must.

First, get as good train accommodations for the journey as you can afford. If you must use a day coach, you will probably go in one of the modern reserved seat cars. If so, consider the cost of an extra seat for the baby.

But if your budget will bear it, Pullman reservations are what you should obtain. If possible, take a section, that is, both lower and upper berth. A roomette is good, tho when the bed is down you have no space to move around in.

During the heavy traffic last summer the railroads could not sell a compartment to one person, but they might to a mother and baby if you can stand the additional expense.

"Check and double-check" on your reservations. That means on your times of departure and arrival, on your connections, and on your "space." If, for instance, you have to wait over in Chicago, ask your reservations clerk to try to make your connections neither too close nor too far apart. If too close and your train is late arriving, you miss your outgoing train and so, your berth or section. If the wait-over is too long, it becomes frightfully tedious.

If, however, you know you must have a wait of many hours in a big city, a practical measure is to write ahead to a hotel in that city, explain, and have a room reserved for you and the baby for day time use. I have done this, and it works out very well and costs little.

Wedding News

Following a short wedding trip, George Henry Miller Jr. and his bride, the former Miss Sarah Ludington McCulloch, will be at home in Philadelphia, Pa., where he is a student in the school of medicine at the University of Pennsylvania. Their marriage took place Tuesday in the Immanuel church in Glencoe, Md., where her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Duncan McCulloch Jr. live. Dr. and Mrs. Miller of Chicago went east for their son's marriage, at which his sister, Miss Martha Gordon Miller, acted as maid of honor.

Dr. and Mrs. Frederick Hiebel [Beulah E. Emmet] are at home in New York following their marriage June 24 in Wilton, N. H. The bride, daughter of Commodore Robert R. M. and Mrs. Emmet of Great Lakes and a granddaughter of Mrs. A. Barton Hepburn of New York, attended the Edgewood school in Greenwich, Conn., and studied sculpture with John H. Storrs. Dr. Hiebel received his doctor's degree from the University of Vienna and is on the staff of the Rudolph Steiner school in New York. He is the son of Mrs. Gustav Hiebel of Newtown, Pa., and the late Prof. Hiebel of Vienna.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 club	Pass	1 heart	Pass
1 spade	Pass	3 diamonds	Pass
4 diamonds	Pass	5 spades	Pass
6 spades	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Jack of diamonds.

The postponement of trump drawing in the play of a slam contract is something that goes counter to the instincts of the average player. When the blue ribbon contract is reached, the panic is on and trumps have got to be extracted. It may be that the trumps will be needed as future entries to establish a suit or to take a finesse; or it may be that dummy's trumps may be advantageously employed in ruffing losers. All that means nothing to a player in panic. Trumps have got to come out.

Witness East's mournful experience in today's hand. The bidding was splendid. When East's second bid was, pleasantly enough, one spade, West had good reason to contemplate a slam. He might have suggested it mildly by bidding four spades [not three spades, which bid would be forcing but would show an interest only in game]. But he elected to make a more vigorous try by jumping in a new suit, intending always to return to spades. The rest of the bidding was routine and the final contract of six spades was eminently sound.

South opened the jack of diamonds which was won in dummy with the ace. Declarer was up against a difficult decision as to the choice of plays. There were two avenues of approach. One was to set up the club suit and the other was to play for a cross-ruff. Declarer elected to go for the clubs. He drew three rounds of trumps, winding up in his own hand, and led a low club toward the queen. North won with the king and returned a diamond. A club discard was taken in dummy on the queen of diamonds and then the ace of clubs was played. When South showed out, there was no way to set up the suit and the contract was defeated. This was an unfortunate break as declarer would have succeeded had the clubs broken 3-2 or the king of clubs been with South.

It is a close question whether or not the play for a cross-ruff is superior. Unless the diamonds are 6-2 [an improbable distribution], the cross-ruff will succeed as follows: Three rounds of diamonds are played and a club discarded from dummy. Now the ace and another club are led. North will win and presumably lead a trump. Now since all the trumps are high and there is no danger of an over-ruff, three clubs are ruffed in dummy and three hearts in the closed hand for a total of 12 tricks.

The usual Saturday quiz will appear tomorrow.

War Fund Aid Shifts as World Need Changes

Withdrawal of Russian war relief from the National War fund and liquidation of America Denmark relief, effective Sept. 30 in line with changing needs based upon the end of the war in Europe and increased pressure on the war in the Pacific, were announced yesterday by Clarence B. Randall, vice president of the Community and War fund of metropolitan Chicago.

The budget for 1946 provides greater relief for the Philippines, increased aid quotas for Belgium, Greece, Holland, and Luxemburg, and extended operations for the United Service organizations and USO-Camp shows.

Randall said that withdrawal of Russian and Danish war relief, together with the recent liquidation of British war relief, will permit shifting of much needed funds to help war-torn nations that have received limited amounts of relief supplies.

Announcement of the withdrawal of America Denmark relief came from its president, Jean Hersholt, motion picture actor, who returned recently from Denmark, where he learned that that country suffered less during liberation operations than had been expected.

Randall said the United Seamen's service program probably will stand at its current level and that the budget for war prisoners' aid will be cut. Every possible service will be continued for American prisoners held by the Japanese.

The Community and War fund represents the National War fund in Cook, Lake, and DuPage counties in raising money for its programs. In Chicago funds are also used to support 187 health and welfare agencies of the Community Fund.

Edward L. Ryerson, chairman of the Inland Steel company and a director of the Community and War fund, has been named chairman of the national committee on corporations for the National War fund, Robert E. Coburn, director of the local fund, said.

'A Medal for Benny' Is an Unusual Film

"A MEDAL FOR BENNY"

Produced by Paramount, directed by Irving Pichel, featuring Dorothy Lamour, Arturo de Cordova, J. Carrol Naish, Mikhail Rasumny, Fernando Alvarado, Charles Dingle, Frank McHugh, Benita Moreno, Grant Mitchell, Donnita Dumbrille, Nestor Paiva, Eva Puig, Pepito Perez and Frank Reicher. Presented at the Chicago.

By Mae Tinée

John Steinbeck was partly responsible for the story of this movie, and it has much of the flavor of "Tortilla Flat." A slow moving tale of a settlement of simple, poor Paisanos [part Spanish, part Indian] in a small California fishing village, it portrays their basic decency and sense of the fitness of things, as compared to a group of prosperous town Babbitts.

His own people liked Benny, but the police had a number of reasons not to and booted him out of the Pantera city limits. Neither his girl, Lolita, nor his father, old Charlie Martin, has heard from him for many months, altho they both expect he will return some day. Joe Morales, in love with Lolita, tries to break down her firm resolve to wait for Benny, and eventually succeeds when he produces another girl who also knew Benny, and very well indeed, it seems.

Just as Lolita is about to marry Joe, word comes that Benny killed 100 Japs, no less, and is to receive a posthumous award. Members of the chamber of commerce see an opportunity to put Pantera on the map and make some money on the national hub-bub about the hero, but they fail to consider old Charlie Martin.

J. Carrol Naish makes the hero's father a distinctly lovable old fellow, and his work is excellent thruout. It is a role that could easily be overdone, but Mr. Naish handles it with restraint and delicacy. Mikhail Rasumny contributes some fine comedy, and the bit parts are well cast. Miss Lamour plays Lolita, but she's never very convincing and has obvious difficulty with her accent. I couldn't find myself very fond of Joe, as played by Arturo de Cordova, but perhaps that was the fault of the role rather than the actor.

There are times when the film seems to drag and much of the story is obvious, but "A Medal for Benny" has two advantages—J. Carrol Naish and the fact that it's different from the usual offerings.

FASHIONS
By Angela

Light, fluffy pinafores of organdy, batiste, pique, Swisses, and sheers for the toddlers from one to three will keep them well dressed yet cool on the hottest summer day. There are literally dozens of cunning dresses from which to choose. They range from the sturdy type for every day play to the frothiest bit of fluff for a party.

The fresh green batiste pinafore at the upper left is ideal to slip on after a nap. White eyelet embroidered organdy is used for the butterfly ruffles, bib, and pockets. Shoulder straps cross in back and fasten under a huge bow.

Organdy with a "permanent" finish, which means starching may be eliminated, is used for the dress-up pinafore at the lower left. The full skirt and bands are of white, in contrast to the red and white eyelet embroidery used on the ruffles, bib, and bow.

The sun-back dress and bolero combination favored by mother this season is made in miniature for the toddler, at the lower right. A white pique floral print, the dress is trimmed around the bib with plaited organdy scallops and on the pockets. The tiny jacket fastens at the neck.

Early morning play calls for the vivid cotton twill border print dress at the upper right. Luscious red strawberries are splashed against a creamy white background, and the dress will withstand innumerable tubbings.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., July 5—Sharon McManus, who was terrific in a dance with Gene Kelly in "Anchors Aweigh," will be made love to by Butch Jenkins in "Boys Town." I hope Butch will be a little gentler with her than he was when he was having an interview with John Stahl. Butch was angry because he'd been called away from a baseball game, and when he met Stahl kicked him in the shins. . . . Dudley Nichols assures me that R. K. O. will start "Sister Kenny" in October. . . . John Miljan, overseas in "The Night of January 16th," sends me a clipping from Stars and Stripes in which I get credit for breaking the news that the troupe of Ingrid Bergman, Jack Benny, Larry Adler, and Martha Tilton was going over. The boys were complimentary. . . . He was showing off and when I accused Sidney Kingsley of being as big a ham as I am, he said, "You're wrong, Hedda, I'm bigger." He finished a script for Metro and is relaxing until their reaction sets in.

Dots and Dashes

Jack Carson tried his overseas show here before going over, and says Chili Williams is as well known to our soldiers as Betty Grable. That's what pin-ups in polka dots can do for you. . . . I don't understand it. Letters from the South Pacific say Gertie Lawrence's playing of "Blithe Spirit" doesn't put the boys in the same spirit. . . . I hope Binnie Barnes won't turn producer. She's much too decorative an actress. . . . Elsie Janis is recovering from influenza. . . . Dale Evans, queen of the cowgirls, is to be crowned "Princess Birdwing" by the Sioux Indian tribe. There's a girl who's been crowned so many times it's a wonder she's not out. . . . Charlie Barnet, without benefit of tooters, will solo in "Why Was I Born." . . . Johnny Mercer's tune "Out of This World" is just that.

Sense and Feeling

I didn't think Harald Ramond would land a Metro contract. He's the man Lupe Velez was in love with—remember? . . . Jane Wyman's muscles are screaming. She does a dance sequence in "Night and Day." Louis Hayward's press agent says he'll open an eating place and feature continental food. Louis, with his poor appetite, selling food! Come now, boys, you can think up something better than that. . . . Diana Lynn will play a baby-faced southern vamp in "The Bride Wore Boots." Is that a title? What did she wear boots for—to kick her bridegroom? . . . If Olivia De Havilland's well enough, she'll go to England to make "The Crying Sisters" for David Rose. . . . Ray Milland goes to England to visit his family—not to work.

A Couple of Slick Chicks

Metro has another musical called "The Day Before Spring," written by those coming up boys, Lerner and Lowe. The idea back of it is refreshing and new. . . . Dennis Morgan will star in Warners' "Serenade" by James Cain. . . . Larry Weingarten, who produced "Without Love," tells about meeting Max Gordon in New York. Max said, "Gee whiz! I just saw 'Without Love.' It's great. Who produced it?" Said Weingarten, "A guy named Pasternak, maybe." Max replied, "He's not bad. Suppose I could get him to produce one of my plays?" . . . "Horses of Thrace" said to be not unlike "The Road to Rome," will be staged by Margaret Webster in New York. . . . "The Bad Angel" by Johnny Meehan, who wrote the screenplay "The Valley of Decision," opens in Los Angeles before New York. . . . Al Woods hopes to be active this coming season. He's dug up an oldie by the late Bayard Veiller titled "Courtesan in Green." . . . Frankie Carle and his band got a hot reception here. The day they started work on "Riverboat Rhythm," their uniforms and cash were stolen.

CUBS WIN, 2½ GAMES OUT OF FIRST; SOX LOSE

FILLEY TO PLAY IN ALL-STAR GAME AUG. 30

Great Irish Guard to Face Packers

BY WILFRID SMITH

Patrick Joseph Filley, the only man named captain of two Notre Dame football teams in succession in the last 25 years, will join the 1945 All-Star squad for the game in Soldiers' field Aug. 30 between the collegians and the Green Bay Packers, champions of the National Football league. The annual All-Star contest will be the 12th in the series sponsored by The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

Pat Filley

Pat's name is the first to be announced of a squad which is expected to exceed more than two score college stars, none of whom has played professionally. None in the group of linemen promises to be more important in the task of stopping the Packers' running attack. Weighing 190 pounds, and with four years' experience on the Notre Dame varsity, this hard charging, accurate blocking left guard undoubtedly will be a key player in any system of attack the All-Star coaches choose to teach.

Gets Marine Discharge

Filley was elected captain of the 1943 Irish squad, which won the national championship and was beaten only in its final game with Great Lakes Naval Training center. In March of 1944 he was ordered to active duty with the marine corps and went into training at Parris Island. Shortly thereafter he was given a medical discharge because of injuries to his knees. Subsequent operations permitted him to return to the university, where last fall he again was chosen to lead the Irish. Notre Dame won all of its games except those with the academy teams from West Point and Annapolis.

Filley's steady play last season and his leadership were factors in Notre Dame's success. His contributions were such that Ed McKeever, who directed the Irish in 1944, has placed him on his staff at Cornell university, where McKeever now is head coach. Filley will join the All-Star squad Aug. 12 at Northwestern university, which again will be the training camp for the college men.

Filley's home is in South Bend, Ind., where he attended Central High school and won three letters each in interscholastic football and wrestling. He was captain of his high school eleven and won conference championships in wrestling in the 155 and 165 pound classes.

Passes Up 1944 Games

Filley was graduated from Notre Dame this year with the degree of bachelor of science in science and physical education. He was eligible to participate in the 1944 All-Star game against the Chicago Bears but was unable to accept an invitation because he had not completely recovered from the operation on his knees.

"My greatest thrill in football was being twice captain at Notre Dame," Filley wrote in accepting an invitation to join the All-Stars to play Green Bay, "but I anticipate the game Aug. 30 with greatest pleasure. It always has been my ambition to take part in this great contest."

The All-Star game has been returned to Soldiers' field this year after two games in Northwestern's Dyche stadium, where a capacity crowd of 50,000 attended each contest. The collegians divided these, defeating the Washington Redskins in 1943 and losing to the Bears last August, 24 to 21. More than 90,000 will have opportunity to see the twelfth game of the series, which was inaugurated in the lake front stadium in 1934.

While all of the seats in the $6.60 sections in Soldiers' field have been sold, excellent tickets remain at lower prices, notably in the $5 sections. All seats are reserved. Ticket orders by mail only are now accepted. Make checks payable to The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., inclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, and send your requests to the All-Star Ticket Manager, Tribune Tower.

By the Cross His Mother

[John 19:25]

The anguish that His mother suffered
None can understand;
How well she knew His innocence!
With breaking heart she scanned
That jeering mob demanding death
Of her beloved Son
Whose wont it was to bring to God,
In prayer, ere rising sun,
Request that every one should hear
Those blessed words, "Well done!"

Yes, by the cross His mother stood;
Tho little she could do,
Her presence in His final hour
Did much to help Him thru
The greatest struggle of His life—
O, mothers, mothers all—
Stand by the crosses of your sons—
Their trials are not small!

Legacy

Some folks leave quite a lot behind,
Bonds, utilities, stock,
All of them gilt-edge and stable,
Dependable as the rock;
Others, when it's time to move on
At the end of their stay upon earth,
Leave only small sentimental things
Of not much intrinsic worth.

A baby shoe, a kitchen clock,
A well loved book or two,
Or a bright quilt pieced together
From happy days they once knew;
Here a bit from a christening robe,
There a piece from a wedding gown,
Little souvenirs of quiet lives
Are left to be handed down.

I wonder which led the fuller lives,
The ones with the bond and the stock
Or the ones with a lifetime of memories
Which the years fashioned block by block!

Boston, Mass., July 5—The second place Cubs rose to within 2½ games of the first place Brooklyn Dodgers this afternoon when they beat the Braves, 3 to 2, for the fourth victory in the series. Hank Wyse turned in a seven hit performance for his ninth success this season, and his second in the current five game Chicago winning streak.

The the Cubs trail the Dodgers by those 2½ games, the Brooklyns and the Chicagos have lost the same number of games—28—which means the Cubs, headed tonight for a five game series with the tailend Phillies, have a chance to win the games that supply the difference between the Dodgers' and the Cubs' ratios in the league standings.

They Like the East

The Cubs, who suffered a six game losing streak on their first invasion of the east, have won eight of 11 on this, their second eastern trip. Tomorrow, in a twilight night engagement in Philadelphia, Ray Starr and Paul Derringer will start for the Cubs. It will be Starr's first appearance as a starting pitcher for the Cubs.

Derringer has done some fine relief pitching recently, but has not won a start since June 8. He was the losing pitcher in two of the three defeats the Cubs have suffered on this trip, but saved both games of the double header here yesterday as a reliever for badly skidding Paul Erickson and tobogganing Hy Vandenberg.

Holmes Nears Record

In today's game the Braves scored an unearned run in the first inning and a legitimate single by Tommy Holmes was a factor in its production, making the Boston fans very happy, inasmuch as it lifted Tommy's consecutive hitting streak to within one game of Rogers Hornsby's National league record of 33.

The 1 to 0 Boston lead stood up till the fourth inning, and emphatically, inasmuch as the Cubs didn't get a runner on base in the first three innings. The score became 1 to 1 in the fourth inning when Stan Hack drove his second 1945 homer over the right field screen. Don Johnson filed out, but the bases were loaded on passes to Bill Nicholson and Phil Cavarretta and a single by Andy Pafko. Then Peanuts Lowrey hit into a double play started by Jim Tobin.

The Cubs took a 3 to 1 lead after the first two batsmen had been retired in the sixth. Cavarretta singled and stopped at third on Pafko's double. Lowrey then singled to left, scoring Phil and Andy.

Braves Come Close

In their sixth the Braves wasted a double by Phil Masi, but in the seventh they scored a run and had the tying run on third. Chuck Workman opened with a single to right and stopped at third on Carden Gillenwater's double off the center field fence. Stu Hofferth grounded out to Len Merullo, Workman scoring and Gillenwater holding second. Joe Medwick batted for Frankie Drews and rolled to Johnson, Gillenwater taking third. Tobin walked but Johnson threw out Dick Culler on a difficult chance.

With two out in the ninth Hofferth singled to right, then Whitey Wietelmann popped to Merullo to end the game and the series.

Four Seeded Players Advance

Competition in the women's singles likewise was cleared into the semi-final round as the four seeded players advanced. Raise Value of Skokie Stakes, Four Others

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN

The value of tomorrow's Skokie handicap, for which 23 of the best 3 year olds on the grounds have been entered and assigned weights, has been raised from $15,000 to $20,000. The increase was announced yesterday by Benjamin F. Lindheimer, executive director of the coördinated Arlington-Washington Park meeting.

At the same time, four other stake events which are to be run during the current Homewood meeting were given added value, the Dick Welles handicap, raised from $25,000 to $30,000; the Cleopatra handicap, from $15,000 to $25,000; the Modesty handicap, from $15,000 to $20,000, and the Matron handicap, from $20,000 to $25,000.

New High of Fillies, Mares

These revisions in the Cleopatra, Modesty, and Matron give the meeting, which will run until Sept. 6, an unprecedented program for fillies and mares. The increase in the Skokie and the Dick Welles confirm their positions in the 3 year old division as major stakes in their own right. No longer are they considered supplementary to the $50,000 Classic stakes and the $50,000 American Derby.

Bymeabond, J. H. Houssels' $50,000 Santa Anita Derby winner and the only thorobred to threaten Hoop Jr. in the Kentucky Derby, has been given top weight of 123 pounds for the seven furlong Skokie tomorrow.

Air Sailor Gets 120

Lt. Comdr. T. D. Buhl's Air Sailor, which won his last four races of 1944 and his first of this season before running third to Darby Dieppe and Fighting Step in the Blue Grass stakes at Churchill Downs, will get in tomorrow, at 120 pounds.

Among the other probable starters are the Murlogg farm's Fighting Step and Bergolater, Maine Chance farm's War Jeep, Louise Donovan's Fighting Don, and the Calumt farm's Pot o' Luck, No Blues and Twosy.

A good post-holiday crowd of 14,500 turned out for yesterday's program, which was devoted to older horses with the exception of the first race, a five furlong affair for maiden 2

BY IRVING VAUGHAN

The unpredictable White Sox who only a few days back were snarling in such fine voice that they shocked the Yankees into four losses in five games, continued yesterday to make life pleasant for the Washington Senators. James Dykes' boys subsided before Emil Leonard's knuckle ball pitching, 5 to 2, giving the visitors a sweep of the four game series. In view of these happenings the Sox now are fairly well wedged in the second division and a considerable distance from first place.

As a side feature, altho not many of the 1,548 spectators even knew about it, the 38 year old Rick Ferrell crowded himself into the record book alongside of Ray Schalk, the one time Sox notable who was present for the occasion. Ferrell caught his 1,721st game to tie the American league mark set by Schalk between 1912 and '28. The Washington veteran reached that total in 17 seasons of work during which he flitted between the Browns, Red Sox, and his present employers.

Senators Score Three in Fifth

All of the pitching served to the Senators yesterday was of the left-handed variety as dispensed by Ed Lopat. The little fellow was both good and bad, the latter being evident in the fifth when five hits into which he inixed an error of his own making caused three Senators to skip across the plate and submerge a two run edge the Sox had assumed over Leonard a bit earlier. Prior to that blow-off, Lopat had yielded only one run—the season's first homer for Fred Vaughn.

The assault that gave the Sox their two run lead in the second was launched quickly and was ended the same way. Guy Curtright and Tony Cuccinello singled and Oris Hockett doubled to left center, sending them home. All this happened with nobody out but the next three men accomplished nothing toward moving Hockett across the plate. The Sox also produced two hits in the third but after two were out and Cuccinello wasn't able to assist. Then in the fourth the lead was cut in half by Vaughn's homer which whistled into the left field seats.

Lopat Makes Wild Throw

Lopat's unpleasantness in the fifth began when Gil Torres slapped a single into center. Ferrell celebrated a bit by singling to left. Joe Zardon dumped a single into short center, Torrest scoring and Ferrell taking third, scoring from there when Lopat, in an attempt to catch the old boy napping, threw wild past Cuccinello. Zardon took second on the error but was nailed at third on Leonard's bunt. Leonard got around to the plate on singles by George Case and George Myatt. Ferrell's second single, Zardon's bunt and Leonard's hit in the seventh accounted for the Senators' fifth run.

COYLE, ATTEN TO MEET TODAY IN JUNIOR GOLF

BY CHARLES BARTLETT

The Chicago District Golf association's 1945 Junior Open tournament reaches its semi-final phase this morning over the No. 1 course of the Medinah Country club with one of the most thrill-promising foursomes in its career. The first match would be sufficient in itself, bringing together as it does the defending champion, Jack Coyle Jr., of Springfield and the navy, against Jack Atten, the Chick Evans protege who was Northwestern university's mainstay in the recent collegiate campaign. The second semi-finals of the morning sends Charley Lindgren of Rockford, runner-up for this year's Illinois interscholastic championship, against an elderly fellow from Peoria named Jimmy Love.

The victors in these two matutinal engagements will tee off against each other this afternoon in the 18 hole final match for the Walter G. Leininger trophy, offered by the Oak Parker who is past president of the C. D. G. A.

Coyle Is a Long Hitter

Fireman, second class, Coyle, a terrific hitter who puts you in mind of the younger Chick Harbert, reached his second consecutive semi-final assignment with no especial difficulty. He was out in 37, three over par, in the morning round against George Martin of Glencoe, for a two up margin which he ultimately augmented to a 6 and 5 decision. Then he came back in the afternoon quarter-finals in a four-over-par test to put out Gordon Hammond Jr., another of Rockford's consistent swingers.

Atten, one of the best young golfers Chicago has turned out in years, asserted his place in a match against Champion Coyle by dusting off the front nine of the No. 1 lot at Medinah yesterday in one over par. He needed a 35, one over, in the course of a right smart all-college tiff with young Sox Howell of Glen Oak, only recipient of a golf letter at Purdue last season. The match was squared twice on the outgoing side, Atten going to the 10th tee only two up. Howell collected a birdie there and went one up with pars on Nos. 12 and 13. The Howell putting touch then chilled, and Atten escaped with a 2 and 1 verdict.

Love Tries for Years

In the afternoon match Atten dashed around the front nine in 34, even par, and finished off Hiram Loveland of Rockford, 3 and 2. For

Joe Bowman Scores His Sixth Triumph

Brooklyn, N. Y., July 5 (AP)—Joe Bowman won his sixth game since he joined the Reds a month ago, and Cincinnati defeated brooklyn, 6 to 4, today to cut the Dodgers' first place margin to two and a half games over the triumphant Chicago Cubs and St. Louis Cards.

Bow, Arrow Hunting Legal in New Code

BY BOB BECKER

The Illinois legislature made several changes in the game code which will affect fishing and hunting in this state. In the first place, persons in military service may fish without a license. Another change very much in keeping with the trend to archery is one which allows the Robinhoods to hunt pheasants, rabbits, quail, and squirrels with bow and arrow.

Two of the most important bills passed raise the state fishing license from $.75 to $1 and the hunting license from $1.50 to $2. Foxes have increased so rapidly in the state that the lawmakers now have put this animal on the open list in the central zone. One may hunt and kill foxes the year round in that zone. Another bill reappropriates $80,000 for the purchase of public hunting and fishing grounds.

We believe that this particular sum earmarked for rehabilitation of the Spring lake recreational area. When we were on Spring lake earlier in the season the president of the Pekin Sportsmen's club told us about a plan for increasing the size of that lake to give sportsmen greater facilities in fishing and hunting. Some money had been appropriated for that purpose but hadn't been spent there.

Livingston Osborne, director of conservation, had a plan to use the money received from the increase in license fees to create more public hunting and fishing areas. Sportsmen thruout the state generally indorsed the idea of a slight increase in licenses to obtain funds for that purpose.

Lindgren, who was runnerup for the state prep crown not long ago, proceeded to prove why Rockford is a great golf town by knocking out Mike Pope of Glen Ellyn, 5 and 4, in the third round. In the afternoon, Charley had to work the route before he could take a 2 up debate from George Jeschke of Park Ridge, Notre Dame V-12 student. This morning Lindgren meets Jimmy Love, an old man of 15 years who has been trying to win this junior championship since way back there when he was a youngster of 10. Jimmy vanquished two of the stoutest favorites in the field, knocking over Corp. Bob Sederberg of Tacoma, Wash., 5 and 4, and then going to the 19th to win over Henry Heinly of Hinsdale, the C. D. G. A. junior closed champion. Henry squared it at the 17th, then wangled a good half out of the 18th after turning up near the fence, but Love hammered a drive and a spoon to the extra hole, and lagged his approach putt dead while Heinly was falling short with his second.

THIRD ROUND RESULTS

Jack Coyle, Springfield, beat George Martin, Deerfield, 6 and 5
Gordon Hammond, Rockford, beat Reggie Robinson, West Chicago, 5 and 3.
Hiram Howland, Rockford, beat Connie Creed, Hinsdale, 1 up, 19 holes.
Jack Atten, Northwestern, beat Don Howell, Glen Oak, 2 and 1.
Charles Lindgren, Rockford, beat Mike Pope, Glen Ellyn, 5 and 4.
George Jeschke, Park Ridge, beat Bob Krumwiede, Tam o' Shanter, 5 and 3.
Henry Heinly, Hinsdale, beat George Culp, Ridge, 4 and 3.
Jimmy Love, Peoria, beat Cpl. Bob Sederberg, U. S. A., 5 and 4.

QUARTER FINAL RESULTS

Coyle beat Hammond, 4 and 3.
Atten beat Loveland, 3 and 2.
Lindgren beat Krumwiede, 3 and 2.
Love beat Heinly, 1 up 19 holes.

MEN'S CLOTHES PROSPECTS FOR FALL IMPROVE

Expect More Wool for Civilians

An improved outlook for men's clothing next fall was reported yesterday by Chicago woolen interests. Wider selections and more adequate stocks are expected as a result of the war production board action unfreezing 35 per cent of woolen worsted for civilian use.

The WPB early this year froze for military use 100 per cent of the yarn spun from wool tops. Between now and Aug. 18 only 65 per cent will be set aside. The freeze will be lifted entirely Aug. 18.

Man power, however, remains a bottleneck at the woolen mills. As men are released from the army and as war production eases in many big munitions plants more workers are expected to become available for the textile plants.

Need Time to Prepare

The mills will require 30 to 60 days to get ready to produce and deliver the woolens required for civilian production, it was said.

Meantime, cutbacks by the army quartermaster have eased the woolen supply. The quartermaster at Philadelphia recently canceled the cutting of 1,700,000 military overcoats, requiring about 6,800,000 yards; canceled orders for 4 million yards of 32 ounce woolen cloth; and postponed the delivery date for 1,700,000 yards of flannel for shirts. It was expected the WPB soon will unfreeze woolen blankets.

Wool dealers said the WPB is expected to announce an over-all program for the division of wool by which 63 per cent will be reserved for civilian consumption, 28 per cent for military, and 9 per cent for export. Substantial amounts were reported being exported to France, Belgium, Holland, Poland, and Italy.

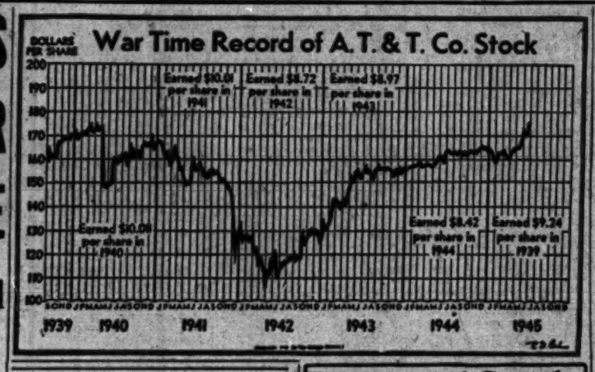
Expect More Clothes in Fall

Leading mens' clothing manufacturers do not expect the improvement in the mill situation to be felt in their establishments until next fall or winter. The supply of men's summer clothing made of light weight wool will remain short, with deliveries to retail stores largely on a day to day basis.

Meyer Kestnbaum, president of Hart, Schaffner & Marx, said many men's garment manufacturers, including his own company, have a large part of their facilities engaged heavily in war work. He said Chicago garment plants are affected by a tight labor supply. He attributed a part of the present shortage of men's summer clothing to the fact many men have more cash to buy such garments.

General Electric Buys Factory Site in Elkhart

General Electric company has purchased land in Elkhart, Ind., on which an electrical appliance plant will be built after the war, H. L. Andrews, vice president and manager of the appliance and merchandise department, said yesterday.



Field of Loans for Insurance Is Broadened

A broader field of investment enabling Illinois insurance companies to compete on approximately equal terms with eastern companies has been opened by recent action of the legislature in amending the investment section of the state insurance code, Chicago insurance executives said yesterday. The legislation awaits the signature of Gov. Green.

The amendment would remove one of two principal limitations which now control Illinois insurance companies' investments in bonds and other evidences of indebtedness, a spokesman said. It also would apply to such preferred stock investments as are authorized under existing law.

Investment Is Limited

Currently the amount of money which insurance companies may invest in any one securities issue is limited to 2 per cent of the company's admitted assets or 10 per cent of the issue. The amendment would remove the 10 per cent barrier and permit insurance companies to take as large a portion of the issue as they wish as long as it does not exceed 2 per cent of their assets.

Many loans have been privately placed directly with insurance companies instead of thru public channels after registration with the securities and exchange commission. Private placements speed financing and save registration expense, spokesmen said, altho generally a higher interest rate is paid than on public offerings.

Illinois companies wanting private financing in sizable amounts, ½ million dollars and upward, often were forced to seek eastern financing because of the 10 per cent limitation. Eastern companies have no such limitation.

Refused 10 Per Cent of Loan

Illinois insurance companies often refrained from making 10 per cent of a loan on the theory it was just as much work to set up a small credit as a large credit, and they didn't believe it sufficiently profitable, an executive for one large insurance company said.

"The action in Springfield widens the field of investment from which we may choose," he said. "I hope that the action will make it possible for Illinois life insurance companies to help small business."

CELLOPHANE CONVERTER

I have noticed Dobeckmun company stock quoted on the New York Curb exchange. Please inform me regarding the company's business and earnings.—L. L.

Dobeckmun company, incorporated in Ohio in 1927, converts cellophane and other transparent films into bags for foods and other products, cigar tubes, and insulation tapes. It also prints these films for sheet wrappings and for use in making its own products. Announcement was made last month that the company has placed in volume production a new packaging material called "metalam," aluminum foil with a vinyl resin coating and cloth backing.

Sales of all products increased from a pre-war level of less than 3 million dollars to $10,359,000 in 1943 and $14,816,000 in 1944. Last year's profit was $502,659, equal to $4.83 a share on the 104,000 shares. In the five years ended with 1939, the profit averaged only $109,680. Per share earnings in 1943 were $2.69; 1942, $1.97; 1941, $1.52; 1940, 75 cents.

Responding to the earnings trend, the stock this year sold above 35 compared with a 1945 low of 20 and a 1944 low of 10¾. The current price is high in relation to pre-war earnings, and it remains to be seen to what extent the wartime gains in sales and profit can be maintained.

Dividends of 25 cents were paid at quarterly intervals in 1944 and so far in 1945. Payments totaled 75 cents a share in 1943, 50 cents in 1943, and 25 cents in 1941. No dividends were paid in 1940 and 1939. Current assets as of Dec. 31 last totaled $3,080,000 and current liabilities $2,042,000. Noncurrent notes payable amounted to $180,000. Book value as applied to the stock was about $19 a share.

SPEED POWER PLANTS ABROAD TO AID EUROPE

Return of bombed out European areas to normal industrial production is being speeded thru use of small, easily transported power plants, William E. Knox, vice president of Westinghouse Electric International company, Westinghouse Electric corporation subsidiary, said yesterday.

Now being shipped to Europe, Knox said the plants can be erected in a few days and will generate sufficient electric current for a city of 10,000. Each plant includes the primary essentials of a modern power station, including generator, steam turbine, boiler, switchgear, fuel burning equipment, piping and insulation, and instruments.

Grain Weighers' Strike Closes Two Flour Mills

Minneapolis, Minn., July 5 (AP)—The strike of grain weighers today shut down regular operations of both the A and B mills of the Capital Flour Mills company in St. Paul and the Farmers Union Elevator in St. Paul, which usually ships 20 cars a day, was on a standby basis only with all shipments halted. About 1,000 cars of grain remained in the Minneapolis terminals with about 1,800 other cars being rerouted. The weighers went on strike at midnight Saturday.

2 Chicagoans Mentioned for Finance Post

Two Chicago bankers are among those considered possible successors to Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau. They are Edward E. Brown, chairman of the First National Bank of Chicago, and Walter J. Cummings, chairman of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company. Both are Democrats.

Brown, who is 60, was a member of the American delegation to the

E. E. Brown

W. J. Cummings

Bretton Woods monetary conference last year and is one of the few leading bankers who was an early backer of the Bretton Woods plan.

Heads Advisory Council

He is the president of the federal reserve advisory council, a group of officials of reserve member banks which acts in an advisory capacity to the federal reserve board. In this capacity he has been called to Washington frequently for consultation in the last few years.

A graduate of Harvard law school, Brown entered the bank's law department shortly after his graduation and was elected president in 1934 on the death of Melvin A. Traylor.

Had Several Positions

Cummings, who is 66, was closely associated with the Roosevelt administration in its early years. He was the first chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation, a position from which he resigned in 1934 to become chairman of the Continental. He has also served as treasurer of the Democratic national committee. He was executive assistant secretary to the treasury in 1933 and 1934. Prior to his Washington service he was engaged in the railroad car and public utility industries.

FREEZES STEEL ORDER BOOKS TO AID CONVERSION

Washington, D. C., July 5 (AP)—The WPB tonight froze steel mill order books for five types of sheet and strip steel which are so scarce as to jeopardize reconversion plans. The action prevents any steel producer from booking new orders for delivery in July, August, or September.

The WPB steel division will scrutinize the frozen books to determine whether there are "open spaces" into which nonpriority orders for civilian manufacturers can be fitted.

The action is part of a WPB drive to open up supplies of sheet steel for household appliances, automobile bodies, and other civilian products.

RYE TUMBLES ON NEW RULES, CORNER CHARGE

Other Grain Prices Close Mixed

Prices of rye futures dropped as much as 3⅛ cents a bushel in early trading yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade, but rallied on buying of July and September to close 1 to 2⅝ lower, July leading. The decline followed charges Tuesday in congress that efforts had been made to corner the rye market.

The board of trade put into effect new regulations designed to curb speculation in rye. It raised the initial margin requirement on rye from 20 to 25 cents a bushel and limited July rye trading to liquidation of outstanding contracts and hedges against grain available for delivery.

Other Grains Irregular

Other grain prices were mixed. Wheat closed ½ cent lower to ⅝ higher, corn unchanged to ¼ higher, oats ⅛ to ¼ lower, and barley unchanged to ½ higher.

It was disclosed that some time ago the government ordered a virtual embargo on further sales of rye for export, but without notice to the grain trade. This policy will remain in effect until the new crop is available or new developments in the cash rye situation occur, the department of agriculture stated.

Officials of the board of trade said nothing in regard to the charges made by Rep. Keefe [R., Wis., but one director pointed out that on June 15 the price received for rye by farmers was 2 cents a bushel less than parity. This was regarded as refutation of Keefe's charges that the market had been manipulated to obtain high prices.

Mill Buying Buoys Wheat

Buying by mills supported wheat. The purchases were against sales of flour to the government which is understood to be in the market for 800,000 sacks of flour, equal to about 2 million bushels of wheat

Cash corn brokers predicted that the government will soon be forced to take emergency action in order to obtain enough corn for essential industries. Most wet processing industries have less than 10 days' supply of corn and feed manufacturers have less. An Iowa weekly weather crop summary said corn for feeding was becoming scarce in parts of that state.

The Commodity Credit corporation announced that on arrival at terminal markets its holdings of corn could be sold only to wet processors having less than 20 days' supply on hand or in transit and to others having less than 10 days' supply. Brokers said that this left the situation unchanged because supplies of large users are virtually exhausted.

Milwaukee Reorganizing Cost Limit of $780,000 Set

Washington, D. C., July 5 (AP)—The Chicago, Milwaukee, and St. Paul Railroad company's petition for a maximum limit of $780,000 as "reasonable expenses" to be incurred by the reorganization committee in carrying out the road's reorganization plan was approved today by the interstate commerce commission. This is exclusive of attorneys' fees and expenses.

Transmit Bond Order Funds Quickly, Corporations Urged

BY THOMAS FURLONG

With Chicago and Cook county 26 million dollars short of its E bond quota, an appeal was made yesterday to corporations to transmit promptly subscription funds received from employes.

All payments for bonds must be in the hands of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago by 5 p. m. Monday, July 9, to be credited against the 7th war loan quota, C. S. Young, president of the bank, said.

Chicago May Make Quota

"Chicago has an excellent chance of making its E quota," said Young. "It may be the only large industrial city to accomplish this. In order to do this, it is essential that all bonds purchased be cleared by issuing agents in time to reach this bank before the deadline."

Chairman Lawrence F. Stern of the war finance committee joined Young in the "final" appeal of the drive. Stern said that the subscriptions processed between now and Monday evening will decide whether Chicago attains the distinction of meeting its quota in all categories, of which the E bond is regarded as the most important.

Stern appealed specifically to corporations to notify employes by bulletin or other means to complete planned purchases at once. He also asked that corporation accounting departments arrange to see that stubs of all bonds sold are turned into the federal reserve bank by 5 p. m. July 9.

Drive Officially Ended

Officially the drive ended June 30, but under the practice followed in this and earlier drives subscriptions received for a short period thereafter are credited against quotas because of the time required to handle transactions.

Subscriptions for E bonds actually received up to yesterday were $145,374,000, compared with the quota of $171,146,000. Subscriptions from individuals for all types of securities have passed the $327,474,000 quota and now aggregate $348,012,000. Subscriptions from corporations at $901,871,000 are more than double the $417,708,000 quota.

National Tea Plans 15 Acre Plant, Market

BY AL CHASE

Plans for a big one and two story combination warehouse, office, and manufacturing building, research laboratories, and a super-market to cover more than 15 acres at the southwest corner of Pulaski rd. and Chicago av., were announced yesterday by Robert V. Rasmussen, president of the National Tea company. An option on the land, fronting 1,000 feet on Pulaski and 890 feet on Chicago, was obtained from the Chicago and North Western railroad. Work will be started when materials are available and restrictions are lifted.

The one story warehouse section will have inside loading facilities for 20 freight cars and 50 trucks. In addition to the grocery distribution warehouse the company plans an air conditioned fruit and vegetable distribution center. Accommodations for distributing fresh meat, poultry, and fish will have a department for pre-cutting and packaging meat. Frozen foods also will be handled on a large scale.

All of the company's Chicago manufacturing operations will be relocated at the new site, including the processing and packaging of spices, jellies, coffee, pickles, etc.

A large bakery and a cafeteria are planned. Parking accommodations for 9,000 cars will be provided.

WPB EASES CONTROLS ON FURNITURE MAKING AND AUTO EQUIPMENT

Washington, D. C., July 5 (AP)—The war production board today liberalized controls on furniture manufacture and eliminated those on production and distribution of auto maintenance equipment.

The action on furniture removes restrictions on use of all metals except steel, but retains controls on wood. WPB said the more liberal use of metal will not greatly increase furniture production because of the scarcity of wood, textiles, and other materials such as springs.

In lifting controls on auto maintenance, WPB said that manufacturers will get priorities assistance for a majority of items, including battery and coil testers, some types of jacks, spark plug cleaners, and clutch rebuilding equipment.

LATE SELL-OFF DRIVES STOCK PRICES LOWER

Expect More Curbs on Speculation

New York, July 5 (AP)—Late selling hit the stock market today and gave rails and pivotal industrials one of their most severe drubbings of 1945. The list was lower from the start but dealings were negligible until the last half hour when trade quickened and leaders lost 1 to more than 2 points. Most prices were near the bottom at the close. Transfers were 910,000 shares, compared with 860,000 Tuesday.

The boost in margin requirements had been forecast and, because sales have been largely on a cash basis, would have occasioned no particular excitement. However, the idea that the move was only the first of a number contemplated to stem speculation, inspired selling.

The Associated Press 60 stock average was off 1 point, at 65.6, widest dip since June 28 and the fourth largest of 1945.

Prominent in Decline

Prominent in the retreat were Santa Fe, New York Central, Southern Pacific, Great Northern, Baltimore and Ohio, United States Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Western Union A, Electric Power and Light, American Water Works.

The stock exchange revised its margin rules for stocks selling between $10 and $20 a share. Payment on a cash basis is maintained for stocks selling up to $10 a share. However, the new 75 per cent rate becomes applicable to stocks selling above $10 a share. Formerly a margin of $10 was required on stocks selling between $10 and $20.

RAIL BONDS WEAKEN

New York, July 5 (AP)—Rails lost fractions to about 2 points in the bond market today while utilities slipped on average and industrials advanced slightly. Sales totaled $5,440,000 against $3,860,000 Tuesday.

CHICAGO LIST LOWER

Prices dipped in light turnover of 22,000 shares yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange. Fifty-seven issues of 98 traded declined, and only 18 advanced.

U. S. TAKES OVER GOODYEAR PLANT TO STOP STRIKE

Union Orders 16,700 Men Back to Work

Akron, O., July 5 (AP)—The 20 day strike at Goodyear Tire and Rubber company ended today with navy seizure of five plants under Presidential edict and an ultimatum to 16,700 CIO-United Rubber Workers to be back on the production lines tomorrow.

Capt. H. K. Clark of the navy assumed control of the strikebound factories shortly after noon. Pickets cheered as he and his staff walked thru the main gate to the office of Goodyear president, Edward J. Thomas, where the Truman order was read.

Thomas, shaking hands with Capt. Clark, assured him:

"We will cooperate 100 per cent."

Men Ordered Back

And a few minutes later, after placards announcing government seizure had been placed at all gates, C. V. Wheeler, local president of the Goodyear union, sent this message to the strikers:

"Under the circumstances, and because of the necessity of continued war production, we are happy to work under government supervision pending settlement of disputes with the company. The officers of your local union hereby advise you to return to work immediately."

Capt. Clark told strikers failure tomorrow might bring about cancellation of draft deferments, immediate induction of those not otherwise subject to induction, refusal of referral cards and statements of availability, and cancellation of supplementary gas rations.

320,000 Tires Lost

During the walkout, which Goodyear officials said cost the war program some 320,000 plane and truck tires, the strikers had seven times spurned back-to-work orders issued by the war labor board, had asked President Truman not to seize the plant, and had demanded a senate committee investigation of the merits of the strike.

At the neighboring Firestone Tire and Rubber plant, where 16,500 CIO-United Rubber Workers have been on strike since Sunday, local president Isaac H. [Ike] Watson of the union said:

"We are not going back to work on the conditions under which we went out."

The Goodyear strike started June 16 when the company and union failed to get together on 32 disputed wage, hour and working condition points. The Firestone strike also resulted from contract negotiation failure.

Philadelphia, Pa., July 5 (AP)—Central and Southwest Utilities company must sell the ice properties of two subsidiaries under a ruling today by the securities and exchange commission which reaffirms an earlier decision. The subsidiaries, Southwestern Gas and Electric company and Peoples Ice company, must be disposed of within a year.

The commission's prior order on Feb. 16 left the record open for new evidence, but the SEC said the new evidence does not warrant any change in its ruling.

The flight was part of a three month test to determine the feasibility of shipping by air fresh fruits and vegetables from the west to the east.

AID TO GERMANS IN HIDING ASSETS DENIED BY SWISS

Banks Reported Careful in Accepting Capital

ZURICH, Switzerland, July 5 [Reuters]—The renewed American charge that Swiss banks are blocking allied efforts to track down German assets hidden in Switzerland and other neutral and allied countries was denied by the Swiss Bankers' association today.

Particular attention was paid to the accusation because it was made by Orvis Schmidt, director of the American treasury department's foreign funds control division, who was a member of the Curry-Foot mission to Switzerland last winter.

Vast Nazi Deposits Charged

On Monday, Schmidt told a senate subcommittee in Washington, D. C., that even in 1942 a total of 372 Swiss banks held German deposits of more than 16 milliard Swiss francs [3 billion 680 million dollars]. Because Swiss law permits accounts to be concealed, "there has been an open invitation to the Germans to utilize Swiss facilities to conceal their assets thruout the world," Schmidt said.

In publicly repudiating the accusation, the association said that for a long time Swiss banks have been exercising the greatest restraint in accepting foreign capital. The figure mentioned by Schmidt was vastly exaggerated, it said, and the Swiss newspaper, Tagesanzeiger, asserted that 16 milliard francs could not be correct because total assets of all Swiss financial institutions are less than 20 milliard francs.

The Tagesanzieger admitted that allied suspicion of some Swiss banks was not without some justification. Not all quarters had acted with the necessary promptness in carrying out the financial agreement with the United States last March in which Switzerland said she was ready to assist in uncovering enemy assets.

Held Government Affair

Other journals, tho admitting some slowness of procedure with the agreement, held that it was not primarily the banks' affair, but that of the Swiss government. They also blame American quarters for delay in implementing the agreement.

The Neuf Zuercher, often regarded as the mouthpiece of big banks, suggested that Washington should send American control officers to Switzerland and also attributed delay to the fact that the American treasury has not replied to proposals for fixing a date for certification of Swiss holdings in America.

Certainly a major problem for Swiss banks and indirectly the government is how to meet allied requests and maintain the principle of "bank secrets," which is vital to Switzerland's future position as a world banking center.

One suggestion is that banks and other financial institutions inform the Swiss clearing office of all German holdings, giving names. The clearing office would then inform the allies of these holdings—without disclosing the names, but guaranteeing the list as complete.

CATTLE PRICES STEADY DESPITE RECEIPT OF 12,000

Cattle receipts were 12,000 head at the Chicago Stock yards yesterday, largest of the war for a Thursday and among the largest on record for that day.

Broad buying orders absorbed the entire supply at prices in line with Tuesday's close. The top price was $18 a hundred pounds, but most steers sold at $15.75 to $17.60. Top heifers brought $17.85, a high since May 14.

Sheep receipts, 5,000 head, were smallest for a Thursday since April 5. Prices were firm and the lamb top rose 5 cents to $16.40. Only 10,500 hogs arrived. They sold at ceiling prices.

RECORD WHEAT CROP FORESEEN FOR MONTANA

Great Falls, Mont., July 5 [Special]—Montana's wheat crop this year is expected to surpass the 1927 record yield of 21,713,000 bushels, grain experts said today. Farmers who received about 92 a bushel 18 years ago will get about $1.38 this year. They also will receive protein premiums.

"The outlook this year is very good," said Jay Diamond, federal crop statistician. "The winter wheat crop may be a little late because of the rains and cold spring weather."

ANDERSON OPENS BUTTER SUPPLY INVESTIGATION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., July 5—Agriculture Secretary Anderson has started an investigation of the nation's butter supply and of the federal government's "set aside" butter orders to determine whether more of the dairy product can be made available to civilian consumers, he made known today.

Anderson's step, his first announced move to correct current food shortages since he took office as agriculture secretary and war food administrator Saturday, was revealed in a letter to Sen. Wiley [R., Wis.]. Earlier in the week Wiley had charged that butter was "going rancid by the carload" because of price and rationing restrictions.

"I have already asked," Anderson wrote Wiley, "that an examination be made of the butter supply in relation to the demand of the military and war services in order to determine whether it is possible to reduce the government set-aside on butter, so that more can flow quickly to the tables of the American people."

Army to Pick Up Yanks in Venice and Greenland

The first broadcast by American troops stationed in Berlin will be aired on the official Army Hour over WMAQ-NBC at 2:30 p. m. Sunday. The only previous broadcast to the United States from Berlin since its fall was a pool report given by Roy Porter when Gen. Eisenhower arrived for the meeting of the Allied Control Commission for Germany.

HOSPITAL PLANE TO BE DEDICATED TO HEROIC RABBI

A hospital plane will be dedicated in memory of Chaplain Irving Tepper, who died in Normandy, at 3 p. m. Sunday at Chicago airport. The ceremony will be performed by the Hapoel Hamizrachi—"Toilers in the East"—a religious labor Zionist organization, as the culminating feature of its 22d national convention.

The plane, purchased with $125,000 worth of 7th war loan bonds, will be received on behalf of the army by Chaplain Col. T. McBride, commanding chaplain of the 6th service command.

Chaplain Tepper, a graduate of the Hebrew Theological college, served in the campaigns in Morocco, Tunisia, Sicily, and Normandy. He was a rabbi in Rockford before being sent overseas in 1942 and received many citations "for deeds beyond the call of duty."

COUNTY RELIEF LOAD LIGHTENED BY PENSION AID

The Chicago welfare administration will be relieved of financial responsibility for 150 persons in the Oak Forest infirmary thru senate bills that allow state payment of old age and blind pensions to county home inmates, George Klupar, welfare commissioner, said yesterday. The measures enacted permit payment of pensions to individuals receiving nursing home care in county or private institutions. The pensioners would reimburse the homes, but would retain a part of their pensions for clothing and other needs.
